VOTE TODAY! At today's final Los Angeles city election the vote of every registered citizen will be required if the job begun at the May primary of ridding the city of the incubus of boss-rule is to be completed. Five Councilmen are to be elected today and the results will determine if Parrot or the people shall control the new Council. Taxpayers will have a chance to protect their pocketbooks by voting against the scheme of the Power Bureau to load another $40,000,000 debt on the city through the forced purchase of the electrical system of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation (Proposition No. 3) and against the bureau's grab of valuable harbor lands (Proposition No. 4.) In addition, three members of the Board of Education and a municipal judge are to be elected and four other important propositions to be decided. The recommendations of The Times on these issues and candidacies appear elsewhere in this edition.

Third Held in Attack on Two Fire Wardens

Mike Zanganetti, the third man wanted by deputy sheriffs for an alleged attack upon Deputy Fire Warden Ernest Bonsall and Harry Christie, was arrested and was in the County Jail yesterday charged with assault committed against both men.

Zanganetti's two asserted companions in the attack, Hoyle Sigler and Frank J. Henry, against whom Deputy Dist.-Atty. McKay filed complaints charging assault with intent to commit murder Saturday, are scheduled to be arraigned today before Judge Hazard. McKay stated he will ask bail be fixed at $10,000 each.

Fixing of the felony charges against the two is the result of an assault upon the two deputy fire wardens when they were ordered by the latter to refrain from smoking on the Malibu Mountains last week. Sheriff Christie was reported still in critical condition at the County Hospital yesterday. His brother reported him serious injury.

TREASURY BULGING

Surplus Beyond Expectation

Mellon Foresees $600,000,000 by End of Fiscal Year on 30th Inst.

National Debt Retirement Will be Six and a Half Billion Since 1919

WASHINGTON, June 6. (Exclusive) That the revenue surplus for the fiscal year expiring the 30th inst. will be well over $600,000,000 was disclosed today by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

This surplus will enable the Treasury to pay off a larger amount of the national debt than had been expected. By the end of the fiscal year the debt retirement for the year will approximate $1,200,000,000, it is estimated.

Of this amount about $550,000,000 is derived from the sinking fund and other provisions for automatic debt retirement and the remainder is the surplus of receipts over expenditures.

This $1,200,000,000 reduction will leave the public debt totaling less than $18,500,000,000, compared with more than $35,000,000,000 in 1919.

An unexpected increase of the surplus resulted from the payment of $37,000,000 by the Boston and Maine Railroad Company in liquidation of obligations to the government growing out of government operation of the railroads during the war and postwar refinancing.

Mr. Mellon would not hazard an opinion as to the possibilities of tax reduction next year. He does not look for a surplus next year anywhere near as large as the year's surplus. He said he had not discussed tax matters with Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, prior to the recent prediction made by the Senator that a generous tax reduction would be possible next year.

DEFEAT FOR LINDSEY IN LAST COURT

Federal Justices Uphold Colorado Ruling Against Former Juvenile Jurist

WASHINGTON, June 6. (AP)—Ben B. Lindsey, formerly juvenile judge at Denver, today was refused a Supreme Court review of the judgment of the Colorado Supreme Court holding that he had been defeated at the November, 1926, election by Royal E. Graham.

Lindsey was credited with a victory in the election by the canvassing board but Graham threw the case into the courts. Graham died later and his widow took up the fight and won a decision from the Colorado Supreme Court.

Lindsey asked the Supreme Court to review the proceedings, contending that he had not been given an opportunity by the State Supreme Court's action to permit his evidence in the trial court, insisting that when a majority of that court decided to reopen the controversy the case should have been sent back to the lower court for a new trial.

French Airmen on Tokio Trip Forced to Quit

PARIS, June 6. (AP)—Capt. Rignot and Dieudonne Coste, French long-distance flyers who took off from Le Bourget Saturday morning for a two-lap journey to Tokio, were forced to descend at Tajil, in the Tobolsk region, said a message received today at the Aeronautic Bureau of the Ministry of Commerce. They had flown twenty-nine and one-half hours.

Rignot and Coste, whose nonstop distance record of 3813 miles from Paris to Persia was broken by Capt. Lindbergh in his flight from New York to Paris, had hoped to reach Chita, Siberia, and establish a new record.

Typhoons Leave Philippines in Wild Disorder

MANILA, June 6. (AP)—Weather conditions in the Philippines today neared normal after a series of typhoons which the Weather Bureau called the most serious in the history of the islands.

The most intense storm swept over the Batanese Islands last Thursday, damaging houses, uprooting trees and playing havoc with small shipping. The typhoon there is described as of the seventh intensity, the eighth intensity being the limit of fury, which seldom if ever is reached in this part of the Pacific. The typhoon moved northwest.

Owing to the nature of communications few reports are available as to damage done. No word has been received regarding the American ships China Arrow, Miller County and West Sequana, which were reported in San Francisco dispatches of the Federal Telegraph Company as having been in the typhoon area in the China Sea.

Planes Used in Two Ocean Trips Similar

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—Marked similarity exists in the two monoplanes that have spanned the Atlantic in flights from New York to Europe.

A slightly greater fuel capacity and a larger cabin mainly distinguish the Bellanca monoplane Columbia from the Spirit of St. Louis, the Ryan plane of Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Both planes have Wright whirlwind air-cooled motors. Neither machine carried a radio or gear for landing at sea.

The Columbia engine is 200 horsepower. The craft with its load as it left New York weighed 5650 pounds and has a wing spread of forty-six feet six inches. The cabin can carry eight persons.

The Spirit of St. Louis weighs 3000 pounds, has a wing spread of forty-six feet. Its body is metal, its wing of wood frame. The cabin accommodates but one person. It has a cruising radius of 3800 miles.

Will Rogers Remarks:

SYRACUSE (Kan.) June 6.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Three weeks ago Sunday I was up with Chamberlin in this same plane. If I had known about him going to take passengers I would have signed on. Then I would have been the first scared comedian to cross.

He is a fine, modest young man just like Lindbergh, and a great aviator, too. It wasn't his fault that he didn't jump off weeks ago. He was the innocent victim of rows and squabbles of which he had no part. Don't take any of the credit away from him because he was second. Say, the second plane can drop in that ocean just as easy as any. Well, I will be the first one to go over when they get a bridge.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

P.S.—I am on the Chief going in the right direction. There are several moving-picture promoters on here that remind me of Chamberlin. "They are just going till they run out of gas."

FLIGHT TO ROME NOW PROPOSED

Bellanca Tells of Plans for Single-Motor Plane Dash in October

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—Giuseppe M. Bellanca, designer of the monoplane Columbia which carried Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine to Germany, today announced that a flight to Rome from New York in a "single-motored plane" will be made, probably in October. The names of the pilot, the navigator and the backer, he said, they did not wish to divulge at this time.

Bellanca said it will take four months to build the plane which will make the trip.

"The feat performed by Chamberlin and Levine," he added, "convinces us that trans-Atlantic flying is getting to be practicable. Soon there will be big planes with many engines in a regular ocean-crossing service."

Details as to the October flight to Rome, Bellanca said he feels it politic to withhold in case events cause delay.

Chamberlin's Distance Given as 3950 Miles

WASHINGTON, June 6. (AP)—Chamberlin and Levine were credited with a flight of 3950 miles today by the Geological Survey, which measured the distance from Roosevelt Field to Eisleben.

The survey figures on the Lindbergh flight were 3610 miles. The computation was made at the request of Carl F. Schory, secretary of the National Aeronautical Association.

Child Dying in Collision With McAdoo's Car

BLUEFIELD (W. Va.) June 6. (AP)—William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, narrowly escaped serious injury when his automobile collided with another car near here late today.

Mr. McAdoo, his wife and the chauffeur of his machine all escaped injury, but Charlotte Bivens, 10 years of age, an occupant of the other car, was probably fatally hurt. Mrs. C. B. Calfee, driver of the car, also was injured.

The former Treasury Secretary was en route to Greenville, Tenn., where he is scheduled to deliver a commencement address at Tusculum College tomorrow. Delayed for several hours by the accident, McAdoo resumed his journey early tonight.

OIL REVIEW REFUSED

WASHINGTON, June 6. (AP)—The United States Supreme Court refused today to review a decision by Federal courts of Southern California which canceled a conveyance made by the White Star Oil and Refining Company to the Republic Supply Company of California, on the ground that it was intended to defraud creditors of the White Star company.

CHINA PEACE MOVE MADE

Armies May Join Against Reds

Manchurian War Lord Acts for Forming Alliance With Nanking Nationalists

Plan Involves League for Defeat of Radical Wing Now at Hankow

PEKING, June 6. (AP) — Sweeping peace proposals seeking a combination of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, northern generalissimo; Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, generalissimo of the Nanking Nationalists, and Gen. Yen Hsi-Shan, Governor or Shensi Province, against the radical Nationalist regime at Hankow were officially announced today by the Ankuochun, or Northern Alliance.

A spokesman for the alliance, who declared that the Hankow Nationalist leaders were the only Communists in China, declared that Chang Tso-Lin was not opposed to the Kuomintang (Nationalist political organization) or the principles of the late Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, the Chinese republican leader, but was using these very principles as a basis for the proposed combine.

It was emphatically stated that the Manchurians had not been defeated, but that on the contrary reserves were pouring southward from Manchuria.

TIRED OF WARFARE

"We are not begging for peace, but believe that the country is tired of warefare," said the Ankuochun spokesman. "Chang Tso-Lin's only quarrel is against the Communists and he now believes that Chiang Kai-Shek represents the real Kuomintang."

The spokesman further stated that the Northern Alliance was considering continuing its withdrawal of troops north of the Yellow River, establishing a new military headquarters at Paotingfu, in the Province of Chihli, seventy-five miles south of Peking, and the withdrawal of the Shantung and Manchurian troops to Tsangchow, sixty miles south of Tientsin. A thin defense line, however, would be maintained on the north bank of the Yellow River.

This possible withdrawal of the northern troops, the spokesman declared, was aimed to convince Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek and Gov. Yen Hsi-Shan that the proposals of the Northern Alliance were sincere.

It also was declared by the spokesman that the Russians at Hankow, of whom Michael Borodin, adviser to the Hankow Nationalist government, is one, would be expelled in the event of the success of the peace overtures.

INSIST ON PEACE

It is believed by foreign observers that in the background of this apparently responsible move for peace it is the determination of the leading civilian Chinese powers to establish the authority of the civil government over the military leaders and to obtain peace and prosperity throughout China.

Explaining Chang Tso-Lin's initiative, the northern spokesman said: "The marshal believed that the military crisis was becoming political, a successful solution depending upon Chiang Kai-Shek's decision regarding the proferred alliance."

The spokesman expressed belief that Chiang Kai-Shek would accept. Communications reaching Chang Tso-Lin indicate that Gen. Yen Hsi-Shan, the third member of the projected combination, has decided to join the Kuomintang, thereby allying himself with the southern conservatives.

The proposed withdrawal of the northern troops will bring the front where the fighting has been going on much nearer to Tientsin and Peking, where the situation of foreigners already has caused their governments some concern. Unconfirmed reports say Hankow forces have

REPAIRS RUSHED SO BERLIN FLIGHT CAN BE FINISHED

Chamberlin, Forced Down at Klinge, Refuses to Give Up Trip and Directs Mechanics Himself

LONDON, June 6. (AP)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Berlin says that Chamberlin has expressed determination to fly back to America from London, where he is due the 15th inst.

KOTTBUS, June 6. (Exclusive)—A squad of trained mechanics from the great German air company, the Lufthansa, tonight in a swampy field near the hamlet of Klinge, about nine miles distant, are working feverishly to repair the smashed propeller of the Bellanca plane, Columbia. Obdurate to the entreaties of friendly German experts who want him to have his machine hauled to the flying field at Kottbus, where the repairs can be effected easily, Clarence D. Chamberlin still adheres to his determination to fly with his plane every yard of the way from New York to Berlin.

This evening for the first time he weakened in his other resolve not to come to Berlin otherwise and now, yielding to the persuasion of the Germans and Americans anxious to honor him immediately, says he will consent to come to Templehofer Field tomorrow in a crack German plane which will be put at his disposal provided the repairs to his own are not completed in time. The efforts to make a German propeller fit the machine proved futile, hence the attempt to repair the propeller, which is split through one arm as a result of the landing on the marshy clover field.

The Germans have shown a ready comprehension of Mr. Chamberlin's ambition and are straining every nerve to make it possible. The souvenir hunters have not damaged the plane, the German sense of order having organized a voluntary guard of the population as soon as the plane landed.

VILLAGERS ON GUARD

Surrounding the voyagers from the fabulously distant land with awe, the peasants of the hamlet of Klinge by tacit consent constituted the guard. Air mechanics rushed out from the flying field at Kotthus to help them.

The guard allowed the eager citizens to pick up little splinters of the shattered propeller and shreds of American newspapers from the plane, and to pass beside it in small groups. Amid the jagged splinters of the propeller as he climbed out Mr. Chamberlin noted a four-leaf clover stuck fast. He took this as an omen that he will yet fly the Columbia triumphantly to Templehofer Field.

Tonight's headquarters of the American flyers who spanned the way from New York to Central Europe in forty-nine hours, Kottbus, in Spreewald, is one of the quaintest towns in Germany. In the tenth century it was one of the most important outposts of civilization against the Slav barbarians. The population is of Russian descent.

The women of the country are noted for their health and beauty, and still wear old medieval costumes—wide woolen pleated shawls and huge bows of stiff ribbons as bonnets, with the ends of the ribbon hanging almost to their knees.

Surrounded by lakes, rivers and channels which take the place of streets, the Spreewald country has kept up its old traditions. From all parts of Europe tourists come to witness processions of church goers on the big holidays. Whitsuntide is the most brilliant, when the peasant

LINDBERGH PROMOTED

Missouri Makes Him Colonel

Langley Medal Given Hero; Dirigible Los Angeles Sails to Welcome

Committee Perfects Program; Stations Will Broadcast First Speeches

WASHINGTON, June 6. (AP)—Additional high honors were heaped today upon Charles A. Lindbergh as he moved across the Atlantic Ocean on the cruiser Memphis, homeward bound after his epochal flight from New York to Paris.

The Smithsonian Institution awarded him the coveted Langley medal, which in the nineteen years since its establishment has been given to only four others, Orville and Wilbur Wright, Glenn H. Curtiss and Gustave Eiffel, a Frenchman. Lindbergh's citation reads:

"For his magnificent nonstop flight from New York to Paris."

Gov. Baker of Missouri announced the promotion of the flying hero from the rank of captain to that of colonel in the Missouri National Guard flying service.

The Navy decided to honor the young airman further by sending far to sea to greet him the giant dirigible Los Angeles manned by Lieutenant-Commander Charles E. Rosendahl and other heroes of the airship Shenandoah disaster, and have her accompany the Memphis to the Virginia Capes and on to Washington, where she is to dock at noon Saturday.

Down the Potomac, Lindbergh will be greeted from the air by two of his "buddies" of the air mail service,

WASHINGTON PRAISES FEAT

Coolidge Sends Congratulations to Chamberlin for Record-Breaking Air Trip

WASHINGTON, June 6. (AP)—Immersed as it is in the plans for a thunderous welcome here to Charles A. Lindbergh, official Washington was prompt today to praise the feat of Clarence Chamberlin in piloting his Bellanca plane from New York to the interior of Germany without a stop.

Chamberlin accomplishment lacked the spectacular, as compared with the solitary hop across the Atlantic by Lindbergh, but aviation experts were unanimous in declaring that it will give tremendous impetus to the development of trans-Atlantic commercial flying.

It was noted that he kept his machine in the air for forty-two hours, traveling an estimated distance of 3908 miles before landing, and this with a passenger. Officials connected with avaition matters pointed to this as a powerful argument for the efficiency and stability of the modern airplane motor.

COOLIDGE CONGRATULATES

President Coolidge was among the first to cable his congratulations to Chamberlain. Mr. Coolidge described the flight as a "wonderful feat," which set a "new nonstop record in the conquest of the air."

Secretary Kellogg, Secretary Wilbur, Postmaster-General New, Secretary Davis of the War Department and others were equally as enthusiastic in pointing to the value the flight will be to aviation of the future.

It was not clear here today what honors can be bestowed upon Chamberlin by the government. Some officials believed it will be impossible to award him the Distinguished Flying Cross, which was given to Lindbergh, owing to the fact that Chamberlin is not on the Army or Navy reserve lists, although he once was an army aviator. It was said, however, that President Coolidge might be able to fittingly express the feelings of the nation in this respect.

Officials are unwilling at this time to discuss the possibility that Chamberlin might be asked to visit Washington on his return, inasmuch as the Lindbergh reception is not yet over.

SCHURMAN REPORTS

In spite of the "unhappy ending" of the Columbia's flight when it damaged its propeller in landing near Kottbus, Ambassador Schurman at Berlin declared in a message to the State Department today that Chamberlin has made the longest-distance flight ever made in the air and the quickest trip ever made from New York to Germany.

The Ambassador recounted how Chamberlin, landing at Eisleben, could obtain only 100 liters of benzine to replenish his fuel tanks and then had resumed the flight for Berlin, coming down a short distance from Kottbus.

"The Berlin aviation authorities, at 1:15 p.m., sent a plane to Kottbus with mechanics to repair the damage and, if Chamberlin wished, to bring him to Berlin in their plane," the Ambassador said. "I have sent Counsellor Poole of the embassy with them to advise and comfort Chamberlin, who must be thoroughly exhausted."

WIVES GET AIR PRIZES

Will Carry Them to Flyers

Check for $15,000 Handed to Mrs. Chamberlin and Watch to Mrs. Levine

Both Sail Today on Ten-Day Berlin Trip Which Men Made in Two Days

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—Mrs. Wilda Chamberlin, wife of the pilot of the Bellanca monoplane Columbia, was given a check for $15,000 today to carry to her husband in Germany. Mrs. Grace Levine, wife of the financial backer of the flight and passenger, relief pilot and navigator, was given a gold watch to take to her husband.

After ceremonies in the Brooklyn Borough Hall at which the presentations were made by the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, of which Levine is a member, the flyers' wives left for their homes to prepare to sail at midnight to rejoin their husbands.

The journey that took Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine less than two days will take the wives ten days. They chose the first ship sailing after the success of the flight was established, the Berlin, of the North German Lloyd Line, which will arrive in Bremen on the 17th inst.

The Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce offered a prize of $15,000 this spring if the Bellanca monoplane were the first to Paris. When Charles Lindbergh got to Paris first, the offer was withdrawn, but Ralph Jones, president of the chamber, then offered $25,000 if the Bellanca should be the second to make the trip. But when it was learned that Chamberlin and Levine had beaten Lindbergh's distance record, that amount was again raised to $15,000.

All the money goes to Chamberlin, since Levine had stipulated before leaving that he was not to receive any part of the prize.

WOMEN GIVEN TOKENS

Besides the gifts for the flyers which the wives received, the women themselves were given personal tokens of esteem. Mrs. Chamberlin received a traveling bag and Mrs. Levine a wrist watch. The wives will have as traveling companions Mrs. Charles C. Lockwood, wife of the former State Senator, who is a close personal friend of Levine; and Samuel Hartman, Levine's attorney.

The morning and early afternoon passed without either wife hearing directly from her husband but neither showed any concern over this.

"We would much rather have them stay," Mrs. Chamberlin said, speaking both for herself and Mrs. Levine. "They need it and will cable when they wake up."

The long wordless wait, however, was broken when Mrs. Chamberlin returned from the Brooklyn ceremonies and was handed a radiogram at her hotel. The message, from her husband, had been filed at Kottbus, Germany, at 7 p.m., German time, and read: "Safe in Germany. Love. Clarence."

Prior to the Brooklyn ceremonies, Mrs. Chamberlin and Mrs. Levine slept in the morning for the first time since their husbands took off from Roosevelt Field. All night they had kept vigil, receiving press reports of the plane's progress as it scudded through the night sky of Europe.

Mrs. Levine received a cablegram from her husband from Kottbus today in which his first thought was for the health of his wife and their two children and his second for her forgiveness for his unannounced departure on the trans-Atlantic flight.

"Trust you and the children are well," Levine cabled. "Please overlook my action in leaving without telling you. I knew you would not sanction such a thing. Had a great trip. Would not have missed the experience. Love. Charles."

CHAMBERLIN TO FINISH TRIP

women and girls come from the remotest villages to the small towns in the district.

Just as hundreds were returning from the church services, word was spread in Kottbus that the American flyers had landed near the town. To the local population flying still is one of those great, dreamlike mysteries. The sight of an airplane alone is an object to ponder over and enjoy a whole lifetime.

Their joy knew no limit when they heard that the "miracle man" had come to their country. They rushed out to the little village of Klinge, with its one tortuous main street.

The burgermaster was one of the first to reach the plane, having commandeered Kottbus's most elegant limousine from the town's richest man. The usually undemonstrative North German official bounded out of the car at the sight of the plane in the clover field, ran up and hugged both Mr. Chamberlin and Mr. Levine.

A GLASS OF BEER

A glass of beer was the first thing they wanted, and food.

"What food?" was the query of the proud owner of the old inn on the market place in Kottbus, opposite the church.

"All the food you have," was the reply of the famished, overworked man, who lived on three oranges and a few sandwiches from the moment they started the flight until they landed near Kottbus.

The best thing the host could think of was the national dish, eel cooked "in Polish style."

The aviators when leaving America expressed the wish for a drink of good Pilsener beer in Germany, but that was not available in the small town. They were given instead "Erlanger Reif Brau," a heavy dark Munich beer.

Tonight they feasted on young geese, while kegs of fresh Pilsener beer arrived by special airplanes at Kottbus to give the aviators the drink which has been awaiting them in the center of Tempelhofer air field ever since 5 o'clock this morning.

"The first and only thing we want to do is to finish the job we started—fly to Berlin," were Mr. Chamberlin's first words on reaching Kottbus, ninety miles southeast of Berlin, after shaking hands with Dewitt C. Poole, counselor of the American Embassy in Berlin, representing official America, and the chiefs of the German aviation service, who flew to Kottbus in a special airplane to meet the American flyers.

Their machine is in the soft, marshy meadow in which the airplane dived its nose this noon, snapping off the propellor. A new propellor arrived by airplane from Berlin, and three mechanics are working feverishly while Mr. Chamberlin is surveying the work and enjoying every minute of the day of sincere, deep-felt enthusiasm and admiration being showered on him and Mr. Levine, refusing to think of sleep. He is disappointed that they failed to reach Berlin directly, but the joy and exultation of the crowds convince him that even if they failed to reach their goal in one great sweep, every man, woman and child is proud of his achievement.

Mr. Levine and he fought a gigantic battle—not only against physical exhaustion, but nature turned against them. Terrific storms rose in their path.

CAUGHT IN STORM

"We didn't have the luck of Capt. Lindbergh," Mr. Chamberlin said. "We were caught in a fierce storm off the coast of Ireland. It continued until we crossed the channel. At times we had to fly 20,000 feet high.

"We found good weather on the continent. It lasted until we reached Dortmund, and then a fog got in our way. We tried to circumvent it, which cost us time and gas. So we were forced to land at Eisleben, but were unable properly to replenish our supply."

Mr. Chamberlin bought 100 quarts of gasoline. With this he started out at 9 o'clock this morning into the heavy fog spread over the Hartz Mountains and middle of Germany.

"But our air instrument had gone back on us 300 miles out," he said.

The maps the aviators have along were insufficient to help them pick the straightest route to Berlin.

"I never saw a country with so many chimney stacks in my life," Mr. Chamberlin declared, smiling whimsically. "But what we saw in the minutes when the fog lifted certainly looked tidy."

Mr. Chamberlin looks boyish after his long flight. It is only after scanning his face carefully that you can detect the lines of the strain around his eyes. In his aviator's outfit—leather jacket, plus fours and golf stockings—he is the picture of a sportsman ready to grapple with life.

Mr. Levine has a harder time. He is exhausted and even his efforts to smile were weak and futile. He is walking as a somnambulist. The Tribune correspondent asked him: "How do you feel to be back on firm ground?"

"I am still dazed by the strain," Mr. Levine replied, with as close to a grin as his tired face would permit. "It is certainly nice to be here in Germany—Germany, you know."

Mr. Chamberlin is still going strong. He is out on the field, surveying the work on his airplane and studying the ground for the possibility of taking off from there.

Tonight all of Kottbus who could ride or hike took part in the torchlight procession in honor of the flyers.

The pride of Kottbus, the town band, insisted on serenading the American flyers. They had new American instruments, a saxophone and all the paraphernalia of a jazz band, and they marched up before the door of the old-fashioned room where the flyers were seeking a moment of rest. It was high noon, but they were wearing dinner jackets that were rusty in the sunlight, but clean and well pressed. This was their most festive garb and they played the best American piece they had learned until the burgomaster rushed up to protect the rest of his heroes. But is was in vain.

CROWDS CHEER FLYERS

Thousands were clamoring for a sight of the Americans, the same as years ago, when they gathered on the sidewalks to see emperors and kings.

Mr. Chamberlin and Mr. Levine came to the window and smiled at the crowds as the monarchs of yore. While the mob was cheering the town fire engine raced through the crowd, wildly clanging its bell to announce a big fire. But though they were in danger of being run over none of the crowd looking up to the American even noticed the clamoring fire engine.

At 9 o'clock tonight Mr. Chamberlin for the last time inspected his plane. He was so tired that friends expected he would collapse any minute. Later he and Mr. Levine saw thousands pass their windows with torch lights. Then Mr. Charmberlin finally retired for the day.

The burgomaster announced that besides giving the title of honorary citizen of the town to the Americans, he would name a street after them.

The village of Klinge held a meeting of the elders and decided to erect a memorial in the clover field where the Columbia landed. A special levy is being imposed on the villagers to pay for the expenses of the artistic work on the memorial.

RECORD FLIGHT ENTHUSES FRENCH

PARIS, June 6. (Exclusive)—Only by landing at Le Bourget Field itself could Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine have aroused more enthusiasm in France.

Their exploit has fired the country's imagination and aroused general genuine enthusiasm second only to the unheard-of and doubtless never-to-be-repeated sensation that the arrival of that slim youngster from St. Louis, Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, loosed on that memorable Saturday night a couple of weeks ago at Le Bourget.

The war is over, there is no doubt about that, when France acclaims an American flyer who landed in Germany after his original goal was Paris with such wholeheartedness. The French newspapers have printed not a single innuendo aimed to detract from the praise heaped on Chamberlin and his impetuous passenger because they landed across the Rhine.

BRITONS LOUD IN PRAISE OF FLYERS

LONDON, June 6. (Exclusive)—Unstinted praise is given to Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine for the second Atlantic crossing. The opinion here is that their accomplishment and Capt. Lindbergh's is about even. The British think that while Chamberlin flew farther, he had the advantage of a companion, whereas Lindy accomplished his distance alone.

Sir Cobham, the British air hero, today said the Columbia's flight will bring very near the day of a trans-Atlantic service, pointing out that it is only eighteen years since M. Bleriot flew across the channel, and there is now a cross-channel time table for planes.

All the newspapers measure the practical value of the flight and declare Mr. Chamberlin's accomplishment as the second flyer to make the crossing disproves the theory of luck. It is suggested that the next feat should be refilling the gasoline tank in mid-Atlantic from an airplane sent up from a steamer.

ROME DISAPPOINTED, YET ELATED AT EXPLOIT

ROME, June 6. (AP)—Although disappointed at the decision of Chamberlin and Levine to fly to Germany instead of to Italy, the people of Rome today hailed with unstinted enthusiasm the achievement of spanning the Atlantic from New York for the second time in a little more than a fortnight.

Newspapers almost invariably refer to the Bellanca plane Columbia, used in the flight, as a "magnificent product of Italian genius," this being a reference to the nationality of Giuseppe Bellanca, builder of the plane, who was born in Sicily.

FAVORABLE WINDS STRUCK OVER OPEN SEA

KOTTBUS (Germany) June 6. (AP)—Favorable winds enabled the Columbia to negotiate the open sea between Cape Race and the British Isles in twenty-one hours, and it was not until Chamberlin entered the channel that the meteorological conditions turned unfavorable.

Describing the remarkable flight, in the course of an informal narrative, Chamberlin said: "When we got above Boulogne-Sur-Mer we decided to steer a northeasterly course and headed for Cobiens, although I don't know whether we actually flew in that direction."

Contrary to previous intentions, which contemplated a northerly course direct to Cologne, Hanover and Berlin, the Columbia veered to the south, which accounts for the location of its first forced landing near Eisleben.

"About 5:30 in the morning," continued Chamberlin, "I observed that we were running low on fuel, and so decided to drop down for replenishment. The refilling of the petrol tanks was one of the most disagreeable functions of our trip.

"We threw empty cans overboard, and occasionally a full one went that way too, but I was desirous of reducing the ballast."

Chamberlin admitted that Berlin was his goal all along, only he did not wish to say so until he got there.

Half-Brother Taking Calles's Son to Funeral

NEW ORLEANS, June 6. (AP)—Arturo M. Elias, fiscal agent of Mexico to the United States and half-brother of President Calles, passed through New Orleans today en route to Mexico City to attend the funeral of Mrs. Calles. He is accompanied by the President's son, Alfredo.

NEW HONOR FOR LINDBERGH

Shirley J. Short, holder of the Harmon trophy, and Harry G. Smith, another of the crack flyers of the air mail. They will fly with the huge convoy of army and navy planes which will accompany the Memphis up the river.

Carrying forward its plans for the entertainment of the distinguished young American, the semiofficial reception committee decided today that during his triumphal journey over historic Pennsylvania avenue, Col. Lindbergh will have with him in the automobile only John Hays Hammond, chairman of the committee.

Mr. Hammond will accompany the aviator up the steps to the President's stand at the Washington Monument grounds and present him to President Coolidge. The committee chairman then will retire, leaving only the President and the hero of the New York-to-Paris hop atop the towering platform in the full view of perhaps 500,000 people.

THREE IN CABINET

Besides the reception committee and the District of Columbia commissioners, the governing body of Washington, Lindbergh will be met at the navy yard by the Cabinet committee of three, Postmaster-General New and Secretaries Dwight Davis and Wilbur.

President Coolidge is expected to send a White House automobile bearing the seal of the Federal government, to the President's wharf for use by Col. Lindbergh. A similar car also probably will be placed at the disposal of Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, mother of the flyer, when she arrives in Washington early Saturday morning from her home in Detroit, she will go direct from the Union Station to the temporary White House on Du Pont Circle.

During his first day in Washington, Col. Lindbergh is booked for three addresses—one after the President pins the Distinguished Flying Cross on him at the monument grounds and the others at receptions to be given him that night by the Minnesota Society and the National Press Club.

Arrangements are being made by the National Broadcasting Company to broadcast all three addresses to all corners of the country through the red, blue and orange networks. The hook-up will be made promptly at noon with a description broadcast of the arrival at the navy yard and the parade in his honor. Later the stations will put on the air the official welcoming ceremonies at the Monument Grounds.

Upwards of fifty or more radio stations over the country, including the orange stations at San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Spokane, Seattle and Oakland will broadcast the Lindbergh ceremonies, the National Broadcasting Company announced.

An elaborate display of fireworks, both by day and night, in honor of Lindbergh will be given at the Monument Grounds. The day show will begin immediately after the welcoming ceremonies.

First there will be a salvo of 101 aerial bomb salutes; then twenty-five banner shells with slogans; twenty-five American flag shells and twenty-five bombs producing a battle cloud and smoke effect.

The night display will be even more elaborate and the reception committee has approved an expenditure of several thousand dollars to cover the cost.

Invitations for Lindbergh to attend this function and that continue to pour into the committee. The United States Flag Association, of which President Coolidge is an honorary president, requested that the aviator attend vesper flag services on the east portion of the Capitol at 5 p.m., next Sunday, while officials of the Commerce Department desire to give a tea in his honor at which would be invited representatives of commercial aviation.

The committee decided that it would not enlarge the program it has outlined, leaving to Col. Lindbergh which ones of the hundreds of invitations he will accept. These will be placed in a package Thursday, taken to Lakehurst, N. J., by airplane and in turn taken by the Los Angeles to Lindbergh at sea so he can examine them before he lands.

AIR MAIL LETTERS TO WELCOME HERO URGED

Southern California was asked yesterday by Postmaster O'Brien to aid in the nation-wide reception for Col. Lindbergh upon his return to the United States by sending air-mail congratulations addressed to the heroic flyer at Washington.

Since Col. Lindbergh developed his flying skill in the contrast air mail service, greetings by air from all sections of the country will be particularly appropriate.

It was pointed out that it is President Coolidge's expressed wish that the reception to Lindbergh be as representative of the whole nation as possible so that Postmaster-General New has requested all sections of the country to welcome the flyer and send congratulations by air mail.

Letters should be addressed to Col. Lindbergh in care of the Postmaster-General at Washington, D. C. It is expected that hundreds of thousands of letters will go over the airways to Washington to greet the hero upon his arrival. A flood of these letters are expected from Southern California, since it was Southern California that mothered the plane which made Lindbergh's remarkable feat possible.

LINDBERGH SENDS GREETING TO CHAMBERLIN

UNITED STATES CRUISER MEMPHIS, June 6. (By Wireless to the Associated Press)—When Col. Lindbergh heard that the Bellanca Plane Columbia had landed at Eisleben, he sent a radio congratulating the Columbia's pilot, Clarence D. Chamberlin, and remarked to correspondents: "It was a very fine piece of work and another feather in the cap of aviators. Feats such as the Columbia's all have a tendency to aid in the development of aviation throughout the world."

Ships which pass in the night, as well as the day, are eager to salute the first New York-to-Paris flyer. The captain of the Memphis this morning received a message from Capt. Fried of the President Roosevelt, saying that the 600 passengers on his steamer were eager to get a glimpse of Lindbergh. He requested the course of the Memphis, which was sent him.

It is expected that the vessels will meet, and the American flying ace intends to stand on the bridge and acknowledge the tribute.

The Memphis will deliver Col. Lindbergh to Washington on time, Admiral Burrage said today, barring unforeseen weather. The wind and sea have moderated considerably and tonight the cruiser is making up time lost yesterday owing to headwinds.

The admiral expects to arrive at the Virginia Capes early Friday evening, thus allowing plenty of time to steam leisurely the rest of the way to keep the aviator's important appointments with the President and the people.

British Airmen Plan Long Trip in Flying Boats

LONDON, June 6. (Exclusive)—Four Royal Air Force flying boats will in a few months attempt a flight from England to Singapore and on to Australia. Group Captain H. M. Cave-Brown will command the flight, which will be via the Mediterranean, thence to Singapore and along the Dutch East Indies to Australia.

An extended flight around the Australian coast with Australian flying boats will be undertaken. Ultimately the four British machines probably will become part of the establishment at the Singapore naval base.

Supermarine-Southampton flying boats, each fitted with two Napier-Lyon 450-horsepower engines will be used. They will be of a new metal-hulled type, which by reason of its lightness and imperviousness to the absorption of water, has an increased range.

NEW BALKAN CRISIS FEARED

investigation of Balkan affairs by the League of Nations.

Political observers here are keenly interested in Mussolini's attitude on the present friction between Jugo-Slavia and Albania. It is felt that Rome may be playing an important role behind the scenes through the medium of the Albanian Foreign Minister, Fej Zuli Ali Zotta, who with Ahmed Zogu, the President, is susceptible to Italian influence.

So far Mussolini apparently is casting his weight on the side of peace, for it was at his instigation that Zogu personally telegraphed the Jugo-Slavia Foreign Minister promising to release Gjourachkovitch if the Belgrade note demanding his release would be toned down. This was refused. Dispatches from Durazzo leave the present status of the arrested dragoman vague. He seems not to have been released, as was announced earlier.

ALBANIA OUTLINES CASE TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS

TIERNANA (Albania) June 6. (AP) The Albanian government has sent a communication to the secretariat of the League of Nations presenting the Albanian side of the controversy over the arrest of an employee of the Jugo-Slav Legation which has led to the breaking of diplomatic relations between Albania and Jugo-Slavia.

At the same time the government issued to the press a somewhat similar statement presenting the Albanian viewpoint. The Jugo-Slav Charge d'Affaires, acting on the orders of his government, already has started with his staff for Belgrade.

The government's statement says that the Albanian government in a spirit of "exceptional deference" proposed to have the case investigated and later sought to have the tone of the Jugo-Slav protest softened, because of its alleged undiplomatic language, but that instead the Jugo-Slav Charge asked for his passport.

Declaring that the arrest of M. Gjourachkovitch, an employee of the Jugo-Slav Legation, was fully justified by the discovery of compromising papers on him indicating espionage, the statement said that the man, for whom the Jugo-Slav Charge claimed diplomatic immunity, was an Albanian subject and that the Albanian government never had been informed of his having an official status at the Jugo-Slav Legation.

"Nevertheless," says the Communique, "on the instance of the Jugo-Slav Charge d'Affaires, the Albanian government proposed to examine the case in a spirit of exceptional deference when there arrived on May 1 a letter in which Jugo-Slavia termed the attitude of the Albanian government as 'brutal and contrary to international rights'."

Grauman's Offer for Western Flight Spurs Aviators of Two Nations

Japanese Reported Planning Entry as Los Angeles Builds Plane

HONOLULU, June 6. (Exclusive)—The Nippu Jiji, a local Japanese newspaper, states that Japanese army and navy flyers plan a nonstop flight from Tokio to America next year.

With Col. Lindbergh on his way to America and the Bellanca plane in Germany renewed interest in the $25,000 offer for a nonstop flight across the Pacific from Los Angeles to Tokio was manifested yesterday.

Gov. Young in a wire to Mr. Grauman said:

"All of us hope that the proposed Pacific flight may also be accomplished through the courage of an American aviator. It will be a great victory for our country as well as a means of cementing friendly relations between the United States and the Orient."

LINDBERGH INTERESTED

Mr. Grauman also has received a radio message from Charles Lindbergh, now at sea on his way to Washington, in which the trans-Atlantic hero assures Mr. Grauman that he will get in touch with him again when he reaches America.

Among local aviators there has been much discussion, since the arrival of the Bellanca plane in Germany, of a race between the two famous planes that have crossed the Atlantic in a flight across the Pacific. Insomuch as the Grauman offer also is open to Japanese aviators who may wish to fly in the reverse direction from Tokio to Los Angeles, word is eagerly awaited from these oriental aviators through the Tokio Chamber of Commerce.

PLANE BUILDING HERE

Announcement that a mystery airplane is being built in Los Angeles for a nonstop flight from Los Angeles to Tokio, was make yesterday by Derek White, head of an advertising agency here and former airplane designer. The unnamed aviator is the first to announce his entry for the Tokio flight. The aviator, who is a former United States Air Service pilot and who served in France with the American forces, has contracted for the single-motor airplane to be completed in less than sixty days and expects to make the flight before the end of July.

POWERFUL MOTOR

A single air-cooled engine will be used, similar to the motor used by Lindbergh and Chamberlin in their flights from New York to Europe, but with twice the power.

The airline distance from Los Angeles to Tokio is 5500 miles and to accomplish the trip it will be necessary to break the world's endurance record of fifty-one hours and the world's distance record.

MUST MAKE LAND

The plane, which will be a land machine, will carry 1382 gallons of gasoline, as compared to the 450 gallons carried by Lindbergh in his New York-to-Paris flight, and will be equipped with a complete set of navigating instruments but no facilities for alighting on the water.

The unnamed pilot is financing the ship himself, according to White, and will supervise its construction throughout. He is risking his own money and his life on his confidence of success.

HONOLULU ORGANIZING COMMITTEE ON FLIGHT

HONOLULU, June 6. (AP)—Lieutenant-Commander Millington B. McComb of the Pearl Harbor Naval Air Station today was appointed as the Navy's member of the Honolulu Flight Committee. The committee will officiate over flights made to Hawaii in competition for the Dole $25,000 and $10,000 prizes. It is made up of three civilians, one Army and one Navy representative.

HOME TOWN OF AVIATOR CELEBRATES

Pageant Symbolizes Rise of Chamberlin from 'Bike' Rider to Ocean Spanner

DENISON (Iowa) June 6. (AP)—Ten hours after Clarence Chamberlin and Charles Levine landed near Eisleben, Germany, Chamberlin's home town staged its first celebration on the achievement of the aviator who was born, reared and educated here.

The celebration opened with a band concert by high school musicians of Denison, Harlan and Ida Grove, augmented by Denison business men. A parade followed the concert.

In the procession was a baby buggy portraying a sign which read "Chink's first ride." Chamberlin was known here by the nickname "Chink." The second exhibit was a small bicycle labeled "Chink's second ride;" the third, a larger bicycle; the fourth, an antiquated auto, the second ever to be operated here; the fifth, a motorcycle and the sixth a miniature airplane—all symbols of Chamberlin's rise to fame.

After the parade, Lieut.-Gov. Kimball praised Chamberlin's flight, declaring it opened the way for commercial aviation between the United States and Europe.

A little later, in October, Denison will hold another celebration to be known as Chamberlin Day, during a three-day festival. Chamberlin will be the honor guest.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Chamberlin, parents of the aviator, returned to Denison today from Omaha where they awaited news of their son in the offices of the Associated Press.

They arrived here in the midst of the celebration.

AIR SUPREMACY FORECAST

Inventor of Motor in Lindbergh and Chamberlin Planes Says America Will Lead World

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—The performance of the motor in the Bellanca monoplane which carried Chamberlin and Levine from New York to Germany means that within the next two years there will be more commercial flying in the United States than "in all the rest of the world put together," Charles L. Lawrance, president of Wright Aeronautical Corporation, told Associated Press today.

Lawrance, who is inventor of the 500-pound Wright motor which carried the plane across the Atlantic, said the engine, by setting the world record of more than 3600 miles nonstop flying, had proved the essential qualities for commercial work. These qualities, he said, were economy and durability.

"What commercial flying needs is not essentially lightness or even speed, but reliability," he said. "The motor which Chamberlin used, identical with that used by Capt. Lindbergh and by Commander Byrd, last year, got the flyers where they want to go. Its points are its conservation of power and the fact that it doesn't need often to be overhauled."

PRINCIPLE EXPLAINED

Lawrance explained the cylinders of the motors are so designed that more energy is produced for every explosion than by previous motors, thus giving a practical maximum of power with a minimum gasoline consumption. It was this motor which set the world's endurance flight record by Chamberlin and Acosta.

Although put out by Wright Aeronautical Corporation at Patterson, N. J., and called a Wright motor, the motor is in reality a Lawrance motor, in that it is the creation of Lawrance, who has been working on it since 1918. Orville Wright, surviving member of the Wright brothers, is not connected with the Wright Aeronautical Corporation and has nothing to do with the present product.

The Wright brothers, said Lawrance, were connected with the Wright-Martin Company before and during the war, and turned out thousands of motors for the government. When the war demand ceased, the output was cut, and a new, smaller organization was begun, called the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, taking over the Wright stock and the Wright name. Lawrance of the Lawrance Aero Engine Company joined the aeronautical corporation in 1925, developing his motor for the corporation he now heads.

Lawrance, who is vice-president of the National Air Transport Company, which was awarded the air mail contract between New York and Chicago, believes the commercial flying situation in the United States is "different, but not behind," that of Europe.

"In Europe," he said, "commercial flying is helped by passenger-carrying by government subsidies, which make the passenger fare not much higher than first-class railroad tickets. But passengers, at the present stage, take up room and demand comfort.

"The main revenue here is in express and mail, but the passenger carrying will come. At present the night-flying facilities here are better than in Europe.

"Our commercial mileage is surprising. From Dallas to Chicago we fly 2000 miles a day, and from New York to Chicago the schedule calls for two planes each way daily. These routes are longer than all the French routes put together, and in two years more there will be more commercial flying in the United States than in all the rest of the world put together."

PRAISES FLIGHTS

Chamberlin's flight, close on the heels of Lindbergh's, has demonstrated that the Atlantic Ocean can be crossed by airplane without use of astronomical observations, Commander Richard E. Byrd said.

"These two flights show, as I see it," he said, "that within ten years regular trans-Atlantic air travel will be possible.

"The indications are that Chamberlin used rare good judgment in running his engine at the most economical revolutions, and so conserved his motor and made his remarkable flight possible."

The man who flew over the North Pole and expects to make other long-distance flights in the America, in the near future, praised Chamberlin's judgment in getting around a storm which might have proved fatal and called attention to the pilot's endurance, which Byrd called "almost superhuman."

"Chamberlin demonstrated again that he is a truly great pilot," the naval officer said, "for he seems to have been able to turn every wind to his advantage by flying at various altitudes, instead of taking his winds where he found them.

"These two great flights have been missions of good will and aviation has been made a peace messenger through them," he added.

HOOVER FORECASTS ERA OF TRANSOCEAN FLYING

LITTLE ROCK (Ark.) June 6. (AP) An era in which airplanes will be in general transoceanic use will come in a few years, Secretary of Commerce Hoover predicted today in commenting on the record flight of the Columbia from New York to Germany.

"Chamberlin and Lindbergh have proved by their flights that airplanes can be used practicably for long-distance commercial travel," said Mr. Hoover. "It will be a matter of only a few years until planes will be making regular flights across the Atlantic and Pacific in commercial service.

"The two American trans-Atlantic flights have created many possibilities for commercial aviation. How long it will take to work out details for regular service is a matter of conjecture, but I'm sure it will be but a few years."

EARLY COMMERCIAL OCEAN FLIGHTS HAILED

ST. JOSEPH (Mo.) June 6. (AP)—The trans-Atlantic flight by Chamberlin and Levine "is another testimonial to American air supremacy," F. Trubee Davison, assistant Secretary of War, declared here today.

Other aeronautical experts here for the opening today of the first annual conference for development of commercial aviation, expressed similar views.

"Within a fortnight, two American pilots, two American-made planes, and one American passenger have crossed the Atlantic on the most spectacular nonstop flights so far written in aviation history," Davison said.

"The conquering of the air by Lindbergh and Chamberlin is adequate proof that such services can be instituted," said Porter H. Adams, president of National Aeronautic Association. "Provisions will have to be made, however, for landing places for fuel before planes leave the Newfoundland coast and after they reach the coast of Ireland.

"By carrying only enough fuel to take them from New York to Newfoundland, the trans-Atlantic planes would have plenty of room for passengers and mail. Before leaving the North American continent, they would refuel for the hop across the water, and land at some air station in Ireland before continuing on their flight to England, France and other European countries."

More than a score of aviation experts are here for the conference, which is sponsored by the St. Joseph Chamber of Commerce, the St. Joseph chapter of the National Aeronautic Association and the St. Joseph Aeronautic Association.

BUILDER OF PLANE CITES NEEDED FEATURES

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—The two nonstop crossings of the Atlantic prove that commercial transportation of passengers and freight across the Atlantic is near at hand, Guiseppe M. Bellanca, designer of the Bellanca monoplane Columbia, predicted today.

Trimotored planes of a type to make landings in water will be used, the designer said.

A first essential of the planes to be used in commercial trans-Atlantic flights, Bellanca said, will be that they fly in perfect ballast and full load using less than 80 per cent of the total horsepower of the three motors.

"The endurance of the pilot cannot be questioned," Bellanca said, in speaking of the flight of the Columbia. "He flew under all kinds of weather, much of which was adverse, and he ought to be commended. I am highly pleased at his great work.

"Now is America's great opportunity with its great resources, its immense coast line, and its financial and industrial facilities, to become leader of all the aviation movement."

SMALL GIRL HURT BY ENRAGED BULL

SAN RAFAEL, June 6. (Exclusive) Elsie Mello, 12 years of age, and her sister, Evelyn, 16, lay side by side in Cottage Hospital here tonight, the former suffering from an eight-inch gash in her thigh inflicted by an infuriated bull and the latter recovering from a serious illness. The girls, with two other sisters and a brother, have been helping their widowed mother run a dairy ranch near Ignatio, Marin county. While the mother was absent, Elsie went into a field with a bucket of feed for the bull. The bull charged her without warning. Just as she reached a barbed wire fence, one horn caught her, lifted her high into the air and crashed her into a roadway. Physicians fear she may be crippled for life.

ARMS BOARD SELECTED

Coolidge Names Delegates

Hugh S. Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium, Appointed as Chairman

President Decides to Send Only Technical Experts to Conference

WASHINGTON, June 6. (Exclusive) President Coolidge today announced the personnel of the American delegation to the three-power arms conference, which will present his formal proposals for a further limitation of naval armaments.

The members of the delegation are:

Hugh S. Gibson, American Ambassador to Belgium, chairman of the delegation; Rear-Admiral Hilary P. Jones, general board of the Navy, delegate.

For the Department of State:

Frederic R. Dolbeare, counselor of legation at Berne; George A. Gordon, secretary of legation at Budapest; S. Pinckney Tuck, Consul at Geneva; Allen W. Dulles, legal adviser; David A. Salmon, chief archivist.

HOPES CONSIDERED

For the Navy Department:

Rear-Admiral Andrew T. Long, Rear-Admiral Frank H. Schofield, Capt. J. M. Reeves, Capt. Arthur J. Hepburn, Capt. Adolphus Andrews, Capt. W. W. Smyth, Commander H. C. Train, Lieutenant-Commander H. M. Frost.

By agreement with the British and Japanese governments, Hugh R. Wilson, American Minister to Switzerland, has been designated as secretary-general of the conference, which will be held at Geneva beginning the 20th inst.

In naming the members of the delegation the President rejected the suggestion that the American group should be headed by Secretary of State Kellogg or Secretary of the Navy Wilbur. The British and Japanese delegations are headed by officials of ministerial rank, wherefore it was contended that the American delegation would be overshadowed unless it were headed by an official of equal rank.

The President considered the advisability of placing a Cabinet member at the head of the delegation and at one time thought of asking former Secretary of State Hughes to take the place and endeavor to repeat his performance at the first arms conference during the Harding administration. The President soon learned, however, that Mr. Hughes would not accept and eventually he decided against sending either Secretary Kellogg or Secretary Wilbur.

NAMES BODY OF EXPERTS

One factor in the decision was the desire of the President to make the delegation as nearly as possible a body of technical experts. He wants it to be devoid of any political atmosphere, such as pervaded the first arms conference. The President is proceeding on the assumption that the limitation of naval armaments by the chief naval power is now a recognized principle. That principle was established as a result of the political negotiations of the first arms conference. No further political negotiations are needed and all that is needed is the application of the principle by naval experts to cruisers, destroyers, submarines and other auxiliaries, the construction of which was not limited by the Harding conference.

In line with that reasoning, the President has constituted a delegation of experts.

ONE TINY TRAGEDY TELLS HORRORS OF FLOOD AREA

Noted Writer Cites Incident to Emphasize Suffering That Thousands Endure

[All the horror and tragic suffering of the Mississippi flood are set forth for the first time in this series of articles written by Harris Dickson, author of the "Old Reliable" stories, following his tour of the inundated area. This is the third of the articles.]

BY HARRIS DICKSON

[Copyright, 1927, in all countries by North American Newspaper Alliance.]

VICKSBURG (Miss.) June 6. (Exclusive)—Across the narrow porch a rattlesnake went wriggling. Not to get out of the house, but to get in.

To the door came a man, a white man with anxious face, with eyes that narrowed as he squinted through the dusk.

Behind him a lamp burned dimly on the table. A new baby wailed. From the bedside a withered old woman rose and followed the man.

"Mrs. Pullen," the husband, asked in a whisper, "does you think She's got a chance?"

"Mebbe, Jim, mebbe. Pervidin' she gets the hot' kind o' 'tention."

"Best 'tention," Jim repeated, "an' this water a risin' so fast."

Jim looked down, and in looking down he saw the snake. Uncoiled. His shot gun stood against the door. But a sudden explosion might throw She again into convulsions.

Jim did not hesitate, not an instant. Two swift steps, a swifter kick and the rattler fell fifty feet away.

"What's that, Jim?" old Mrs. Pullen asked.

"Nothin', ma'am. Just a chunk o' wood. I'm so bothered about She that I gits nervous and kicks."

"WATER SO NEAR—"

Another matter worried Jim. Instead of falling with a thud, the snake had fallen with a splash.

Water. So near his house.

Steadily rising water had driven this reptile out of the lowlands. And Jim knew that there would soon be no way that he could get help to his wife in case of a desperate emergency.

Only yesterday when he'd gone for medicine, and forged a slough that was always dry, the water had come to his mule's withers. Now the same ford must be impassable. Uneasily he glanced at Mrs. Pullen, a neighbor who lived six miles away, and whom Jim had fetched to be present when She's time came.

"Jim," she stepped outside, shielding in a low tone, "Jim, if She warn't so low-lorn sick, I'd be gittin' home. Cover this back water mought cut me off."

"To tell the truth, ma'am," Jim blurted, "you're already cut off. The swamp's waist deep."

"Now'm I go get home?"

"Old knows, ma'am. Water's climbin' up every minute."

Old Mrs. Jiney Pullen, a good soul when she wanted to be, had a reputation for speaking her mind. And taking off the hide. Now she opened that crack of a mouth and shut it again without a sound. Behind her the baby wailed and Mrs. Pullen understood how Jim dreaded to be alone.

BATTLING WITH RIVER

Thusly isolated, folk were farmers, living near the head of Sunflower River, which joins the Yazoo, and flows south to the Mississippi at Vicksburg. West of them the Mississippi was forty to fifty miles away.

Jim knew that these levees were still intact, despite a tremendous flood that beat against them. Scraps of news filtered to him of a stubborn struggle that went on day and night, thousands of men piling up sacks of dirt to save their northern ridges and ward off a general overflow.

Floods from the great river hadn't troubled him yet. It was a backwater from the Yazoo, creeping up inch by inch.

Jim Massey was not a man of cultured instincts. His ideas were crude, but square and honest. And he loved She. Loved that baby. For their sake he had watched the mounting water a little more closely, and felt more apprehensive. Jim knew what it meant when snakes came up on his gallery.

If matters went any worse, he couldn't get help for She. Even with money, which he didn't have. At its present stage, the low lands were already covered, while the ridges were cut. No continuous path could be found for either boat or wagon.

That night Mrs. Pullen slept very little, and Jim slept not at all. So an expected rider who came before daylight, splashing through the sloughs and tearing amongst the briars, found Jim sitting on his porch wide awake. The man brought bad news, and had started to shout it aloud when Jim raised a hand to hush him, then ran out to the road, shoe-top deep in water.

SPREADING THE ALARM

"What's happened, Jodie?"

"Levee busted! Above Greenville. Got to get out o' here. It'll go plumb over yo' house."

"Wait—tell me—"

"Can't stop. Hurryin' to warn old Jenkins, up the creek—"

For a stunned instant Jim Massey stood with the water running over his shoes on a road that he could no longer see. Now a deluge from the Mississippi would sweep down on top of that. This was the only course for it to come.

What must he do? What could he do? Jim didn't know. His firm lips tightened as he moved back slowly to the house.

"She," he asked, bending over that white face on the bed, "feel any better, honey?"

"Yes, Jim," she smiled up wanly. "I'll be all right in a day or two."

Brave woman, of that pioneering breed which mothered Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett.

"Honey, can I tell you something?"

"Yes, Jim."

"Well, I gotter move you and the baby."

"What for?"

"Pressure—now don't get scared—water's likely to come in our house."

"Oh, no, Jim."

"Yes it is. Keep yo' nerve, She. The levee's broke."

"Twixt Greenville an' Rosedale."

"That'll throw it on us."

Narrowly he watched her and saw no sign of terror. But She never had been the sort that went into hysterics.

"Listen, honey. We got to keep our head. That overflow won't hit here until tomorrow, maybe. I'll walk up the old batteau, and take Mrs. Pullen with us to Barton's Ridge. It'll keep above the overflow for a couple of days more. Then when the water rises higher, a steamboat can get in there and take us off."

"Take us where?"

"To Vicksburg, honey. No other dry place."

IN VICKSBURG

Far away on the hills of Vicksburg, seven white men and one red-headed Boy Scout were huddled in a tiny office. Volunteers, through the first confusion, trying to save life.

Men rushed in and out, clamoring for boats—imploring that food be sent—medicines, doctors, tents; above all, boats. For God's sake send boats. That's what these seven men were doing, dispatching boats.

Three telephones jangled constantly. They had no sleep. An occasional pot of coffee. Their nerves grew tense. They snapped. And the men swore. But they did things. Did things right high. How? Nobody knew. Just did things.

The phone rang violently.

"Yes — yes. Morgan speaking. What you want?"

Then Morgan listened, as well as a man could listen in all that hullabaloo, with a hand cupped over his idle ear.

"What? Jim Massey's wife? And little baby? Thirty-two women and children—Barton's Ridge? Good-by!"

Morgan wheeled from the phone.

"Scout! attention!" he called to the red-headed boy.

"Yes, sir." The boy bounced up, standing at salute.

"Red, listen. A friend of mine, Jim Massey, has got his sick wife and new-born baby on Barton's Ridge. In the rain. No shelter. Mother and child may die."

Such appeals were phoned in a hundred times each day.

"Red, get me six tents—right now."

"Yes, sir. Where from?"

Ordinarily Red, the Boy Scout, did not question where, but he knew that tents were unobtainable. Soldiers, civilians, everybody demanded tents. Even the general, with the star, couldn't get them.

"GET THOSE TENTS"

"I don't care where they come from, or how. Get those tents." Morgan ordered. "Sir. Load them at once on the boat we are sending up the Sunflower River."

"Yes, sir." Again the salute. Red was gone.

"Morgan," one of his assistants growled, "where the devil do you expect that kid to find tents?"

"No idea. But Red hasn't missed finding anything yet."

An hour. Two hours. Three hours. In stifling, hot, humid and scarred. Canal, mules.

"Report. Six wall tents loaded on boat."

"Love o' Mike!" the paralyzed Morgan exclaimed. "How'd you get 'em?"

"Da gang got 'em. Da Dirty Dozen. I took half of 'em out to Camp Byrne. We had two tents already down before them soldiers caught on. So many of 'em, an' biggern us, we had to beat it. Then we jumped a truck back to town to see where they was gettin' tents from. Out of a box car, sidetracked on the A. and V. No chance to swipe none, 'cause they had two soldiers all the time on guard."

"But, Mr. Morgan, we had to have tents. Couldn't let that baby die in the rain. So I borrowed my brother's flivver and parked it behind that box car, on the other side. Then we waited until the truck drove away, an' 'twarn't nobody there except two millish. Our gang divided. Three of 'em stayed with the flivver. The other three sneaked around front and began chunking bricks at the soldiers. After our three in front plugged them soldiers a few times, they got riled and chased the Dirties. That gave us our chance to open the back door of the box car and get what you sent us after.

"I report, sir, that six tents is loaded on the Sunflower boat."

NEW FLOOD CREST NOW RACES DOWN MISSISSIPPI

NEW ORLEANS, June 6. (AP)—The flood situation in the Lower and Central Mississippi Valley presented a contrasting picture tonight.

While the crest of the April and May flood tapered out to sea, both through the main channel and through broken dikes and down the Atchafalaya River basin, a new but smaller crest moved down the Mississippi, maintaining flood stages from St. Louis to the Gulf.

With Arkansas streams reported inundating lands from where the April flood had receded, prospects were that the flood in the Lower Mississippi Valley, particularly in the Tensas and Atchafalaya basins would be prolonged.

Loads Firewood With Dynamite to Blow Up Wife

MADRID (Wis.) June 6. (Exclusive) Fred Siebert, 33 years of age, confessed in the County Jail today that he tried to blow up his wife by placing a charge of dynamite in a stick of firewood at the farm home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John White, near Rockdale.

The stick of dynamite had been placed in a hollowed out piece of firewood which had been plugged to look like the rest of the wood on the pile. Mrs. Siebert has been living with her parents pending the outcome of action for a divorce.

Friday afternoon Mrs. Siebert split some wood for the kitchen stove, when she noticed that one of the pieces contained some object wrapped in newspapers. She called her father who identified the object as a stick of dynamite and notified the Sheriff.

FLOOD HORRORS HAUNT HIM

Visitor Describes Conditions Along Mississippi; Benefits Swell Relief Fund

"I think I will hear forever the cries of women and children and the continual roaring of water," said Edward J. Louviere, a guest at the Mayfair Hotel who arrived here recently from his home in Lafayette, La. "You people who have not seen it," he continued, "can have no conception of the horror and devastation throughout the flooded area. I have seen many people who, when told that it would be absolutely necessary for them to vacate their homes, refuse and remain to be drowned rather than give up what they have struggled a lifetime to acquire."

"I have seen many persons turn into raging maniacs from the effects of the things they have seen and the hardships they have suffered. And worst of all is the plight of the children. They don't understand why they are leaving home and where they are going and everything possible is being done in the refugee camps to divert their attention from the conditions under which they are living."

DISEASE FEARED

Lafayette, Louviere said, is a mound of about 5000 inhabitants and is the only dry spot in the district for miles around. There are now approximately 20,000 refugees there living in camps under the direction of the Red Cross and even though all that is humanly possible is being done to prevent the outbreak of disease, he said there is great fear that it may not be diverted. The odor of the waters, he declared, is sickening, from the thousands of dead things floating in them, and the trees are filled also. He has seen trees with literally hundreds of snakes hanging in them, he said.

The highway leading into Lafayette from the outlying districts was like the "Big Parade," Louviere continued, when for ten days and nights after the people had been told to leave their homes, they poured in a steady, solid stream into the town of Lafayette. They came on foot and in every conceivable form of vehicle, carrying household goods, furniture, food and clothing with them and were directed into the refugee camps, where they must be taken care of for some time to come.

Louviere was in volunteer service with the State militia throughout the district and saw conditions at first hand.

RELIEF FUND TOTAL

The Times fund for the relief of the Mississippi Valley flood victims up to 3 p.m. yesterday had reached a total of $164,492.81.

Red Cross figures showed a total of $620,407 up to the same hour, with the day's contributions amounting to $10,056. Donations from outlying districts keep coming in steadily. Yesterday, a check for $191.60 from a midnight benefit at the Egyptian Theater in Maywood brought the Huntington Park and Maywood district's total up to $1462.05. Through the Orange Chamber of Commerce the pupils of the Orange Intermediate school sent $14.15. The Hollywood Citizen added $67.50 to its fund, making a total of $1248.75 and $12.50 given as contributions at a party came from the vocational teachers' training classes of the University of California at Los Angeles.

On the 18th inst. the Los Angeles Auctioneers' Association will have a gigantic auction sale at 831 South Broadway to help swell the fund. They are asking that persons who have worth-while things which they would like to contribute should send them to the above address or phone MEtropolitan 1543 and leave word to have them called for.

With more than $300 cleared, the "white-elephant" sale being conducted by the United Church Women of Los Angeles, started off with a bang yesterday, the opening day of the sale, which is scheduled to continue to the 18th inst.

At noon, Mrs. David B. Covell, chairman of the sale, turned over $138 to the Red Cross and the remainder of the proceeds were acknowledged at the conclusion of the day. Church women of every denomination assisted with the sale at the Jonathan Club.

Added to the contribution of articles to be sold yesterday was a Shetland pony, donated by Florence Lowe Barnes, traveler and writer of Pasadena.

Farm Machinery Company Freed of Trust Charge

WASHINGTON, June 6. (AP)—The International Harvester Company was held by the Supreme Court today to have complied with the consent decree arranged to restore competitive market conditions in its field.

The question whether the International Harvester Company was monopolizing the harvesting machinery business had been a bone of contention between the government and the company, off and on, for years.

In 1912 the government asked the Federal District Court for Minnesota to dissolve the company, which was organized through the purchase of five harvesting machinery concerns.

After protracted litigation, including several oral arguments in the Supreme Court, the company in 1918 consented to a decree which required it to restore competitive conditions within eighteen months after the end of the World War. The government had contended for a dissolution of the company into three independent corporations, with wholly separate owners, stockholders and managers.

In July, 1923, the government again went into the Federal District Court for Minnesota, asserting that the company had failed to comply with the decree. The company insisted that it had complied, and the court decided against the government, which appealed to the Supreme Court.

LINDBERGH BROADCAST ARRANGED

Microphones Along Line of March in Washington Will Describe Ceremonial

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—Through arrangement with the Washington reception committee the welcome ceremonies for Charles Lindbergh, first New York to Paris flyer, will be broadcast by radio all over the United States on June 11, Merlin Hall Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, announced tonight.

"Beginning at noon, Washington time (1 p.m. New York daylight saving time, and 9 a.m. Pacific Coast time,) microphones placed along the line of march in the Capital City will carry a vivid description of the ceremonial program to what we believe will be the largest radio audience in the history of broadcasting," he said.

"Listeners will be able to hear the cheering of the throngs, the music of the bands and, finally, from the foot of Washington monument, the voice of President Coolidge in his presentation of the Distinguished Flying Cross to Col. Lindbergh and Lindbergh's reply.

"Following this ceremonial program, appropriate programs will be broadcast from the studios of the National Broadcasting Company in New York City until 9 p.m. eastern standard time (10 p.m. New York daylight saving time and 6 p.m. Pacific Coast time,) when the proceedings of the reception to be tendered Col. Lindbergh by Secretary Kellogg and the Minnesota Society and the tribute by the National Press Club in Washington, during which Col. Lindbergh will speak of his experiences, will be broadcast by the National Broadcasting Company to associated stations in all parts of the United States."

Court Rules on Ferries Plying Between States

WASHINGTON, June 6. (AP)—Interstate ferries are subject to regulation by the States and municipalities where they land, in the absence of action by Congress, the Supreme Court held today in a case from Vidalia, La.

The court also held that a municipality could designate places where interstate ferries must land, but that the municipalities could not exclude companies willing to comply with reasonable regulations.

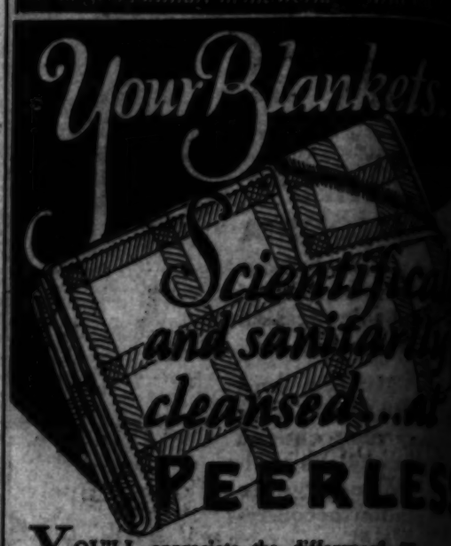
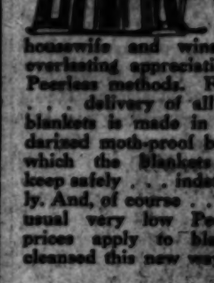
The largest Laundry in the World



YOU'LL appreciate the difference! The fluffy, clean-smelling, better-appearing blankets are returned after being cleansed by the scientific method employed at the World's Largest Laundry. Blankets are not pounded by old-fashioned washers that loosen the threads and permit shrinkage! Our new Specially designed (Glassy Smooth) monel-metal blanket washers cleanse by slowly tossing them gently to and fro . . . in pure, soft, suday water . . . carefully maintained at an even temperature that prevents shrinking. Even the soap we use costs us more.



in drying . . . the blankets are not "wrung." Centrifugal extractors draw the water out gently, without crushing pressure. Then . . . the American brushing machine carefully raises the nap on wool blankets . . . gives a soft fluffiness that delights the eye and the feel of the fingers.

housewife and wins her everlasting appreciation of Peerless methods. Finally . . . delivery of all wool blankets is made in a deodorized moth-proof bag, in which the blankets will keep safely . . . indefinitely. And, of course . . . the usual very low Peerless prices apply to blankets cleansed this new way.

"PRIM-PREST" FAMILY FINISH . . . is appealing and economical . . . everything from prize peonies . . . and those hand-crocheted bib, for which Auntie . . . gives 50c, for your plain shirts, to . . . collars to cuffs and handkerchiefs. Try it!

CALIFORNIA'S BID FOR OPEN GOLFING GLORY

Dick Linares (left,) Charles Guest and Ed Dudley, (top,) with Harry Cooper (bottom left,) and Grant Halstead, scored under a brilliant field at Bel-Air yesterday to win the five places allotted Southern California in the national open golf championship, opening at the Oakmont (Pittsburgh), club, one week from today. With Willie Hunter and Tom Stevens who have already started for the championship, the quintet pictured below will stage a determined effort to bring gold and glory back from the major competition in international golf.

Chicago Getting Just What It Should Have Expected

FOREWORD!

Rumors emanating from the East that Billy Gibson, manager of Gene Tunney, and Mike (Boo Boo) Hoff, Minneapolis fight manager, entered into an agreement whereby Gibson sold his interest in the champion to Hoff for $50,000. It is claimed that Tunney gave his written approval of the transaction and then five hours before his fight with Jack Dempsey in Philadelphia last September.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, June 6.—Judging by the scandalous gossip from Chicago and the blasted desperation of Gene Tunney within the last week, the prize-fight profession is still the same old prize-fight profession, subject to occasional moods of intelligence and refinement but low and irreverent by nature. The rewards have increased tremendously since The Dempsey-Carpentier match in New York [illegible] after the war, but notwithstanding this and the patronage of the so-called best people wearing privately-owned dress suits at the ringside, the nat-

FACE QUALIFYING PLAY FOR NATIONAL WITH 141S

Award Guest, Dudley and Halstead Three Remaining Places for Annual Championship

BY BILL WISE

Harry Cooper, youthful El Sereno professional, off with a flashy 68 at Bel-Air yesterday morning, added a 73 in the afternoon for a 36-hole aggregate of 141 to tie Dick Linares for low gross honors in the qualifying play for the national open golf championship.

Charles Guest, private secretary to Herbert Lubin; Ed Dudley, Hollywood and Grant Halstead, who recently resigned his post at Colonial here, all scored 148 strokes to claim the last three of the five places allotted Southern California in the sectional qualifying trials held for the national classic and staged over seventeen different courses, embracing all of this United States today. Willie Hunter of Brentwood, California open champion, and Tom Stevens of the California club, among the low scorers in the national last year, did not have to golf for places in the coming classic. Both left for the East last night and will be on hand when the remaining five members of California's invading host arrive at the site of the championship (Pittsburgh) next Sunday.

TRAIL COOPER

The Long Beach municipal golf instructor equalled the eighteen par in this vicinity with a 72 in the morning and was all even through seventeen holes when he slipped one over for a 5, a 71 and a two-par total of 141.

Cooper, one of the youngest golfers the distinguished game has ever known, started in his usual fearless fashion early yesterday morning and was 1 under, with a 34, at the turn. He continued striking every shot for

HARTFORD (Ct.) June 6. (AP)—Golf is third most dangerous sport so far as accident frequency is concerned, insurance fighters surpass it in danger hall and hunting surpass it in danger to the participant.

The sum represents the largest amount ever paid for any class of sport or recreational casualties.

WINDY CITY DRAGS OUT MAT-TRUST SKELETONS

CHICAGO, June 6. (AP)—Skeletons of the "wrestling trust" were dragged into public display today by the State Legislature committee investigating the Illinois Athletic Commission and the boxing situation in Chicago.

After the inquiry was adjourned tonight until next Monday, Claud Rew, State Representative from Harrisburg, Ill., said he would introduce a bill in the Legislature to repeal the act legalizing wrestling. If the investigation produced any more stories such as legislators listened to throughout the day's session.

DEMETRAL SENSATION

William Demetral, a wrestler for twenty years, provided the sensation of the day when he told the committee that he was forced to put up $5000 in cash and give a quit-claim deed to his home in Chicago as a guarantee that he would not throw Ed (Strangler) Lewis in their two matches decided in Cleveland in 1924, two years before the Illinois State Athletic Commission began to function.

The point Demetral attempted to bring out was that wrestling is controlled by a "trust" composed of Ed White of Chicago and Billy Sandow of Kansas City, manager of Lewis; that unless a wrestler listened to the dictation of the "trust," he could not obtain matches, and that Lewis persistently refused to meet any opponent considered too "tough."

Demetral admitted engaging in a

OBSERVATIONS

BY THE INNOCENT BYSTANDER
BILL HENRY

THE MORE we see of intercollegiate athletics, the more we are convinced that the athletic team of the future will be accompanied not only by a coach and a manager but by an attorney to represent it in any and all rows over technicalities. The result of the recent Coast meet at the Coliseum has been confined largely to agonized yelps. It now appears, if the papers are correct, that Stanford didn't win the meet; they were victorious partly because Templeton was smart and partly because—this is the latest charge—the Northwest teams "ganged" on U.S.C.

The latest plaint seems to be that the Washington and Oregon Aggie team deliberately juggled their entries in such a way as to help Stanford and confound U.S.C. They point out that the Washington sprinters took points away from U.S.C. and that the Northwest distance men stayed out of the mile to let Stanford pick up an extra point and that the northwesterners stayed out of the relay to let Stanford get three points there, whereas the Northwestern weight men kindly allowed Stanford to bent them in the shot and discus. Somehow or other this sounds a good deal to us like Almer's defense.

In our estimation what the colleges did there on the track is nobody's business than their own. The same rules applied to all the colleges entered and there was nothing to keep Cromwell from entering a shot-putter in the mile run if he wanted to. Also, who arranged for the Northwestern boys to beat out the Stanford javelin throwers? As far as we are concerned we thought the Trojans would win and said so. As we recollect it we did the same thing with regard to the Trojan-Card football game. But they didn't—and that's that.

We have had our attention called to the fact that they set a lot of world's prep records at Chicago Saturday, such as 9 4-5s. for the 100-yard dash, 24 1-5s. for the low hurdles and 12ft. 10½in. for the pole vault. Of course, Wyckoff has done 9.7s. for the 100, and Fayne did 23.8s. in the low hurdles, and Barnes and Williams both beat 13ft. in the pole as preps, but those apparently don't count. Perhaps our local schools don't bother to send their records east for tabulation—that seems to be the only logical explanation.

TUNNEY ANNOYED AT REPORT OF DEMPSEY BOUT SCANDAL

ural instincts of the trade seem bound to assert themselves in clever and dirtier strategems.

The Dempsey-Tunney fight looked peculiar from the first ball when Dempsey, the erstwhile rough-and-tumble fighter, went prinking across the ring like an acrobat's lady assistant and tried to give Tunney a great big hug. It looks more peculiar now that Tunney recalls a transaction in which he had business relations with a customer brought in by Abe Attell to buy a 20 per cent interest in him. Of course, it is inconceivable that Tunney did this with any idea of procuring an unfair advantage because he has a habit of lecturing on high ideals and sportsmanship and his views on such matters are very well known. Yet, Gene admits that he was afraid the low characters in the gambling profession might do something harmful to him if he refused to indorse the contract and it is easy to visualize the same low characters exerting themselves against Dempsey after Tunney pretended to accept them as business associates.

USED BOLT IN GLOVE

Twenty years ago the fight-fixer used childishly direct methods. He slipped a half-inch bolt into the boxing glove of the fighter he desired to win and took a chance that the other fellow would hit his man first. Nowadays it is more fashionable to buy up a decision in advance or disable the one who is intended to lose. This latter can be done through the stealthy operation of the subtle Mr. Michael Finn. Michael Finn is a pill. He comes from the Bowery where in days long gone by it was customary for the bartender to drop a Mickey Finn into an obstreperous customer's dram or his fiddel and wait for inevitable and terrific results. A Mickey Finn is tasteless and when it begins to perform its fell designs the victim's eyes glaze, the sweat stands out on his cold brow, his knees wobble and he feels as though he had swallowed a pound of steel filings cooked in a gravy of muriatic acid. He becomes very uncomfortable. Seasickness is said to be a pleasure compared to Finn sickness. He doesn't vomit, more's the pity, and even after the critical stage has passed he remains weak, pallid and disinterested.

There has been no charge that anyone made Jack Dempsey acquainted with the detestable Finn, but the idea comes to mind as a possibility when you consider the symptoms described as Jack Dempsey's on the day of the fight when he is said to have lost much weight and strength in a few hours and when you consider also the languid manner, for him, in which he fought Gene Tunney. It is easy to give a man a Mickey Finn.

WAS EXPECTED

The wil complainted in the move of less true hill about the state of the prize-fight business in Chicago seem to be rather routine matters. A champion was jobbed out of his title, the complaint asserts, another champion was tricked out of his, the fight clubs have paid tributes where tribute was necessary and the wrestlers, he always, wrestled according to plan. This was the sort of thing Chicago had every right to expect and if matters were otherwise there would be grounds for uneasiness as you may be sure that when the prize-fight business is pure it is up to some dirty work.

Tunney is manifesting classic annoyance because the matter of his business relations with Maxie "Boo Boo" Hoff of Philadelphia, whereby Mr. Hoff bought a 20 per cent interest in Gene from Will Gibson, the champion's step-manager, has been given belated publication. He says the affair would have been ignored if he had signed a contract to box for Jack Fugazy, the town's second-string promoter and, of course, the inference is that the reporters who dug it up are on or about Fugazy's pay roll. This is interesting, if true, and should merit investigation, but not by your correspondent, who would feel self-conscious on the job in view of the fact that he is the one who obtained the copy of the contract from Mr. Hoff.

ACE DEFEATS DEBRA AGAIN

chree and Lady V. did not complete the series.

Today they got away to a splendid start, heading straight out into the bay on the port tack. Pirate and Debra hugged the Marina and Chet by a keen advantage of the favorable tide and were last around Presidio shoals buoy. Rascal and Galliano IV rounded second and third. But on the run from the Presidio to Goat Island, Tommy Lee and Ben Weston outsmarted the fleet by setting their spinnakers to port. The other boats were forced to jib and thereby lost valuable ground. The reach from Goat Island to South Hampton sailed in a forty-mile breeze, was an even parade, with Ace leading around the buoy, followed by Pirate, Debra, Galliano IV and Rascal. The Ace ran away from her competitors in the thrash home, but Pirate led Debra in a great fight until they reached the Marina when Ben slipped through Tommy's lee. They finished in that order, Ace, Debra, Rascal and Galliano. The Pirate and Rascal were tied for third honors, the Lee gelleon nosing out Bart Weaver by fifteen seconds in the final run.

DANGER LOOMS ON GOLF LINKS

trees, lightning does the rest," was the laconic explanation. Miss Cecil Leitch, former British women's champion, suffered that mishap this spring while watching the British tournament.

Under the designation "foreign particle in the eye," six embryo Walter Hagens among the company's policyholders collected $3349 each. There were two claims for loss of sight caused by a golf ball striking the eye. Splinters, bites by insects, collisions with inanimate objects, falls and rotten trees from shrubs all contributed their share to the total of link accidents, but the most common accident was by slipping or falling on uneven ground, 243 victims having their claims allowed.

Baseball showed 634 accidents and mishaps "in country or woods," totalled 317.

FRENCH PAIR TRIM TILDEN

with La Coste and Borotra assigned to the singles tasks.

Both French pairs apparently have lifted their game several notches. The Cochet-Brugnon combination today produced some sparkling tennis and served notice, according to Gillou, that France no longer can be regarded as inferior in doubles.

There was little aftermath today to the display of animosity in yesterday's singles final between Tilden and one of the foot-fault judges, Alan H. Muhr, an American resident of Paris. Both were inclined to consider the incident closed although Muhr asserted Tilden's charge that he was unfamiliar with the rule was "preposterous" because he (Muhr) drafted it. Tilden declared he was satisfied with the result of the match but added: "These foot-faults were unpleasant incidents, coming, strangely, every time at critical stage when either the match or set was at stake."

FUGAZY TOSSED FOR LOSS

NEW YORK, June 6.—Humbert J. Fugazy was thrown for a heavy financial loss on his welterweight championship production featuring Pete Latzo and Joe Dundee, Friday night at the Polo Grounds. According to unofficial estimates, the paid attendance was 14,469 for a net gate of $83,535.33. Working on a 12½ per centage of the receipts, Dundee received $10,444. Latzo signed for 37½ per cent, but it is rumored that he was guaranteed $62,500 if he lost and that the percentage guarantee only held good if he won.

Lyons Hurls White Sox to Win Over Boston

PHILADELPHIA, June 6. (AP)—With a revamped line-up the Athletics today defeated Cleveland, 4-1, scoring three runs on Buckeye, the Indian pitcher, in the first inning. Ehmke was invincible for eight innings.

Manager Connie Mack replaced Poole, his first baseman, with Fox, third-string catcher, and benched Bill Lamar, left fielder, in favor of the veteran, Zack Wheat. Fox and Wheat came through with run-producing hits and Wheat made a spectacular catch with the bases filled in the eighth. Score:

Young Gonzales and Baby Joe Gans Tangle in Ten-Round Event at Olympic Tonight

RABBIT PUNCHES

by PAUL LOWRY

MEISTER HARLAN "DUSTY" HALL has been honoring Los Angeles with another of his quarterly calls. "Dusty," you know, is the Tournament of Roses genius who acquaints the world via the avenue of publicity with the fact that Pasadena stages a New Year's Day football game, annually.

This time "Dusty" is getting up steam on a new blaze. At a cost of $150,000 the tournament people are almost ready to start work on the closing of the south end of the horseshoe bowl, making it a perfect ellipse capable of seating 20,000 more willing souls at the January 1 gridiron struggles.

The odd point about the new addition is that it will be constructed of steel and wood instead of dirt and wood as was the horseshoe part of the bowl. When the old part was built a hole was simply scooped in the ground and the seats placed around the semi-circle. The tournament folks would have preferred to fill in the south end with dirt and rock, but found the material in sufficient quantities hard to obtain, except at great expense. Lowering the present level of the playing field three feet met with three cheers of the photographers and the box holders who wage annual warfare each year, but this method provided only one-fifth enough dirt. Ergo, steel was the last resort.

And those twenty-five-foot wide and twenty-foot high tunnels which we were told about when the new addition was first announced are to serve a double purpose. They will accommodate the highest float when the rose parade is routed into the bowl some of these fine New Year's Days, and they will afford better ventilation for the pigskin boys. "Dusty" says Myron Hunt, the architect, has produced proof that the temperature will be eight degrees cooler on the playing field than if the tunnels weren't there, and it has so been proved in the Yale Bowl. Oh, yes, the seating capacity will be between 74,000 and 75,000, when the work is finished.

The engagement which Clyde Rudkins's newest fistic acquisition, Young Gonzales, has with Baby Joe Gans at the Olympic tonight may mean a lot in that young man's life (Gonzalez.)

A decisive victory over the dark gent who defeated Mushy Callahan would put Gonzales right out in front as a main event fighter in these parts.

He came here heralded only as the fellow who beat the guy who won a newspaper decision over Sammy Mandell somewhere in Texas. He fought a semi-wind-up at the Olympic and then bounced into a main event against Tommy O'Brien at Hollywood and was standing up sturdily against Tommy when the latter fouled him.

INDIAN TRADER BACKS ZUNIS TO CAPTURE 480-MILE RACE

Aborigines of these United States beat the world at traveling afoot, especially in long-distance events, according to Mike Kirk, who recently visited Los Angeles en route to San Francisco, from which point he will direct the destinies of three Indian youths in the contem plated 480-mile grind from that city to Grant Park. This cross-country run is scheduled t o start the 14th inst., and promises to bring together the outstanding long-distance talent of the nation.

Kirk's Indians are of the Zunis tribe, Zunis being the last of the Seven Golden Cities of Cibula, the legendary magnet of the Spaniards to the great Southwest. The story runs that Zunis, several hundred years ago a thriving Indian community, boasted houses whose windows were made of mica. A group of Spanish adventurers, the remnant of a larger band that had been massacred in Florida, viewing Zunis from a hill some three miles distant, with the sun glowing upon the mica windows, determined that the city was made of gold. Hence the legend of Cibula.

But speaking of runners, Kirk's entries in the San Francisco-Grant Pass event are Mellka, Hamon and Cheehee and they are now in Manzanito, N. M., practicing for the long jaunt. Kirk, incidentally, handled Quanowahu, who ran in New York City May 15 and set a new National record over the Marathon course. Also entered in this grind are a group of Kasak Indians, trappers and hunters who will wear the colors of the Oregon Cavemen. These include Thunder Cloud, chief of the tribe; Flying Cloud, Sweet, Fighting Stag, Falcon, White Deer, Rushing Water and Mad Bull.

Several other Indian entries are reported as well as a number of white runners, but those who know the Indians do not concede the palefaces an outside chance.

Kirk is an enthusiast over the Indian, as a runner and as a man. He knows his Indians, having been an Indian trader at Manzanito, N. M., for the last seventeen years. He believes that two or three of the Zunis will make the Olympics next time out and when they do he is positive they will win.

Plan Benefit Thursday for Mike Donlin

The motion-picture industry, with John Barrymore at its head, is to stage a gigantic testimonial benefit to Mike Donlin, the "Mike, Mike, Mike" of baseball lore and glory, at the Philharmonic Auditorium Thursday night.

Donlin, who was the "Babe Ruth" of his time, is now at the Mayo Brothers' institution at Rochester, Minn., suffering from a malignant cancer of the intestinal type. He was sent there by the fans and friends of his glory days.

Considerable money is needed to completely rehabilitate Donlin and to rescue him from the ravages of the dread disease, and for that purpose his friends and comrades of the movies have planned one of the greatest shows of professional talent ever staged in Los Angeles.

Among the headliners who have promised to attend are Sophie Tucker, Marie Dressler and two surprise appearances by America's greatest comedians now in the city. In addition, the leading vaudeville and legitimate theaters are lending their stars for the evening.

fake match in Milwaukee, Wis. This was done, he said, while he was under the management of White, with whom he later broke relations.

SANDOW ON HAND

Before the day's testimony was over, Sandow, the manager of Lewis, produced a clipping before the committee showing that Demetral had been indicted in Chicago in 1913 for defrauding a man out of $4000, by means of a fake wrestling match in Toledo.

Sandow testified that Demetral had been involved in crooked matches in Nashville and Atlanta, thirteen or fourteen years ago; that for nine years Sandow had refused to have any business dealings with Demetral, and merely consented to meet him in Cleveland on White's plea that Demetral had reformed.

"There is no reason why we should make Demetral put up anything as a guarantee that he would not try to defeat Lewis," Sandow said. "Lewis's superiority over him can be determined in the ring at any time."

HARDING KIN DUE SOON

Lieut. Chester K. Harding, nephew of the late United States President, Warren G. Harding, and son of the Governor-General of Panama, is scheduled to arrive in Los Angeles Saturday. During his stay in Los Angeles, the lieutenant will visit with his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Mentzer of West Florence avenue. Young Harding, aside from his soldiering career, is also one of the outstanding tennis stars in the service.

M'GRAW ON WARPATH; SHAKE-UP IS THREATENED

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—John McGraw is on the war path as a result of the disappointing start his Giants have made on their western trip. According to dispatches from correspondents with the team, his first move is a threatened, shake-up in an effort to trade Hughie McQuillan, temperamental right-handed pitcher, to the Cincinnati Reds for Adolfo Luque or Carl Mays.

McQuillan, the dispatches report, disobeyed Capt. Rogers Hornsby's instructions in yesterday's game with the Reds. Instead of pitching a low curve to Eitman, as ordered by Hornsby, McQuillan tossed a high one inside and the Red outfielder promptly clouted it for a double that won the game.

Camp followers report that Kent Greenfield, young right-hander, who has failed to repeat his good work of 1926, and Heinie Muller, outfielder, who came from the Cardinals in exchange for Bill Southworth, also may be put on the block.

Eddie Roush's continued failure to hit has caused him to be dropped to seventh in the batting order for the first time in his big-league career.

NATIONAL COLLEGIATES TO DRAW TRACK STARS TO CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 6. (AP)—Cinderpath stars from sixty universities and colleges were nominated today for the sixth annual test of the national collegiate individual track championships here Friday and Saturday. All Big Ten and Missouri Valley institutions have sent entries, along with twelve southern and five western schools.

Wisconsin has entered the largest squad of point winners, fourteen, including Capt. "Chuck" McGinnis, individual star of the Western Conference this year. He hopes to set a new high jump mark before his collegiate days are ended this week. Illinois, winner of the Big Ten track championship, a week ago, has entered all its event winners. Coach Templeton of Stanford, winner of the Pacific Coast meet last Saturday, has promised to send some of his best field men.

A. A. Stagg, director of athletics of the University of Chicago, and one of the three directors of the national meet, is trying to induce Sabin Carr of Yale, the pole-vaulter, to take part in the games. Carr set a new world's record last week at fourteen feet.

Nine of the entrants in the 100-yard dash have bettered ten seconds. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, president of the N.C.A.A., will be honorary referee of the meet.

HAWKINS AND FUENTE TANGLE UP THURSDAY

Another packed house is likely at the Pasadena Arena, for the second program of its history, Thursday night. For Manager Morris Cohan has booked Tony Fuente and Long Tom Hawkins in the ten-round main event. This is a rematch after Fuente narrowly captured the decision when he fought the big San Diego negro two months ago, at the semi-wind-up on the Ruskins-Collins card at Wrigley Field. Both of the men were down a few times in that fight.

The rest of the Thursday night card at the Pasadena Arena will be: Hank Casten vs. Rudy Steiner, six rounds, 160 pounds; Eddie Bartoni vs. "Wild Man" Terrasas, six rounds, 160 pounds; Jack Haywood vs. Bud Baker, four rounds, 160 pounds.

ADGIE WINNER IN GO WITH HUFFMAN

PHILADELPHIA, June 6. (AP)—Matt Adgie of Philadelphia, 172, won the judges' decision over Sailor Eddie Huffman of Philadelphia, 179, after ten rounds of furious fighting at the Phillies' ball park tonight. In the first round Adgie sent the sailor to the canvas with a right to the jaw, and in the second round he knocked Huffman down twice. Once for a count of seven and a few seconds later for a count of eight. The Philadelphian scored his fourth knockdown just before the bell in the tenth.

ANNANDALE PLAY DRAWS GOLFERS

The vanguard of a predicted field of 300 local amateurs will qualify eighteen holes, in the Annandale invitational today. At least half of the field is expected to get under way for the medal test tomorrow and match play in eight flights will start Thursday. There will be a special eighteen-hole medal round for nonqualifiers and players defeated in first-round matches played Friday and a two-ball mixed foursome event Sunday will conclude the invitational.

Girard Event to be Novel Invitational

Golfers will have a chance to try something brand new the 17th, 18th and 19th inst., when they compete in the Girard Golf and Country Club's first annual invitation tournament for men, scheduled over this fine eighteen holes all-grass course designed by William P. Bell.

The Girard officials have decided to stage a thirty-six-holes match-play-against-par event, thus affording entrants something entirely new and distinctive in the way of invitation tournaments.

Players have their choice of qualifying either on Friday, the 17th inst. or Saturday, the 18th inst., with the thirty low scorers and ties in each of three handicap divisions—scratch to 8, 9 to 14, and 15 to 18—fighting it out on Sunday, the 19th inst., in the final eighteen holes of match play against par.

Another innovation at Girard is that all trophies will be useful prizes of sterling silver in place of the usual silver cups. In the East the idea of useful trophies has been tried out and proved successful, making a great hit with tourney entrants.

The trophies will be awarded as follows:

Low score eighteen holes qualifying, 0 to 8 class.
Second low in eighteen holes qualifying, 0 to 8 class.
Low score eighteen holes qualifying, 9 to 14 class.
Second low in eighteen holes qualifying, 9 to 14.
Low score eighteen holes qualifying, 15 to 18 class.
Second low in eighteen holes qualifying, 15 to 18 class.
Low score in final eighteen holes, 0 to 8 class.
Second low in final eighteen holes, 0 to 8 class.
Low score in final eighteen holes, 9 to 14 class.
Second low in final eighteen holes, 9 to 14 class.
Low score in final eighteen holes, 15 to 18 class.
Second low in final eighteen holes, 15 to 18 class.

Starting times may be reserved by calling Manager Jess Puryear or Jay Nunnally, golf professional at Girard, at Hollywood 1101. All play will be in foursomes.

SANTA MONICA, June 6. (Exclusive)—Although in daily practice for her record birthday anniversary swim of twenty-five miles some time this summer, Mrs. Anna E. Van Skike, 60 years of age, has decided not to set an exact date for the aquatic event until later in the season.

SAN CLEMENTE RACE SATURDAY

Speedy Yachts Enter Annual Island Dash

Westward May Prove Fastest of Fleet

Diablo Returns After Being Rerigged

With every rag set that will pull, the class of Southern California's deep-sea racing and cruising yachts will start off Weld's Rock buoy Saturday at 12 o'clock, noon, on the fourth annual 138-mile San Clemente race for the Palos Verdes trophy. There are longer and more difficult races, but few that equal in competition and keen sailing the popular island dash.

W. W. Pedder's schooner Diablo holds two legs on the Palos Verdes trophy, which goes to the winner, and Don Ayers's schooner Monsoon captured a leg on the cup last year. The Diablo was not sailed after last year's race, but has been reconditioned and rerigged to measure up to the racing rules.

A pair of dangerous rivals loom up for the past winners in Tom Smith and Hugh Anglemann's schooner Ocean Waif, and the pretty racing yawl Windward, which is owned by Syd Spaulding and will be sailed by Staff Commodore Ben Weston. The Windward was undefeated on San Francisco Bay. She is a true racing type and faster than greased lightning.

Other yachts that look like likely bets are La Volpe, a forty-five-foot schooner; Almardine II, a forty-five-foot yawl, and the schooners Scaramouche and Wetona, if she is entered. Doc Dougall, head of the racing committee, looks for an entry list of twenty yachts.

GLENNA COLLETT IN GOLF TOURNEY LEAD

BELMONT (Mass.) June 6. (AP)—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., headed a field of 108 starters at the end of the first day's play over the Belmont Spring Country Club course for the women's Eastern Golf Association championship here today. Miss Collett, who is a three-time winner of the eastern title, turned in a card of 84, giving her a one-stroke advantage over Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, former national and British women's title-holder.

The new Culver City Stadium management, with Jimmy Murray in the matchmaker's harness, will present to the beach boxing fans one of their best offerings of the season Thursday night. The top spot will find the clever eastern lightweight, Joe Leopold, toeing the mark opposite the big local favorite, Ad Cadena. The five fast supporting bouts of the evening follow:

Joe Cheney vs. Billy Blake; Vernon Jackson vs. Tony Morales; Louis Esquivel vs. Tony Soltero; Tom Moore vs. Eddie Darden; Carl Hansen vs. Patrick O'Connor.

VOLLEYBALL SEASON OPENS

Santa Monica Bay Clubs Get Teams Under Way in Popular Beach Sport; Two Leagues Compete

Volleyball, the one big beach sport, swings into action this coming week for a three-months schedule among the Santa Monica Bay clubs. The Bay League, organized last year, proved to be such a howling success with crowds of more than a thousand present at many of the games, that the organization has been expanded this year into A and B divisions with nine teams now entered and the expectation that a tenth will be lined up this week before the first games are played next Sunday.

The Class A league this year is composed of the champion team representing the beach club, the runner-up outfit from the Strollers, the Santa Monica A. C. team, which finished fourth, and the Sea Breeze club, which was not in the league last year, but which played independently and won a considerable number of games.

Class B will be composed of the teams which finished in the second division last year and several new organizations. Sunday's games will find the Strollers playing at the Santa Monica A. C. and the Sea Breeze at the beach club in Class A, while in Class B the Strollers B team plays at the Breakers. The Gables team plays at Casa Del Mar and the Deanville club draws a bye.

Two teams from last year's league are not playing this year, the Swimming club and the Edgewater club. Ed Gillette of the Santa Monica A. C. is secretary of the league.

On Get-Rich-Quicks

WELL, need poorhouses in this country as long as we fall for get-rich-quick schemes.

Some of us are so eager to get rich without effort that we'll believe things we know can't possibly be true.

If an utter stranger who plainly hasn't a quarter to spare pledges us $4,000,000 in two weeks in exchange for $500 cash right now we cannot doubt that he does it out of true friendship.

If a man just out of jail offers us the entire ground floor in a company which badly needs $1000 today, but is going to take over all the Ford interests tomorrow we know he is actuated by pure altruism and gladly mortgage the old homestead.

Yet none of the millionaires I know got theirs that way. They got it by careful, thorough effort. Instead of trying to find a fortune they studied the world's need and gave it something it needed.

And all the failures I know have been trying for something soft and easy until it got to be a habit.

Yes, Palomina, people who steadfastly strive to get something for nothing always get it eventually. But the place where they get it is the neck.

THOUSANDS AT LAMA FETE

Throngs Crowd Chinese Monastery to Worship at Great Shrines Made of Butter

PEKING, June 6. (Exclusive)—Missionaries arriving from the far interior of Kansu Province, the most westerly province of China proper, and about eight weeks journey from Peking by camel, sedan chair or mule cart, report that this year's religious festivities at the famous lamasery of Kumbum, near the Tibetan border, have exceeded in zeal and fervor anything seen in mid-Asia for many years.

This year the Feast of the Flowers, or butter festival, attracted almost 70,000 pilgrims, some of whom came even from Lhasa and from as far away as Urga and Kalgan. These pilgrims for the most part, especially those from Mongolia and from Tibet, come by camel and travel in large caravans for greater safety. This year the gathering was so great that there was almost a forage famine for the camel trains, which ran into the thousands.

LASTS FOUR HOURS

The butter festival itself, for which these vast throngs gather, lasts for only four hours, from 8 p.m. until midnight on the fifteenth day of the second Chinese moon. So great is the jam of people around the center of attraction that this year the Black Lama policemen had to use long leather blacksnake whips to keep order and avoid rushing and trampling.

Inside the great lamasery, which covers many acres of rambling one-story buildings built around great courtyards, there were this year thirty sacred pavilions, each about 100 square feet and on an average forty feet in height. The central pavilion, containing the Blessing Buddha, was near 100 feet in height.

These pavilions, all temporary structures, are covered on the outside with tanned skins, but the inside walls are made up entirely of embroidered or brocade panels, each about four feet by six feet in size. Each panel shows some incident from the life of Buddha.

The pavilions themselves are lighted by hundreds and hundreds of lamps fueled with melted butter, and in the wavering lights the effect is described as brilliant in the extreme.

ALL MADE OF BUTTER

In the center of each pavilion is a raised platform covered with finely sculptured figures—always a Buddha the dominating figure. Other figures include camels, elephants, priests, chinamen, pagodas and cats and dogs. All of these figures are made of molded butter and the butter is so craftily colored and the colors are so well blended that the effect is lifelike. As a background for each group there is usually a temple of red-walled butter with a roof of imperial yellow butter gleaming under the lights.

The great central pavilion holds the figure of supreme importance to the worshipers—namely, the Moving Buddha, a figure about forty feet tall, all of butter. This gigantic statue is hollowed inside, and in the back stands a priest who manipulates some simple machinery which makes the Buddha's huge head nod in silent blessing every few minutes.

By midnight the heat of the butter lamps and the warmth exuded from the bodies of thousands of worshipers begins to get in its work, the figures lose their clean-cut outlines and the pavilions are closed to the populace. The priests then demolish the butter idols and animals and throw the useless and discolored butter over a cliff into a near-by ravine, where wolves and dogs and ravens fatten themselves at leisure for many days.

Six Russians at Paris Aid Ford in Libel Case

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—Depositions of six Russians taken in Paris in behalf of Henry Ford as co-defendant in Henry Bernstein's suit for $100,000 damages for asserted libel by the Dearborn Independent, were filed today in affidavit form in Federal Court.

The witnesses, all of whom were supporters of the "White" regime or the Czars, or of both, were cross-examined before Donald F. Bigelow, Consul-General of the United States in Paris. Bernstein is an editor and publicist.

The depositions were in Russian and French. It is understood that Ford's attorneys will submit the depositions as evidence for the defense when the Bernstein suit is tried.

The depositions denied assertions made by Bernstein in newspaper articles that "A committee for saving the fatherland" composed of Russians and operating in Constantinople, had devoted time and attention to anti-Semitic activities.

NIP CRIME IN BUD, SAYS CHIEF O'BRIEN

WINDSOR (Ont.) June 6. (AP)—One of the means of curbing crime is to apprehend offenders when they are young and just beginning their career of lawlessness, in the opinion of Daniel O'Brien, Chief of Police of San Francisco, who spoke at the opening of the thirty-fourth annual convention of the International Police Chief's Association here today.

PLUMBERS OPEN CONVENTION

YOSEMITE, June 6. (AP)—The annual convention of the State Association of Master Plumbers opened its three-day session at Camp Curry today. Past President Charles M. Swinnerton, Los Angeles, extended greetings.

CITIZENS MUST VISIT COUNTRY

Supreme Court Tightens Rule for Foreign-Born

Second Generation Abroad Not American

Absentee Nationalism Runs Out, Justices Hold

WASHINGTON, June 6. (AP)—A foreign-born child of an American citizen, whose father had not lived in the United States up to the time of the birth of the child, was declared by the Supreme Court today to be excluded from admission as a citizen.

The case came from Seattle, Wash., and was appealed by the government in an effort to keep out Chin Bow, born in China.

Charles E. Hughes argued in support of the decision of the lower federal courts, which held that a child of an American citizen was entitled to admission when its father took up residence here, although he had not been in the country prior to its birth.

The government contended that the laws should be construed to confer citizenship only upon the children of American citizens who had been residents of this country before the birth of the children.

Chin Bow's father was born in China, but was an American citizen because his father, the grandfather of Chin Bow, had acquired American citizenship through birth in this country.

"Times" Daily Short Story

"MILLIONS" - - - By Fannie Hurst

Slayback—who began life a poor farmer's boy. Who took his first journey's out into the world by way of the under-pinnings of freight cars. Who attended the great outdoor university of prairie, plain and pasture land.

WHEN Lemuel Steinberg died he left a will that for many a long day was to provide material for feature writers and magazine articles.

With the millions he left behind him, he stipulated that along the palisades of New Jersey should be erected a palatial Old Men's Home devoted entirely to ministering philanthropy to down-and-out men over fifty-five, the sole requirement for entrance being that at one time or another the applicant should have been possessed of a minimum of a million dollars.

In other words, Steinberg provided a home for ex-millionaires, his theory (right or wrong,) being that men who had once been wealthy beyond a certain point required luxury in their old age, or they would perish of heart break and maladjustment. According to Steinberg, the fellow who had never quaffed deeply of success was more amenable to reverses and more capable of taking them "standing up," as the saying goes.

The result was that, at sixty-two, a man named J. Washington Slayback found himself, after reverses of a most spectacular nature, an inmate of this home known as the Steinberg Guest House.

Slayback qualified in every way for entrance. He had for many years been the multimillionaire president of oil holdings that had startled a nation with their gush of the precious yield.

Up from the very land that Washington's father had ranched when the boy was growing up; on the very land which that old pioneer and his son Washington had tilled with their sweat and sinew, was one day to gush millions.

Washington attended the great outdoor university of prairie, plain and pasture land. Later in life, his endowments to actual universities went into the millions.

For the first twenty-five years of his life Washington cowboyed, ranched, homesteaded, and even hoboed. In fact, in more than one interview it had been related how his first trip East was taken in relays on the underpinnings of freight cars.

His father lived to see the first five years of the terrific windfall of oil on his land. When he died, a little confused and bewildered by it all, his son Slayback became for the moment the sole owner of these gushing riches. But so much flowing petroleum, without money to capture it properly, meant tragic waste and inefficiency. By the time Washington was twenty-seven, a company had been financed and formed of which he was president.

At thirty-one, Washington was the multimillionaire.

The history of the rise and fall of such fortunes is rather a hackneyed one. Washington married twice, both times unfortunately. There was a son by the first marriage and a daughter by the second. The boy died in infancy. The girl of meningitis, acquired while her parents were traveling in India, at eleven.

The Slayback money was represented by a town house on Fifth avenue, a country home at Lenox and one at Newport, villas in Florida and Italy, and yachts in Atlantic and Pacific waters. A corporation founded by Slayback, put up one of the largest hotels in the world in Florida and another in a development in another State intended to rival Palm Beach, called Land's End.

There was a theater on Broadway backed by Slayback, erected to celebrate the beauty of an apricot-haired chorus-girl who weighed ninety pounds and could do a toe dance on a demi-tasse saucer.

It was a sinister and cruelly coincidental sequence of events that caused the oil wells to go dry, the Land's End enterprise to collapse and a hurricane to invade Florida all in the same year.

Followed two more years of curiously persistent reverses until one day Washington Slayback walked out of the Waldorf-Astoria, where he had taken the apricot-haired girl to lunch, a penniless man. Literally stripped. A Canadian quarter and a bunch of keys in his pocket. It had pleased him thus debonnairely to blow in his last ten-spot for luncheon for the apricot-haired chorus girl who had long since transferred her affections to the president of a motor corporation.

That was the beginning of the relentless march toward the Steinberg Guest House.

At sixty-one Slayback, penniless, occupied, by virtue of a dead millionaire's will, a three-rooms-and-bath suite on the river-exposure side of a palatial mansion on the Hudson.

Every morning a valet closed his window in winter or lowered the orange-colored awnings in summer, drew his bath, scented it, laid out his fresh clothing and wheeled in the daintiest of breakfasts on an inlaid teakwood cart.

At eleven, in the most immaculate knickerbockers, Washington and a few of his confreres enjoyed their nine holes across a perfect course; a whisky and soda at about twelve; luncheon in the club room at one-thirty; a motor drive at three; siesta at five. Dinner, formal, if you please, at seven-thirty, and cards, music or a motion-picture down in the billiard rooms at nine.

Twenty ex-millionaires living out their old age in a penniless splendor. Stripped, as it were, of even the ability to tip the waiter who brought champagne to their rooms at a ring of the bell, or ministered to their slightest gastronomic whim.

Hampers of every variety of table delicacy, for palates that knew how to discriminate, were delivered to the Guest House daily. One old gentleman, Oswald Du Mont, the ex-tractor king, demanded his peach in cotton batting for breakfast every day throughout the year, and woe to the blizzard that delayed it. Alphonse Stettinhaus, a cutlery name famous the world over, whiled away his hours at the expensive pastime of tinkering among airplane parts in a hangar erected on the grounds solely for the purpose.

Steinberg's aim had been to spare the ex-captains of capital and industry who had met reverse, the bitter pangs of denial in old age.

Slayback himself, who for the last ten years anyhow had been finnicky about his down pillows and pure linen sheets and particularly fond of a mink fur robe on which to swing his feet when he rose from bed in the mornings, awoke now to those identical luxuries, the discreet valet drawing his awnings, his bath and trundling in his breakfast, an epicure's one of chilled casaba melon cut in balls—a bit of brook trout—Melba toast. And coffee bubbling in a small silver percolator.

So much for the life of an ex-millionaire.

His disappearance from the Steinberg Home for Guests was a front page mystery for two days. But when a letter from him, post-marked Fargo, N. D., was received at the Guest House, simply announcing that he had decided to live out his days in the West, the matter was discreetly hushed up, effaced from the front page and his place at the Guest House filled by the next applicant on the waiting list.

It was not a very long waiting list. Ex-millionaires were not lying around loose.

Washington Slayback is sixty-seven now. Wind tanned. Sun tanned. Tough and husky as an Indian. There was some talk in the newspapers of a legacy left him by an old rancher in Ogden whom he had once befriended. Slayback read it off a piece of newspaper wrapped about a bit of codfish ball that had been handed out to him from a farm house.

He never went to claim it.

He travels about a great deal. Happy-go-lucky, and mostly on the under-pinnings of freight cars.

La Suprema Corte Resuelve Sobre el Absentismo y la Ciudadanía

El Embajador Argentino Ensalza a California

La reputación de California como la tierra de maravillas, de los Estados Unidos, está ampliamente propalada por los países extranjeros, según el Dr. Honorio Pueyrredón, embajador argentino en los Estados Unidos, a quien la Cámara de Comercio ofreció un banquete ayer a mediodía. El ilustre huésped de la ciudad vino en automóvil a través de la República de doctor en leyes de la Universidad de Sudcalifornia. Según él, el viaje transcontinental que acaba de hacer fué para él una verdadera revelación. Logró así una visión del país y del pueblo norteamericanos, que no habría logrado de ningún otro modo. Nada más hermoso, nada más notable, según él, que lo que la gente del oeste ha hecho con sus desiertos mediante las obras de riego. En cuanto a Los Angeles, le parece que es la capital intelectual, social y económica de todo el Oeste.

Se Declara que la Muerte de Hanson Fué Accidental

Según las averiguaciones llevadas a cabo por las autoridades de Santa Mónica, la muerte del actor peliculero Elmar Hanson, hallado moribundo debajo de su automóvil en la madrugada del último viernes, fué debida a un accidente inevitable. Según Axel Hiltgren, que fué amigo íntimo de Hanson y vivía en la misma casa que éste, el artista salió de dicha casa poco antes de la una de la madrugada con el objeto de "tomar un poco el fresco." Ted Coker, empleado de un garage de Ocean Park, vió pasar un automóvil, que cree fuera el de Hanson, a una velocidad de sesenta o setenta millas por hora. Después lo halló sujeto debajo de su automóvil, de donde le costó mucho trabajo sacarlo debido al perro policía del mismo Hanson. Dice el mismo testigo que el aliento de Hanson olía a alcohol.

AGE HEALTHIER DESPITE JAZZ

Nurses Call Short Skirts Bonanza for Women

Convention Discusses High Cost of Service

Feud With Doctors Revealed by Statistician

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6. (Exclusive)—In spite of gin and jazz, late hours and speed, the world is healthier now than ever before, in the opinion of nursing leaders gathered here for the annual convention of the National League for Nursing Education.

"This much maligned jazz age is really a healthy age," declared Miss Anna Jamme, head of the California Bureau for the Registration of Nurses. "Short dresses and gauze hose have been a boon to health for women, instead of a perpetual threat as the alarmists predicted a few years ago. Jazz and speed merely mean that healthful exercise, dancing and motoring have become national habits.

NURSES PREACH HEALTH

"Modern education has played a tremendous part in improving the national health average and in this nurses have been an important factor. In the school and in the home they have preached the gospel of rest, nutrition and health habits."

The high cost of nursing service to the public and the low average of income to the nurse in private practice because of irregular employment is a topic of absorbing interest to the convention.

FINDS FEUD WITH DOCTORS

Dr. May Ayres Burgess, New York statistician who has been making a survey of the distribution and supply of nurses, made some terse comments on her findings. Among other things she discovered a distinct feud existent between doctors and nurses as groups, she said.

"Other organizations have met the problems of days off, holidays and distribution of hours," commented Dr. Burgess. "But in the nursing profession the old 'hero' system still prevails. The nurse sticks through the long difficult case without a day off, without rest or holiday and all too often collapses at the end. This means weeks of rest later and consequent loss of earnings. As a statistician it is not for me to draw conclusions, but the fallacies in the system are obvious."

PUBLIC'S PLAY PARKS SPREAD

Rapid Growth Over America Shown by Survey

Cities Spend $18,000,000 in 1925 for Recreation

National Association Aids in Directing Work

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, June 6. (Exclusive) — Twenty-one years ago the Playground and Recreation Association of America was organized in this city, with Theodore Roosevelt as the first honorary president, putting his whole-hearted support and influence behind the movement. At that time there were only forty-one cities that had reported organized recreation. At the last report there were approximately 730, and the number is growing rapidly. There are 8608 separate play areas under leadership in the United States and Canada.

More than $18,000,000 was spent by these cities for organized recreation for the public in 1925, according to the year book of the association. All the larger cities have embarked upon this welfare work and the records show that 288 cities of from 8000 to 30,000 population and 148 with less than 8000 have organized recreation.

Secretary Howard S. Braucher of the association says that each year the organization answers 20,000 inquiries on recreation from all parts of the world. The association has a staff of field representatives to assist communities to organize recreation and to serve as itinerant clearinghouses on the best recreation methods. A department of publications, a vacation-service bureau, personnel bureau, the National Physical Education Service and a department of studies are important features of the work, and a national recreation school is conducted by the association in New York City.

MANY LOCATIONS USED

Playgrounds are to be found in public parks, in public school grounds, on city lots, in specially constructed athletic fields and stadiums and even on the roofs of city buildings. Almost every kind of recreation and sport is provided—golf, tennis, swimming, skating, tobogganing, baseball, football, soccer, basketball, dancing, bowling, hockey, quoits, archery, swings, slides and the simpler amusements for small children. Millions of men, women, boys and girls take advantage of these facilities every year, finding in them healthful exercise and wholesome diversion. City recreation programs today also include dramatics, community singing, orchestras, bands, art classes and other cultural and civic activities.

The playground movement in America was started originally for children only, but now almost as many adults as youngsters avail themselves of the recreation facilities it has developed. Golf and tennis, largely adult sports, have had a great deal to do with this. Only a comparatively few years ago none of the cities in the country boasted public golf courses; now there are about 200 cities that have them, and many of the cities have several. Public tennis courts now number well above 9000, and it is said that a new one is built for every day in the year.

To arrive at an idea of the extent to which adults are using the public playgrounds a survey was made in a number of Middle West cities. It showed that in Detroit the division was 54 per cent children and 46 per cent adults; in Milwaukee it was 60 per cent adults and 40 per cent children, and in other cities the average was a fifty-fifty split. Grown-ups are learning to play in this country, something they have long known on the other side of the Atlantic.

Modern public recreation in the United States had its beginning in Boston in 1885 when sand piles were provided for little children in the yard of the Parmenter-street chapel. Mothers of the children and volunteers at first supervised the play and kept watchful eyes on the youngsters, but within two years matrons were employed to direct the sand gardens. Boston's example in providing play facilities for the little ones was followed speedily by other cities. The growing dangers of street play, ever-crowding, increased understanding of the value of health and how to acquire and retain it, laws forbidding play in the streets, and swimming fatalities in dangerous waters all contributed to the development of the playground movement.

OUTDOOR GYMNASIUM STARTED

A big outdoor gymnasium was opened in Boston in 1899, and several school-yard playgrounds in New York that same year. Jacob Riis made a ten-year fight to wipe out the slums of New York and provide playgrounds that attracted widespread attention, and was a notable aid to the cause in other cities. Chicago opened its South Side park playgrounds in 1903, having raised $10,000,000 for the purpose of taxation, and President Roosevelt hailed it as "the most notable civic development of any American city."

Illustrative of the extent to which playground facilities are used a season's record in Detroit may be cited. There were 235 baseball teams numbering 4900 players that engaged in 6890 games during that season, 146 playground ball teams with 1500 players, 105 soccer teams with 2260 players, and in addition forty-five football, seventy-two basketball, forty-five quoit, and forty-four kick ball teams. All these were league sports. There were tens of thousands of participants in golf, tennis, swimming, and the numerous other recreations available.

At that time Detroit had equipped and set apart fifty-two outdoor playgrounds, fifteen athletic fields, eighty-eight tennis courts, ninety quoit courts, eighteen swimming pools, fifty skating places, forty-five dancing places, thirty-eight ball fields, seventeen soccer fields, fifteen football fields, five picnic grounds, and one bowling green. School playgrounds numbered sixty-four and there were 131 indoor recreation centers in the schools. Leadership was provided by 194 women and 183 men, fifty of each group being employed the year around.

MINNEAPOLIS AMONG LEADERS

In Minneapolis that same season some 16,700 individual players in a dozen different sports played in leagues in the public parks. In Washington, in organized recreation on seventy-five outdoor playgrounds there was an average daily participation in summer of over 30,000 children and adults.

In Milwaukee the fifty parks of the city afford a wide variety of recreational facilities, including two golf courses, fifty-four tennis courts, nine swimming pools, four large toboggan slides, and numerous picnic grounds, and the park attendance in one year as clocked by the police exceeded 6,000,000. An indoor recreation program conducted by the public schools from September to May drew an attendance of almost 700,000 persons.

SHEFFIELD LEAVES ON VACATION

Americans in Mexico City Bid Him Adieu as He Again Denies Resignation

MEXICO CITY, June 6. (AP)—James R. Sheffield, American Ambassador, left last night for what is officially described as a vacation in the United States but there is much speculation over whether he may resign. He departed without saying for publication more than he has already said—that he has not yet resigned.

The station platform was crowded with hundreds of Americans, many of the foreign office, who gathered to say good-by to Ambassador and Mrs. Sheffield. The Americans sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and "Auld Lang Syne."

Amnesia Victim Charged With Embezzlement

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6. (Exclusive.)—A charge of embezzlement was preferred today against Mrs. Anna De Metrio, artist and interior decorator, who was sent to this city in 1915 to plan the Italian government's exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Maurice Berenstein, proprietor of a fish grotto, asserts he gave Mrs. De Metrio a check for $1000 May 12 last to purchase drapes, and has not received the drapes nor a return on the check. Mrs. De Metrio, meanwhile, is at home suffering, according to her physician, from aphasia and amnesia. She disappeared several days ago and was found at Sacramento without being able to account for her absence.

NEW RUMANIAN CABINET NAMED

Prince Stirbey Succeeds in Forming Ministry

All Parties Combine Under Union Government

Every Class Relieved at End of Dictatorship

BUCHAREST (Rumania) June 6. (AP)—Prince Barbu Stirbey, administrator of the royal domains, formed a tentative national union cabinet today to succeed the Averescu Ministry, which resigned yesterday. This new Ministry has been described as a "symptom of real progress toward rehabilitation of the country."

Dissolution of Parliament, removal of censorship and the holding of free elections are promised by Prince Stirbey, who completed organization of his Cabinet today.

PEASANTS AID

The new Ministry was completed when Julius Manfu, leader of the National Peasants' party, gave it his support. Mihai Popovici was named Minister of Finance, Gregory Junian Minister of Labor and Pan Halippa Minister of Public Works. The National Peasants' party also received the Undersecretaryship of Communications.

Premier Stirbey has announced that the new government will be conducted along strictly legal lines. Full liberty of the press is to be established and removal of officials of the Averescu regime is promised.

FRIEND OF QUEEN

Parliament is to be dissolved by royal decree and new elections ordered for July 7, next, in which balloting is to be unhampered.

Well-informed political quarters commented on the fall of Premier Averescu with a widespread feeling of relief. The newspaper Dimineata said: "There is satisfaction from the sovereign to the last citizen." Other newspapers described the resignation as that of a man credited with "aspiring to a dictatorship."

The resignation of Premier Averescu was not unexpected, for a week ago King Ferdinand signified a desire for a national union Ministry. A few days ago the Premier tendered his resignation, but the King gave him an opportunity to form a national union Ministry. Failing in this, he again surrendered power, and the monarch then called Prince Stirbey, a trusted friend of Queen Marie, and requested him to form a Cabinet.

In business more money is made on credit funds than on capital funds and there should be no hesitancy in borrowing for the purpose of carrying on or investing in profitable enterprises.

The worthy borrower is most welcome at the Seaboard National.

Pyorrhea Germs Don't Thrive in a Perfectly Clean Mouth. TOOTH POWDER Cleans Best.

When you go to your dentist to have your teeth cleaned, what does he use? Powder!

You may prefer the convenience of dental cream, but he prefers the efficiency of tooth powder.

Dr. Lyon's Perfect Tooth Powder is the favorite of most dentists. It is the finest and safest dentifrice on the market.

ONLY 1 IN 20 HAVE PYORRHEA

If you share the common belief that pyorrhea menaces the average mouth, and must be prevented by drastic means, you will perhaps be surprised that such a mild, non-medicated dentifrice as Dr. Lyon's can do so much to promote gum and tooth health.

But the Life Extension Institute, examining nearly 17,000 policy holders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, found that only 1 in 20 had pyorrhea—that it was exceptional rather than common.

That is why the great majority of mouths need only regular daily brushing with a good-sized toothbrush of medium stiffness and a dentifrice such as Dr. Lyon's Perfect Tooth Powder which clean teeth safely and thoroughly.

FISSURES THE REAL MENACE

Dr. Thaddeus P. Hyatt, Dental Director of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, points out that 85% of all first permanent molars have fissures. Unless filled promptly, they are more of a menace than pyorrhea.

But once they are filled, all portions of every tooth can be kept properly clean with Dr. Lyon's Perfect Tooth Powder, and decay will gain no foothold.

FOR PERSISTENT GUM TROUBLE SEE YOUR DENTIST

If your teeth and gums do not react favorably to normal cleaning with Dr. Lyon's, have your dentist prescribe treatment at once. Self-medication is dangerous guesswork and never advisable.

But ordinarily you can rely on this fine, pure, scientifically blended dentifrice to keep teeth sound and attractive without marring the enamel or irritating the gums.

Dr. Lyon's Perfect Tooth Powder is more than 60 years old—the only dentifrice old enough to prove it can preserve teeth for life. Agreeable in flavor . . . pleasing in after-effect. Gratifying results follow even a 10 days' trial.

THE ONLY DENTIFRICE OLD ENOUGH TO PROVE THAT IT WILL PRESERVE TEETH FOR A LIFETIME

During sixty-two years of operation it has never had an unprofitable year. Sales have increased from $760,000 in 1908 to more than $4,736,000 in 1926. Stores are operated in San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, Palo Alto and Fresno.

Directors have declared their intention to pay dividends quarterly beginning August 1 at the annual rate of $2.50 a share. Application will be made to list the common stock on the San Francisco Stock and Bond Exchange.

STOREY PREDICTS 1927 BUSINESS WILL BE LESS

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—W. B. Storey, president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, says that he thinks the road will hardly do as well in 1927 as in 1926. "We know our gain tonnage will not be as heavy as last year," he explained. "The pan-handle of Texas is not in good condition at all and this territory last year produced 20,000,000 barrels of oil, maybe more. The movement of merchandise and manufactured goods is about the same as last year and passenger travel is a little heavier. There are no indications that we shall be under the necessity of financing."

AMERICAN WOOL OMITS DIVIDEND

Further Disbursements of Surplus Held Unwise; Debt Smaller

BOSTON, June 6. (AP)—The directors of the American Woolen Company meeting here today voted to omit the regular quarterly dividend of 1 3-4 per cent due on July 15 next. It was stated that while the current indebtedness was believed to be the smallest in the history of the company, it was considered unwise to continue to pay perferred dividends out of the surplus.

RAIL PROGRAM ADVANCES

Western Pacific Reduces Charges by Calling 6 Per Cent Bonds; Rehabilitation Progresses

BY EARLE R. CROWE

Gradually the work of rehabilitating the Western Pacific, one of the links that originally was part of Jay Gould's dream of a new transcontinental route, is proceeding under the management of Arthur Curtiss James, probably the foremost individual in western railroad affairs. James, who is largely interested in several western and northwestern lines, is popularly believed to entertain hopes of completing the Gould plan on a revised scale.

Since the James interests took control of the Western Pacific the energies of the management have been directed toward the rebuilding of the physical properties and the restoration of the operating company's financial position. The first step on the financial side is the announcement that the Western Pacific $2,950,-000 6 per cent, Series B first mortgage bonds have been called at 103½ on September 1, 1927.

INTEREST CHARGE CUT

The retirement plan allows the railroad to relieve itself of a comparatively high interest-bearing obligation. After the elimination of this issue there will be only one other funded obligation outstanding, a 5 per cent bond issued under the same mortgage. Holders of the 6s are given the opportunity under the retirement plan to exchange for the 5s at not less than 99½.

On the operating side the company recently omitted the quarterly dividend on the preferred in order to divert earnings into the improvement of the physical property. To bring the property up to requisite standard it is estimated that $18,000,-000 will be required.

In the attempt to introduce operating economies into the Western Pacific the James management is taking up the task that once foundered the ambitious plans of Jay Gould. When Gould died he had three lines running out of St. Louis as the nucleus for his transcontinental system. The Missouri Pacific and the Denver and Rio Grande extended the line as far as Ogden, from which it was necessary to build the Western Pacific over the mountains to the Coast.

PROJECT FLOUNDERED

Construction costs were so high, coupled with the excessive cost also of building a small gap over the Alleghenies to Pittsburgh, as part of the eastern extension, that the project was unable to weather the panic of 1907. After the Western Pacific began operation in 1911, the revenues were unable to show sufficient earnings and the road was finally reorganized into the present company in 1916.

Through the Denver and Rio Grande, in which the Western Pacific owns a half-interest, it is generally believed that the James interests plan to link several lines together in order to reach Chicago. The construction of the Moffat tunnel under the mountains permits the elimination of the excessive operating costs that undermined the Gould enterprise, and makes the James project at least a possibility.

Western Pacific Railroad Corporation, which owns all the preferred stock of the operating company, failed to earn the dividend requirements on its $6 preferred stock last year. Earnings were $5.08, and net profits $1,259,872. To make up the deficit the surplus was reduced from $4,264,948 at the first of 1926 to $3,673,993 at the end of the year.

New Financing on Program of Columbia Steel

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6. (Exclusive)—More than ordinary activities recently in Columbia Steel securities were explained today in an announcement that outstanding 7 per cent bonds will be called August 1 and a new issue of first mortgage bonds offered the public. Columbia Steel, organized in 1922 as a merger of several foundries and mills of the old Columbia Steel Company, with the coal and iron mining properties of Utah Coal and Coke Company, operates at Provo, Utah, and Pittsburgh and Torrance, Cal., the latter in the Los Angeles area. Since the original merger it has expanded, as a corporation, by purchase of the Torrance plant of the Llewellyn Iron Works and the sheet mill of the Pacific Sheet Steel Corporation, formerly of South San Francisco but now of Torrance.

Complete details of the new issue were not forthcoming, but it was stated that the new bond issue will be for the purpose of financing extensions and improvements, and both A and B issues outstanding will be retired. At the present time, there are approximately $4,780,000 in bonds outstanding. Both issues bear maturity dates of 1938.

MOODY GIVES VIEWS

Irregularity in Trade Regarded as Orderly Readjustment

Moody's weekly review of financial conditions in its current issue says, in part:

The irregularity of current trade returns, showing about as many unfavorable as favorable points, is rather encouraging upon analysis because it seems to mean an orderly readjustment to a sound basis. Apparently, we are laying the foundation for trade expansion in the fall.

New security issues, which are a pretty good measure of the confidence of business men in the future, have shown large gains thus far this year. Incidentally, this large volume of new financing absorbs a considerable amount of bank funds which might otherwise be available for stock market uses, and thereby tends to raise the rates for call money. It looks now, however, as though the inflow of funds from the interior might continue for two to six weeks.

NEISNER SALES IN MAY GAIN SHARPLY

Neisner Brothers report sales for May, 1927, of $474,537 against sales of $309,049 the same month in 1926, or a gain of 53.5 per cent. For the five months of 1927 total sales amounted to $2,068,843 against $1,177,473 for the same five months' period in 1926, or a percentage gain of 77.4 per cent.

BANCITALY CONTINUES TO RECORD

In anticipation of a stock dividend of from 25 to 40 per cent, Bancitaly Corporation continued its advances on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday, adding 2 3-8 points to a new record high and close at 124, with a heavy volume of sales. Three transactions of buyers-ten were made at 124½. Bank of Italy held firm at 172½. Merchants' National advanced 3 points to 400 and First National held at 500.

Southern California Edison issues were in stronger demand yesterday, the common rallying 1-4 of a point to 39 3-8, the 6 per cent preferred adding a fraction to 28 1-4 and closing firm at 28 1-8, and the 7 per cent preferred holding steady at 32 1-4. Los Angeles Gas and Electric touched 100½ and closed firm at 100 3-8.

Los Angeles Investment added 3 cents to 2.66 and the Broadway Department Store preferred continued to sell at 100. Piggly Wiggly was off 1-4 of a point to 23 1-4.

Robinson, president of the First National Bank of Los Angeles and chairman Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, was elected chairman of the economic-research committee of the California Development Association at the annual meeting of the board of directors in San Francisco last week. Others appointed to the committee were:

Sproul, assistant Federal reserve agent; Dr. Alonzo Taylor, Stanford University, and Prof. David Weeks, University of California.

At the semiannual conference of the California Economic Research Council Mr. Douglas of the Security bank was re-elected vice-chairman for 1927-28. Business Philosophy

BY WILLIAM FEATHER

One way to get ahead and keep ahead is to do each job as though you were going to be judged by that alone.

Possibly I have been more unlucky than most people, but it has always seemed that whenever I wrote a particularly sloppy editorial or made a rank grammatical error, everybody read that editorial and also the sentence in which the error occurred.

Men whom I had not heard from for years were suddenly impelled to write and telephone me.

If I were a tack manufacturer and sold 100,000,000 tacks a year to Henry Ford, and if one of those tacks had a twisted point, I am absolutely sure that Henry Ford would pick up a tack some day and it would be my tack with the twisted point.

Others confess that their experience is about the same. Therefore, the only safe rule is to make each job your best job.

BERKELEY, June 6. (Exclusive)—In the ten years in which the Federal Land Bank of this city has been operating it has made more than 16,-000 long-term first mortgage loans in excess of $62,000,000, Willis D. Ellis, president, said today before a gathering of executive officers from Nevada and California, who are meeting here in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the bank's existence.

The bank began, President Ellis told the executive officers, with a capital of $750,000, furnished by the United States Treasury, and now its capital, reserve and undivided profits total $3,310,000, which is owned by the borrowing farmers. Net loans on the books amount to $48,569,858.22, and very few foreclosures or delinquencies in installments have been encountered, he said.

"The Federal Land Bank," he added, "holds 29 per cent of all of the mortgages on farms in California, Nevada, Utah and Arizona, which are operated by owners who reported mortgage debt in the 1925 census. For an institution making a conservative first mortgage loan, limited by law to 50 per cent of the appraised value of the land for agricultural purposes, and 20 per cent of the insured improvements, we consider this a record of service for the first decade of co-operative lending in this territory. It amounts to nearly 10 per cent of all farms in the district."

Next week a similar conference and celebration will be held in Salt Lake City.

May Financing of Real Estate Projects Gains

Banks, trust companies and their subsidiaries originated or participated in the underwriting of $17,667,000 real estate securities in May, or 38 per cent of the total of $46,656,000 offered to the public, according to S. W. Straus & Co.'s compilation of such securities publicly advertised or announced.

These offerings consisted of first-mortgage real-estate bonds, $38,-384,000; first-mortgage participating certificates, $1,850,000; collateral-trust notes, $6,196,000; debentures, $3,978,-000; first-mortgage leasehold bonds, $6,005,000, and land-trust certificates, $1,250,000. Total real estate offerings for the month were eighty-one, compared with eighty last May, when the total reached $65,827,500.

Since January 1 real-estate offerings have amounted to $331,323,500 compared with $330,581,000 for the same period last year. Of this year's offerings, banks and trust companies have brought out $91,621,000 exclusive of the amounts sold privately by these institutions without public announcement or the issues purchased by them for their own account or for trust-fund accounts in their control.

GOVERNMENT COSTS MOUNT

Total Increase in 1925 for Federal, State, Local Units Placed at $141,000,000 Over 1924

[Copyright, 1927, by New York Evening Post, Inc.]

NEW YORK, June 6.—Despite economies in national government the total dollar cost of government in the United States rose in 1926, according to a study just completed by the National Industrial Conference Board, to $11,124,000,000.

That represents the aggregate expenditures of Federal, State and local governmental authorities. It includes capital, outlays and debt retirements. The figure compares with $10,869,000,000 in 1924, and with $2,919,000,000 in 1913. The increase over the previous year was, of course, the result entirely over rising expenditures by the State and local governments which, in 1925, spent more money than ever before in their history.

Commenting on this trend, Magnus W. Alexander, president of the conference board, said, "Although the Federal government in 1925 succeeded in checking the rising tendency of its expenditures through a consistent policy of economy and judicious debt retirement, there is little hope that departmental expenses can be much further reduced owing to the increasing demand for necessary public service of all kinds. State and local governments, however, have generally followed exactly the opposite policy from that of Federal government, spending more and more from year to year and borrowing whatever they needed to make up the discrepancy between tax collections and expenditures. There certainly is no indication at present of any let-up in the ever-increasing disbursements of State, municipal and other local governments, and they continue to finance their operations to a large extent by loans. These cause a cumulative and steadily increasing burden of interest charges and eventually, of course, will have to be repaid out of the pocket of the taxpayers who, in the meantime, also have to pay the mounting interest charges."

Undoubtedly the national government has been more successful in the introduction of new economies than the State or local governments. Some authoritities have been hasty in jumping to the conclusion, however, that the greatly increased expenditure of our State and local governments represents outright extravagance. That certain jurisdictions have been extravagant nobody doubts. It nevertheless must be borne in mind that as the country becomes more prosperous its people demand more and more improvements. Better roads naturally have been demanded with the growth of the automobile industry. Likewise a prosperous people insist upon bet-

COPPER SALES SHOW INCREASE

Purchasing Stimulated by Decline of Prices

Lead Situation Offers But Little Encouragement

Zinc Prices Continue Firm, Tendency Upward

(By Charles F. Willis, editor The Mining Journal.)

The marking down of copper prices has stimulated purchasing so that sales have gone upward, while the price has gone downward. There has been a little recovery from last week as the metal stands at 13 3-4 or 1-8 higher than a week ago. There has been no change in lead, that metal remaining at 6.40, while New York zinc has stiffened a little to 6.20.

The lowering of the copper price has been largely due to forced selling, that is, the necessity of certain producers converting their copper in cash and, in order to make the sales, it was necessary to make an attractive price. With this price broken by the forced selling of a few, it became necessary for others to reduce their prices accordingly.

There are a number of the producers who have consistently kept out of the market during the low-price periods, offering no metal and intending to hold on to their supply until the price recovers, but not every company is in financial position to do this. It is a slow market and shows no inclination to move, and it will probably continue to be slow, as the copper which has been purchased is scattered for delivery during the next four months.

EXPORTS OFF

A corresponding drop has come about in export copper as the Copper Exporters, Inc., have reduced their price from 13.25 to 13.20 and then to 13.00 and even that did not stimulate much additional European business. The sharp drop in prices has greatly unsettled the market buyers to be very about stepping in for quantity.

The lead situation offers but little encouragement to the producer. The sales have been good, but there is no tendency upward at the present time. Lead on the St. Louis market has varied from 6.12 to 6.17½, with most of it bought for immediate delivery, although some large purchases were made for future shipments.

Zinc has continued on an even tenor as to sales and prices with a slight tendency upward, but apparently plenty available at the lower price, 6.10. The higher price, 6.20, has been paid for future delivery and it rather looks as though the consumers thought that the bottom had been reached and the turn upward was soon to start.

OUTPUT UNFAVORABLE

The world – production figures for copper, lead and zinc for the month of April do not give much encouragement for a better metal situation, for they are all too high as compared with consumption.

The world production of lead during April totaled 140,000 tons as against 144,441 tons in the thirty-one-day month of March. This is a daily production of 4677 tons during April and 4659 tons during March. The United States considerably increased its daily production during April, while there were decreases in Mexico, Canada, Spain and other countries. At the present low price of the metal the United States mines can undersell Mexico on the European market.

The world production of zinc was much more favorable than the other metals, as it dropped from 139,468 tons in March to 116,940 tons in April or 3962 tons daily in March and 3876 tons daily in April. There was just a slight reduction all the way along the line in the larger zinc-producing countries, including the United States, Canada, Belgium and Australia, with small increases in France and Germany.

The dividends paid by mining companies during the month of May were higher than they have been in any of the corresponding quarters during the past year, totaling $16,-564,631. This is a $460,000 increase over the corresponding quarterly month of February, $1,500,000 increase over November and $1,500,000 increase over August of last year.

Monthly Distribution of Dividends Popularizes Corporation Issues

[Copyright, 1927, by New York Evening Post, Inc.]

NEW YORK, June 6.—Various methods have been employed by corporations in recent years to popularize their securities. Stock purchase warrants have been issued, convertible privileges have been extended, payments have been permitted on the partial payment plan, etc. In each instance the aim has been to give the purchaser some advantage he might not be able to obtain otherwise.

Barring promotional abuses, it may be said that a majority of the schemes which have been developed along that line have proved highly successful from the standpoint of both the issuing company and the investor.

Convertible bonds and preferred stocks and securities with stock purchase warrants are among those which have shown the greatest market appreciation during the past year. The partial-payment plan has met with marked success, particularly in the sale of public utility preferred stocks. The power and lighting companies have been able to extend their operations faster than would otherwise have been possible, and investors have in many instances been induced to save a greater portion of their earnings than would probably otherwise have been the case.

Of late another scheme has been growing in popularity, the payment of dividends on a monthly rather than on a quarterly or semiannual basis. Throckmorton & Co., investment bankers, have just completed a study showing that no less than thirty-seven preferred stock issues, aggregating $302,105,000, pay monthly dividends of $1,022,277. In addition they have discovered that forty-nine companies, chiefly industrial, pay monthly dividends on their common stocks.

A chief advantage of monthly dividend payments, Throckmorton & Co. state, is that they provide funds with which conveniently to meet current bills. They also point out that the practice in reality raises the yield on securities in that returns may be reinvested quicker.

If this practice were to be adopted more generally it is more than likely that the money market would not be subjected to such violent fluctuations as now take place on such heavy interest dates as January 1, April 1, July 1 and September 1. Moreover, more attention could then be paid to soundness and other investment factors and less to maturity dates.

General Motors Soars on Rumors of Impending Stock Adjustment

NEW YORK, June 6.—Circulation of fresh rumors of another adjustment in General Motors capitalization kept speculative interest in the stock at a high pitch. Demand was unabated as the stock passed its previous top level, and those who followed the buying closely, professed to see the hand of an operator often identified with movements in the past as busy again. At current levels, however, the stock is once more somewhat beyond reach of the small trader and some sort of an adjustment would not be surprising.

Awaiting Brokers' Loans

Some selling came into the list toward the finish as the more cautious proceeded to realize on profits against the possibility of a surprise in the loan statement after the closing. The weekly statement of the Federal Reserve Bank was expected to show another sizeable increase, the extent of which depended, of course, on the influence of the adjustments caused by the Steel dividend last week, over which there had been widespread difference of opinion. The stock exchange figures for May naturally were expected to reveal a big increase over April.

Wright Aero Spurts

Wright Aero was the center of a lively speculation, encouraged by the successful negotiation of the trans-Atlantic flight by a second plane using its product as a power plant. The stock opened in new high ground, but for a time thereafter was compelled to absorb rather persistent realizing. When such offerings were cleaned up, however, the stock resumed its advance, rising sharply above the opening levels.

Buying in Utilities

Brooklyn Union Gas was a rather spectacular performer among the utility stocks, which were distinctly strong as a group. That issue rose perpendicularly to new record high levels; presumably in response to the statement made in connection with the offering of Koppers Gas and Coke bonds today. The head of that company, which is a subsidiary of the Koppers company of Pittsburgh, stated substantial holdings of common and preferred stocks of successful utility companies had been acquired and that part of the new funds would be used to increase such investments. This was regarded in many quarters as bearing out reports which have been current that important developments are brewing in the industry.

Erie and C. & O.

Erie issues presented a firm front in face of the latest blast, coming in the form of a statement by the protective committee of the C. & O. minority which is opposed to the Van Sweringen plan for acquisition of that property. The committee cites figures holding that Erie in the six years to December 31, last, carried from its income account to profit and loss $25,-582,827 and that it received in the same period $40,500,000 from its coal properties, thus indicating an actual deficit of $4,917,473 from its railway operations.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, June 6. (Exclusive)—The cotton market weakened today under pressure of heavy profit-taking. A break occurred in the long drought over the western and southwestern parts of Texas. While the rainfall was not heavy enough or sufficiently general to make up for anything like the deficiency in the moisture there of the last two to three weeks, its beneficial effects sent prices off rapidly in the afternoon. The decline ranged from 35 to 40 points soon after 2 o'clock, July going down to about 16 1-8 cents here, October of the new crop, 16 1-2 cents; December under 16 3-4 cents; January about 16.80 cents, and March below 17 cents. There was no Liverpool market today, but some foreign houses were good sellers here on balance indicating that Liverpool spots and futures will respond to the decline here on the resumption of business there tomorrow.

There is still a good deal of complaint about improper development of the crop in the Atlantic and East Gulf States from lack of sufficient rains there in the last fortnight. The official forecast, however, of today is for good showers in that section tonight and tomorrow.

The crop outlook on the whole is therefore now likely to show considerable improvement, especially as conditions in the flooded area are much better than had been expected until recently. This accounts to a great extent for the reactionary sentiment from the opening with scattered liquidation predominating sufficiently over the moderate amount of new trade buying to set prices back about 60 a bale from Saturday's closing for the general contract list.

CREDIT MEN HEAR CHIEF AT MEETING

J. H. Tregoe Points Way to Keep Prosperity at Opening Session

In order to provide for the nation's continued progress and to guard against activity in its forward movement, business men must become more fully alive to their responsibilities as custodians of the greatest capital ever intrusted to the keeping of one people, J. H. Tregoe, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, said yesterday before the opening session of the thirty-second annual convention of the association in Louisville, Ky., yesterday.

Business must prepare itself for greater responsibilities that will come with future growth, Mr. Tregoe stated. The increase in this nation's resources, the widening of trade movements, the building of capital and wealth, the increase in production and the expansion of credit power demand full recognition of our obligations, he said.

"In return for the comforts and even luxuries provided by the nation's progress," Mr. Tregoe said, "we should show our appreciation by doing all we can to keep our commercial structure intact and to make its future growth safe by strengthening the foundation on which it rests. We need more than anything else a thorough understanding of our present production, marketing and credit processes.

"This country has made phenomenal progress, and it will continue to progress. The volume of our commerce and the flow of wealth will mount to even greater heights than they have thus far reached, but just so long as the rushing stream is confined to its course between strong credit banks, we need have no apprehensions about our business future."

STOCK OFFERING TO WORKERS POPULAR

More than 10,800 of the approximately regularly 13,000 employees of public-service companies subscribed for 18,811 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey in the twenty-fifth anniversary offer to employees which opened May 20 and closed recently. Taking into consideration the many employees who have subscribed for previous issues of Public Service stock, it is estimated that three out of every four employees of Public Service are stockholders.

SECURITY TRUST & SAVINGS BANK, LOS ANGELES, TRUSTEE

Exempt From Personal Property Tax in California

Mr. Frank C. Hill, Vice-President of the Estate of D. F. Hill, Inc., furnishes the following information in connection with this issue:

Organization: The Estate of D. F. Hill, Inc., was incorporated on August 26, 1925, to acquire all of the assets of the Estate of D. F. Hill, deceased, the estate having been duly administered in the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Los Angeles. All of the shares of this corporation are owned by the widow and three sons of D. F. Hill, deceased.

Security and Purpose of Issue: This issue of bonds is secured by a first mortgage trust indenture on the real property known as 413-419 South Spring Street, Los Angeles, California, having a frontage of 78.12 feet on Spring Street and a depth of 155 feet, to an alley. The property has recently been appraised by Mr. John P. Kennedy, for the Corporation Department of the State of California, at $430,000. There is now under construction on this property a reinforced concrete store and garage building of thirteen stories, with full basement. The garage portion of the building will occupy all the upper floors and will have a storage capacity of approximately 967 automobiles. The exterior finish of the building will be of marble and imitation stone. The automobiles will be distributed through the building by means of three elevators, which will be about 21 feet square, carrying three small cars or two medium sized cars. The basement, the first floor and the second floor will be readily accessible from the street or alley by means of ramps. With the exception of $100,000 permitted to be used temporarily to clear a previous mortgage (which amount is required to be returned to the Trustee by the company) bond proceeds are to be disbursed by the Trustee, on architects' certificates. It is estimated that the building will cost approximately $500,000. If the completed structure should cost less than $475,000, bonds are required to be redeemed in such an amount as will reduce the loan to the cost of the building.

Appraisals: On the basis of the appraised value of $430,000 for the land plus a cost of only $475,000 for the building, the bond issue would represent a loan of less than 75% of the value of the security. In addition to being a first mortgage on the property and building heretofore described, this loan will be the direct obligation of the Estate of D. F. Hill, Inc., whose total net assets are estimated to be in excess of $1,000,000.

Revenue: The estimated annual income, applicable to this bond issue, after deducting operating expense, taxes, insurance and depreciation is $148,704, which figure is over twice the greatest annual principal and interest charge with the exception of the year 1942, the final maturity of this issue.

Miscellaneous: A surety bond in the amount of $525,000 has been filed with the Trustee guaranteeing the completion of the building, free of mechanics' liens. In addition, $125,000 of the bond proceeds are required to be held by the Trustee until the building is completed, free of mechanics' liens and until after the limit of time for the filing of such liens has expired.

The company covenants to carry fire and earthquake insurance to the full 'air insurable' value of the building.

All legal proceedings incident to the creation of this issue were examined and approved by Messrs. Gibson, Dunn and Crutcher, Attorneys-at-Law, of Los Angeles, California.

Title Insurance and Trust Company of Los Angeles has issued its bondholders' policy of title insurance in the full amount of the issue guaranteeing title to the property to be vested in the Trustee for the benefit of the bondholders.

ISSUANCE AUTHORIZED BY THE RAILROAD COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Application has been made to the Superintendent of Banks to certify these bonds as a legal investment for California Savings Banks and this offering is made subject to such certification.

H. Chester H. Loveland, President of the Company, summarizes, from his letter to us, the following:

COMPANY. The Sweetwater Water Corporation, a California corporation, and its predecessors have been supplying water in the same territory for 40 years. The properties of the Company consist chiefly of the Sweetwater Dam and Reservoir, on the Sweetwater River in San Diego County; over 10 miles of riveted steel and iron transmission pipe lines of 24 and 30 inches diameter; approximately 96 miles of distribution lines; 4,350 services; 5,723 installed meters; a booster pumping plant and fourteen tracts of proven water-bearing lands.

At the present time, the Company supplies water for domestic, industrial and irrigation purposes to a compact area of approximately 5,502 acres, situated in San Diego County, comprising a small portion of the City of San Diego, all of National City and Chula Vista and a large unincorporated area in the same vicinity. The population of the territory served is approximately 20,000.

WATER SUPPLY. The Company obtains its water supply from the Sweetwater Reservoir, which has a storage capacity of approximately 31,000 acre feet and is now full. The rights to store water in this reservoir were acquired by the purchase, many years ago, of appurtenant riparian rights and by several water filings, the first of which was made in 1886. The Company now owns all the riparian rights on the Sweetwater River from the easterly end of the reservoir to San Diego Bay.

During the 22-year period, 1905 to 1926, inclusive, the Company supplied all demands of its consumers without placing restrictions of any kind upon the use of water. During the 10-year period, March 1, 1917 to February 1927, the quantity of water delivered averaged 5,335 acre feet annually, and during the period 1922 to 1926, inclusive, water delivered averaged 5,530 acre feet annually, an equivalent of approximately 4,940,000 gallons daily. At the present time, there is sufficient water in the reservoir to care for all normal demands for a period of almost four years even if no additional rainfall or run-off into the reservoir occurs.

EARNINGS. According to an audit by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., Certified Public Accountants, the income of the Company, after operating expenses and taxes, but before interest, depreciation and Federal Taxes, for each of the calendar years 1922 to 1926, inclusive, was: 1922—$106,263; 1923—$114,862; 1924—$118,799; 1925—$129,207; 1926—$144,910. Such income for the year 1926 was more than 2½ times the annual interest charges of $55,000 on this bond issue.

SECURITY. These bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct mortgage on all of the properties of the Company, now owned or hereafter acquired. A Bondholders' Policy of Title Insurance will be issued jointly by Union Title Insurance Company, San Diego, and Title Insurance and Trust Company, Los Angeles, certifying these bonds to be a first lien on such properties, subject only to the lien of current taxes. Messrs. Quinton, Code & Hill, Consulting Engineers, have estimated the present depreciated value of the physical properties (exclusive of water rights and intangible items) to be in excess of $2,000,000, making the ratio of bonded debt to property valuation less than 50%.

SINKING FUND. An annual sinking fund will be provided, beginning October 1, 1928, equal to 2% of all bonds outstanding under the Trust Indenture. The Company shall be entitled to a credit against this sinking fund, up to 50% thereof, for permanent improvements, extensions or additions made by it, which shall never be bonded. This sinking fund shall be used to purchase or redeem bonds issued under the Trust Indenture.

All legal proceedings incident to the issuance of these bonds, and all water rights, are subject to the approval of Messrs. O'Melveny, Millikin & Tuller, Los Angeles, California, for the Underwriters and Messrs. Dunnigan & Elkus, San Francisco, California, for the Company.

Report and appraisal of the properties of the Company made by Messrs. Quinton, Code & Hill, Consulting Engineers, Los Angeles, and by The Loveland Engineers, Inc., San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Audit of the books and accounts of the Company made as of December 31, 1926 by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., Certified Public Accountants.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

Actual Value of District (official estimate)	$28,000,000
Assessed Valuation (1926)	7,680,000
Bonded Debt, including this issue	1,526,000
Population estimated	3000
Area	7790 acres

Montecito, a suburb of Santa Barbara, is one of the wealthiest residential sections in California. Many of its palatial homes represent large investments. The Montecito County Water District, in existence since November 10, 1921, has acquired water rights and constructed water development and distributing system for supplying water for domestic purposes within the district.

These bonds are a direct general obligation of the Montecito County Water District and are payable, principal and interest, from an unlimited ad valorem tax levied against all real and personal property in the district. Such taxes are collected at the same time and as a part of Santa Barbara County taxes.

The bonds are additionally secured by the revenues derived from the operation of the water system and it is estimated that such revenues will soon be sufficient to service the total issue now outstanding without resorting to the taxing power of the district.

ADVANCE AGAIN LED BY RAILS

ended last Wednesday, making the total $8,061,891,000 against the peak figure of $8,141,125,000 in the first week of 1926.

LOANS CALLED

Banks called about $10,000,000 or more in loans during the day, probably to repair the deficit shown in last Saturday's clearinghouse statement. Call money held steady at 4½ per cent. In view of the unusually large increase in loans, it is now regarded as doubtful whether the early decline on day-to-day loans, which was generally expected a week ago, will materialize.

Western Maryland common was the sensational feature in the rail group, soaring 8 3-4 points to a new high record at 65½, an appreciation of more than 46 per cent in quoted value above the low level of the year, with a corresponding gain in the second preferred. Delaware and Hudson jumped more than 7 points to a new peak at 230 on buying intensified by a revival of rumors regarding an early segregation of the coal properties, but President L. F. Loree declined to comment.

New peak prices also were attained by nearly a dozen other rails including St. Paul preferred, Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred, Chicago and Northwestern, Hocking Valley, Texas and Pacific and Peoria and Eastern. In addition, substantial gains also were recorded by Nickel Plate common, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Lackawanna.

FAVORITE LEADS AGAIN

General Motors was again in the forefront of the industrials, touching another new high record at 208½. Public utilities and railroad equipments also presented several points on strength. More than two-score industrials reached new high ground, the list including such diversified shares as Gabriel Snubber, Safety Cable, Westinghouse Air Brake, American Water Works, Colling and Aikman, American International Corporation, Mathieson Alkali, Wright Aeronautical, Endicott Johnson and Brooklyn Union Gas.

There were a few soft spots, the most conspicuous of which was United States Rubber, which sank below 643 a share to the lowest price in four years. International Nickel fell back about 3 points on what appeared to be a temporary withdrawal of pool support.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Reactionary price tendencies developed in the principal commodity markets. Active wheat futures fell about 1½ cents a bushel with selling influenced by reports of better weather in the Northwest and the limited export demand because of the observance of the Whitsuntide holiday abroad. Cotton options broke 40 points or more and coffee closed 1 to 8 points lower. Raw sugar futures declined about 1-8 cent, some of the late position selling at new lows for the season.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet with rates holding fairly steady. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.85 5-16 and French francs around 3.81½ cents.

GOVERNMENTAL COSTS MOUNT

for public buildings and parks. These insistent demands probably count for more with the typical State or local authorities than the fact that money is available at extremely low rates.

When these figures are closely analyzed it turns out that the nation's total governmental expenditures have not increased so rapidly as the population. Thus despite the greater total of public expenditures the total per capita cost of all government has fallen. It will be found that the per capita cost of government in 1922 was $60.41 as against $60.98 in 1924, $61.90 in 1923, and $59.34 in 1913. Again it must be remembered that the true picture of governmental cost is modified when account is taken of the fluctuations in the purchasing power of the dollar since the war.

NEW YORK BOND PRICES

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—With traders hesitant about adding to their bond commitments in face of a large volume of new issues yet unassimilated, and various other new offerings of major proportions appearing over the horizon, the market for listed bonds was very quiet today and trading was in the smallest volume in weeks. More than $70,000,000 in new bonds made their appearance today, and a considerable addition to the total is expected later in the week.

Convertible mortgages once more leaped into prominence, with Delaware and Hudson 5s in the lead. Large blocks of these bonds changed hands and the price went up 4½ points to 153½, the highest on record, stimulated by a 7-point jump in the common stock. Erie "D" 5s also were freely bought, but profit-taking checked their rise. Brooklyn Union Gas convertible 5½s also followed the stock into new high ground, advancing 8¼ points to 199.

Although White Sewing Machine 6s, with warrants, gained a point, industrials generally inclined to heaviness. Dominion Iron and Steel 5s and American Writing Paper 6s fell back a point or so.

Moderately heavy selling of Italian 7s and a point gain in Rhinelbe 7s, with warrants, were the contrasting features of the foreign group.

Second Liberty 4 1-4s were freely offered, and the Federal government list as a whole was irregular.

The quotations represent sales of bonds (in thousands of dollars) and the high, low and closing price in the order given. "x," unusual transaction, also is omitted when same as last, and both low and close when same as high.

NEW FLIGHT CRITICISED BY BERTAUD

Navigation to Germany "Sloppy," States Aviator Once Scheduled for Trip

CLEVELAND, June 6. (AP)—Lloyd Bertaud, Cleveland air-mail pilot, who was once scheduled to make the trans-Atlantic flight with Clarence Chamberlin, in a formal statement here tonight declared that "the sloppy navigation of the Chamberlin-Levine flight to Germany had done more to point out to the public the really excellent job Col. Lindbergh did than anything else could have done."

Bertaud declared he was not "sore" because of his differences with Charles Levine, sponsor of the flight, which prevented his making the trip.

The air-mail pilot declared "the fact they went a few hundred miles farther than Lindbergh does not mean much of anything." And, "whereas Lindbergh did a splendid job of navigating, they wobbled all over Europe."

Bertaud said when Lindbergh landed in Paris he gave up all plans for a trans-Atlantic flight. He believed the flight should have been delayed until Lindbergh returned to America and received the plaudits of the American people.

"It would have been better for aviation—better sportsmanship, better for all concerned, Lindbergh was entitled to all the glory," he said. He called attention to the sportsmanlike manner in which Commander Richard Byrd gave up his plans for a trans-Atlantic flight.

"I believe Chamberlin's flight is a great accomplishment, though unfortunate because it was made at this particular time," Bertaud said.

AMBASSADOR SEES WONDERS OF NATION

LATIN DIPLOMAT PRAISES STATE

Argentine Envoy Guest at Chamber Luncheon

Reputation of Southland in Foreign Lands Told

Ship Line from City to Own Country Urged

California's reputation as the wonderland of the United States is widely known among foreign peoples, according to Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon, Ambassador to the United States from the Argentine, who was guest of honor at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon yesterday.

The Ambassador, during a brief informal talk following the luncheon, gave some interesting observations on people and places as he had observed them while traveling across the continent by motor. He came to the Coast to receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws from the University of Southern California.

The automobile trip across the United States certainly was a revelation, he said. He got a viewpoint on the country and its people that he could have gotten no other way, he thought. And, as he looked at it, there really are two distinct parts to the United States—the East and Middle West, and the West.

EYES TURN ON WEST

When a foreign country wants a loan from the United States, it is to the East that it looks. But when one thinks of the people of the United States as pioneering people, resourceful, energetic, powerful, turning nature to their own uses, it is of the West that he is thinking. Nor did he mean to detract from the easterner. This picture was more than borne out for the Ambassador as he drove over westward. The desert about which easterners had warned him? Nothing so beautiful nor nothing so remarkable as the ways in which the westerner has made it bloom through the instrumentality of great irrigation projects. In reclamation there is a great future, he declared.

"There is something about California that is of the dreamer and the romanticist," said Dr. Pueyrredon. "Here we see a very energetic people: a very substantial people. And, although I had read about Los Angeles a great deal and had a high esteem for the city and its people, I must confess my picture was very inferior to the actuality that I have seen. Intellectually, socially and economically I believe that it is the capital of the entire West. Of course," he added with a smile, "I have not seen all of the western cities yet."

HONOR APPRECIATED

He spoke with great feeling of his appreciation at being honored by the University of Southern California. He touched upon the need for a greater development of business between his country and the West, and told how he believed it is going to be accomplished. "Upon business relations," he said, "great friendships between nations can and will be founded." He added that in his opinion a good ship line between San Francisco and Los Angeles and the Argentine Republic would be a great intensifier of good feelings between the two communities.

D. F. McGarry, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who presided at the luncheon, called upon Dr. Von Kleinsmid for a few words. The university president with some cleverly turned phrases remarked that business relations make good foundations for friendship between nations, but a diplomat of Dr. Pueyrredon's caliber is worth a couple of boat lines when it comes to promoting friendship between nations. He reminded his listeners that we have been doing business with France for many years, but declared that the young aviator Lindbergh has done more in the last ten days to promote good feeling between the two nations than any amount of business relations could do.

NEW LINER FOR SERVICE TO ATLANTIC

Panama Pacific Company Will Order Sister Ship to California, Now Building

Confirmation that another 600-foot 27,000,000 liner soon will be ordered for the Panama-Pacific Line, identical with the new California to be ready next January, was issued by P. A. S. Franklin, president, to the directors of the International Mercantile Marine in annual meeting at New York yesterday, according to word received here. The statement, which was wired west at once, was Franklin's reply to questions by stockholders, whom he told the outlook was so promising a second major new ship was imperative.

"Although we now operate the largest vessels in the intercoastal trade," said Franklin, "we intend to replace them with the largest steamers yet constructed in an American ship yard.

"The first of these, the California, is to be launched at Newport News ship yards in October and we intend to order a second right away. She will be like the California in every respect, with large passenger accommodations in first and tourist classes, and very large freight capacity, especially for refrigerated cargo."

It is understood the ship announced last night will be ready for service in the spring of 1929. The present service is maintained by the Manchuria, Mongolia and the Finland, which maintain a service every two weeks between New York by Havana to San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco and return.

Flying Lochinvar Given the Air

Plane Kidnaping Fruitless

Noreen Burke and Charles Lajotte, aviator, who kidnaped her from San Diego in an effort to win her as his bride.

GIRL SPURNS AIR KIDNAPER

Elaborate Plans of San Diego Aviator to Win Himself Bride Came to Naught

An airplane as an accessory to cave-man wooing failed here yesterday when Miss Noreen Burke, pretty San Diego girl, refused to marry Charles Lajotte, aviator who "stole" her from a San Diego air field Sunday afternoon while helpless relatives looked on.

Lajotte, sought by peace officers on the ground and airplanes in the sky, landed at Rogers airport here yesterday morning and immediately was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriffs Blasdel and Brown.

FLYER RELEASED

After explaining, however, that he did not try to kidnap Miss Burke, and only wanted to prevail upon her to marry him, Lajotte was released. Miss Burke, after a conference with her brother-in-law, H. M. Boule, assistant manager of a San Diego branch bank, who hurried here, indicated that she did not desire that the aviator be prosecuted for his too ardent aerial wooing.

The aviator-Lochinvar, who is 29 years of age, freely told Capt. William Bright at the Sheriff's office of his romantic flight.

TAKES OFF WITH GIRL

Inducing Dr. John Steen, one of the girl's friends who had been riding with her to get out of the plane to look at the landing gear, Lajotte opened his throttle and flew away with Miss Burke.

The aviator said it was impossible to propose to the girl because of the roar of the plane's motor, so he headed toward 29 Palms, near Palm Springs, where Elwood Lloyd of Los Angeles, owner of the plane, was occupying a cabin with Mrs. Lloyd.

Upon arriving there, it seems, all proposals of marriage were rejected.

"She was a little peeved when we got there," Lajotte admitted.

The aviator then decided to take the girl back home, but to go by way of Los Angeles in order to bring Lloyd to his home here. The party stayed at the Lloyd cabin Sunday night and made the trip to Los Angeles yesterday morning.

"I met Miss Burke on a boat trip to Alaska," said the aviator, "and I have asked her to marry me several times. I haven't given up hope yet. I had planned to land the plane at Riverside and be married there, and

FIREMAN BURNED IN EXPLOSION

Bystanders Cut by Glass When Two Blasts Shake Pasadena Building

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, June 6.—Battalion Chief W. A. Fuller of the fire department was slightly burned and cut in the face by flying glass and several bystanders also were cut and scratched by glass in two heavy gas explosions tonight at a store at 238 East Colorado street.

Excavation work had been in progress in front of the store and one of the gas pipes leading into it became severed. A small blaze started and the fire department was summoned. Just as Fuller entered the door of the store two explosions shook the building and a blast of flame struck him, burning his coat from his back. Several people in the crowd attracted by the blaze also were showered with glass and cut.

The damage to the store was nominal.

AQUEDUCT DAMAGE GROWS

Owens Valley Blast Outrage Found to Have Destroyed 150 Feet of Concrete Conduit

A section of the floor of the open concrete conduit in the Los Angeles aqueduct at the mouth of Cottonwood Canyon will be necessary to repair damage done by the cliques of Owens Valley ranchers in their third attempt to cut the water supply of Los Angeles since May 27, according to information reaching this city yesterday. This third attack in the warfare heretofore being waged was made at an early hour Sunday despite the fact that the Blureau of Water Works and Supply had been authorized by the City Council to employ all necessary protective measures to prevent further damage.

Chief Detective Bureau that men are being held in readiness to be dispatched when a request for reserves is made.

GUARD HAD PASSED

Every indication points to a well-conceived plot in carrying out the last attempt to shut off the water supply from the city of Los Angeles. It is stated that the Cottonwood Canyon section has been closely guarded and that a city guard passed the spot from which the charge was ignited but a few moments prior to the blast. Aqueduct employees at the Cottonwood power plant reside within a very short distance of the latest outrage.

Due to the fact that the third blast was placed within 125 feet of the Cottonwood plant it is assumed that the plan was to destroy this plant, failure of this being due to the fact that the charge was not placed sufficiently deep in the drainage ditch, it is stated.

The initial blast, on May 27, occurred at No-Name Canyon and resulted in the destruction of a mammoth syphon. The second, on the following day, was at a point seventy-six miles north, where a penstock was blasted. Repair work was immediately undertaken and it is on the damage caused by these two blasts that three weeks further repairs are said to be necessary.

Since the first blast investigations have been made by officials of the Water Bureau, by Los Angeles police and by officials of Inyo county but thus far no blame has been placed and no arrests have been made.

DRIFT NIGHT IN BATHING SUITS

Pasadena Men and Women Shiver Fifteen Hours from Cold and Hunger at Sea When Motor Goes Dead; One Swims Ashore for Rescue

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, June 6.—Six young people returned to Pasadena today and told of a misadventure which caused them to drift at sea all Saturday night, their only clothing bathing suits. They had no food and no water.

In the party were Mr. and Mrs. E. Felton Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Donald P. Daniels, Miss Josephine Hodges and Brooks Gifford.

They left the California Yacht Club at Wilmington Saturday at 3 p.m. for a short sail in a boat belonging to Gifford. When about thirty miles out in the direction of Balboa the motor died without apparent reason, and they were unable to start it. A sharp land breeze which blew up at nightfall and the tide carried them still farther out.

They tried vainly for some time to attract attention by firing a pistol and flashing the running lights of the boat, then they improvised paddles and tried to make shore that way.

During the night the wind and tide changed, and daybreak found them about two miles offshore. Gifford, who is a strong swimmer, jumped in and swam to Seal Beach, where he hunted for a rescuing boat and telephoned the California Yacht Club, which notified him thirty speed boats and an airplane were out searching for the missing party.

Before any tow from shore could reach her, a fishing boat picked up the disabled launch and took her in to Seal Beach. Though the party suffered from hunger, thirst and exposure, none is expected to be seriously ill.

Estimated vote, between 100,000 and 124,000.

For Board of Education, 6.
For judge of the Municipal Court, 2.
Polling places outside the city to vote on Board of Education candidates, 78.
Estimated vote in these outside precincts, 4000.

Featured by excessive activity by City Employees, acting under orders of the Parrot-Cryer City Hall political machine and the Power Bureau, the campaign on behalf of Propositions 3 and 4 (Power Bureau "grab" measure) and in support of five administration" candidates for the City Council came to a close last night. Throughout the day yesterday city employees were busy on city time campaigning in city automobiles propelled by city gasoline, all paid for out of taxpayers' money. In the Fifth District, Fred Frank, "Boss" Parrot's own field manager, took personal charge of the campaign to re-elect "Cupid" Sparks to the Council against Virgil A. Martin. At today's election, city employees will be active bringing voters to the polls in city-owned automobiles, in an effort to save the propositions and the "administration" from defeat.

On account of the interest in Propositions 3 and 4, the vote at today's election is expected to be between 100,000 and 124,000, that is, between 25 and 30 per cent of the registration. The vote at the May 3 city primaries was 29.6 per cent of the registration, the total vote cast being 122,794.

ENTIRE DISTRICT VOTES

Votes will also be cast today at seventy-eight polling places outside of the city but within the Los Angeles school district, the ballots at these precincts bearing only the names of the six Board of Education candidates for the three places to be filled on the school board.

Political experts said yesterday that the chances are against any of the five "administration" candidates for the City Council being elected, as the antiadministration men all led their tickets by wide margins at the May 3 primaries. These antiadministration candidates for the Council are: Third District, Ernest L. Webster; Fifth District, Virgil A. Martin; Sixth District, Councilman E. E. Moore; Tenth District, E. Snapper Ingram, and Twelfth District, Douglas E. Foster.

COMMITTEE CONFIDENT

Members of the Citizens' School Committee predicted yesterday that the committee's three candidates for the Board of Education—Letitia J. Lytle, Robert L. Burns and J. L. Van Norman—will be elected. The other two candidates on the committee's ticket—Blair I. Peck and Carrie Parsons Bryant—were elected at the May 3 primaries. The committee's three candidates led their opponents by many thousands of votes at the primaries.

Supporters of former Judge Caryl M. Sheldon expressed confidence that he will be elected today, as he led A. J. Bledsoe, the other nominee, by 20,000 votes on May 3. A. J. Bledsoe is not to be confused with former United States Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe, as former Judge Bledsoe is not a candidate, and has indorsed the candidacy of Sheldon. Milton Bryan, who was third at the primaries with 16,000 votes, indorsed Sheldon's candidacy. This is the only Municipal Court judgeship contest on the ballot at today's election, as the other twenty-three places on the Municipal Court bench were filled at the May 3 primaries.

SEIZURE OF RUM BOAT SUSTAINED

Federal Judge's Action Forces Speedy Craft to Turn Against Old Pals

Rum runners in Southern California waters are in for additional trouble. Federal Judge McCormick yesterday upheld a libel action filed against the fast speedboat 220-A by Asst. U. S. Atty. McFarland, and the vessel, equipped with three 200 horsepower engines, will be turned over to the Coast Guard for service in running down rum runners.

Legality of the seizure of the vessel by the government was upheld by Judge McCormick on circumstantial evidence presented by Asst.-Atty. McFarland. The 220-A was seized near San Clemente Island where it was found anchored without a crew. A dory belonging to the vessel was confiscated by Federal agents at Laguna Beach with thirty-seven cases of liquor, although the owners of the vessel denied that the dory belonged to the speedboat.

With the addition of the 220-A to the Coast Guard, the coast patrol will be equipped with probably the fastest boat on the entire coast. The three 200 horsepower engines are said to be capable of developing more than forty miles an hour.

HEIRS ASK MERRITT OUSTER

Charges Brought Against Pasadena Millionaire by Relatives Sensational in Detail

Charges of stock juggling, misappropriation of funds and maladministration of the estate of the late Annette W. Merritt of Pasadena were made yesterday in Superior Court in a suit filed by three heirs of the estate to remove Hulett C. Merritt, Pasadena millionaire, and Charles H. Dickinson as trustees of the estate.

The suit was filed by Evelyn M. Hanan, Lewis N. Merritt and Bertha M. White, who with Hulett C. Merritt had been named principal beneficiaries in Mrs. Merritt's last will.

In her will Mrs. Merritt named Dickinson, Mrs. White and Hulett C. Merritt executors and trustees of her estate, which consisted principally of stock in the Catalfa Land Company, organized in 1913 by Mrs. Merritt as a holding corporation for her properties. The complaint stated, however, that Mrs. White had relied on the judgment of her brother, Hulett C. Merritt, to manage the estate, and it was also declared that Dickinson, the other trustee, was under the control and direction of Hulett C. Merritt.

HALF-MILLION ESTATE

According to the plaintiffs the assets of the Catalfa Land Company were valued at $505,000 at the time of Mrs. Merritt's death in 1923. The holdings of the land company, it was stated, consisted principally of stock in the United States Steel Corporation and under Mrs. Merritt's will, it was declared, the income from the properties was to be equally divided among the four heirs.

Dickinson, the complaint charged, was made president and a director of the Catalfa Land Company at the direction of Hulett C. Merritt, who is asserted to have conducted the affairs of the company in "utter disregard" of the rights of the other heirs.

Merritt was said to have voted the stock of the company, to have called directors' meetings and conducted other business of the corporation without consulting the plaintiffs or Mrs. White in particular, she being one of the trustees.

JUGGLING CHARGED

The complaint charges the defendants with "juggling" a large block of stock in the North Star Iron Company and it is also asserted that Hulett M. Merritt, through his attorney, represented at a directors' meeting of the Catalfa Land Company that a large amount of money would have to be raised to pay bequests made by Mrs. Merritt and taxes and expenses of administering her estate.

Accordingly, the complaint continued, Merritt sold the United States Steel Company stock belonging to the estate for approximately $250,000 which, it was charged, he appropriated to his own use through loans from the Catalfa Land Company to the Pacific States Corporation, a com-

by Harry Carr

I AM suffocated with romance. I have just finished reading the late fiction of the day.

From now on I don't wonder the sales are falling off; that the public has turned to "The History of Philosophy, "The Story of the Bible," "This Believing World," and other works with some sense to them.

THE BUCKO MATE

All the novels are just alike.

Some day I am going to write some novels myself; and they are going to be different.

One is going to be the first sea story ever written without a brutal bucko mate. I don't know what it's going to be about, but there is going to be one scene where the captain says to the police, Harvard-graduate mate, who always manicures his nails and wears silk underwear:

"Mr. Montmorency, I am worried about the boy we took on at Gloucester; I fear he is homesick. Couldn't we get up some charades to amuse him? Tonight I will stand your watch while you go to his bedside and read to him from my copy of 'Gems of Thought From the Poets.'"

THE DETECTIVE

Another one is going to be a detective story.

The harassed chief of detectives is going to appeal for help to Mr. Burlock Sholmes.

Mr. Sholmes isn't going to smoke a pipe; he is going to be the president of the antitobacco league.

After making chemical analysis of the usual cigar butts, he is going to arrest the wrong man; the real one is going to be found in jail, pinched by a town constable who saw him doing it.

THE WILD AND WOOLLY

Another is going to be a wild West story.

Nobody is going to be armed or have a gun. The first time the hero tries to ride the famous bucking stallion he is going to yell for help and a railroad brakeman is going to hold the horse long enough for him to get down.

And when Alkali Ike comes into town with a gun, and tries to shoot out the lights, the hero is going to shoot it out with him. Both of them are going to miss every shot a mile. And Alkali Ike is going to leave town because the tax collector demands his 62 poll tax.

A NEW FLAPPER

There is also going to be a flapper love story.

The first time a sheik tries to get my heroine into a necking party she is going to tell him, sternly:

"Wait a minute; I read that 2,000,000,000 germs go romping into every kiss. If you want to kiss me you got to fumigate yourself."

Anyhow, I think I will have my flapper heroine come upon her grandmother and mother smoking cigarettes and rebuke them sternly for frivolity, and the G.M. and mother will produce a doctor's certificate to show they were only cubebs smoked for catarrh.

SWASHBUCKLERS

Oh, yes; and there should be a period story with swords and doublets.

The first time the hero draws a sword to avenge a lady's honor, the villain is going to take his sword away from him and beat him up with a bed slat.

And when the queen summons the loyal and swaggering courtier to get back her pearl necklace to save her honor, the hero is going to a lawyer and bring a respectable suit in replevin to get it back—thus saving himself much wear and tear.

That's how tired I am of the fiction of the day.

LIGHT VOTE IN CITY EXPECTED

Six Propositions Claim Widest Interest

Balloting Estimated Will Cost $100,000

day's election is in the outcome of Propositions Nos. 3 and 4, which are the "grab" measures placed on the ballot by the Power Bureau. Proposition No. 3 would start under way a $40,000,000 bond issue for the Power Bureau's taking over the electric properties of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation so that the bureau would then have an unregulated, tax-free monopoly of electric power distribution in Los Angeles. The present electric rates of the Power Bureau and of the gas company are the same, and in addition the company pays $650,000 a year in taxes toward the support of the city, county, State and Federal governments and the company's rates and operations are subject to supervision and control of the Railroad Commission. With the company's competition out of the way, the Power Bureau, which pays no taxes and is subject to no control by the Railroad Commission, would then be free to carry out its plan of building up a political power monopoly that would dictate the policies of the government of Los Angeles.

TERMINAL SOUGHT

Proposition No. 4 is also a Power Bureau "grab" measure to give to the bureau twenty-five acres of land at Los Angeles Harbor near the Catalina Island steamship terminal for use as a steam plant. An injunction against this plant issued by Superior Judge Hartley Shaw is now in effect. The land is estimated to be worth $2,500,000 if leased by the city harbor department to an industry, as the parcel is served by Harbor Boulevard, by the Pacific Electric and Southern Pacific rail lines and is between the West Basin and Mormon Island Basin. The Power Bureau's technical rental for a steam plant would be $60,000 a year, but Judge Shaw in his injunction decision pointed out that there is nothing in the lease to compel the Power Bureau to pay the rental nor to surrender the land to the harbor department, should port needs require.

ACTIVE TWICE BEFORE

The activity of the Power Bureau to put over Propositions Nos. 3 and 4 so as to cut in ahead of the future bond issues needed for the Colorado River aqueduct has not been equaled since the Bureau tried unsuccessfully to put over the $25,000,000 power bond issue in 1923 and the $31,000,000 power bond issue in 1924. In the 1923 bond campaign the bureau spent its revenues recklessly for campaign circulars, banners, "jazz" bands and other forms of publicity. After the campaign, W. W. Mines, as a taxpayer, brought suit against the Water and Power Commissioners to compel them to restore to the city treasury $12,415.15 spent for campaigning.

Superior Judge Butler sustained Mines's contention and ordered the commissioners to dig down into their pockets and pay the money into the treasury. They appealed, and while the appeal was pending and the judgment of Judge Butler was still in effect, they started in on May 20 of this year with another political campaign financed from power revenues, on behalf of Propositions No. 3 and 4.

CITY CIRCULARIZED TWICE

Twice in this campaign the bureau has circularized the 415,000 registered voters of Los Angeles, the stamps alone for this circularizing being $16,000. In addition there was the cost of the printing of the circulars. The bureau's campaigning included the usual banners, which were carried to various parts of the city in city trucks and placed on display by city employees.

The Supreme Court last week upheld Judge Butler's decision and declared the campaign expenditures of 1923 illegal and the court's ruling will apply to the expenditures during the campaign which closed yesterday.

Employees of the City Power Bureau, fearing that the "hat will be passed" among them to pay for this campaigning in case Propositions 3 and 4 were defeated at today's election have obeyed orders to work for the adoption of these propositions. The commissioners are under court order to pay 1923 campaign expenses from their own pockets and must do so next month unless they ask for a rehearing within thirty days of the Supreme Court decision.

MAJORITY REQUIRED

Each of these Power Bureau measures (Propositions 3 and 4) requires only a majority vote at today's election to be adopted, so the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Commercial Board, Women's Political League, Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association and a score of other organizations have gone on record in opposition to them in order to inform the voters of the true import of these measures.

Propositions 1 and 2 are different plans for zoning the territory west of Beverly Hills and on Beverly Boulevard, in which the new University of California at Los Angeles is located. The Chamber of Commerce directors, President Bird of Occidental College, City Planning Commissioner Danburg and other organizations and citizens have urged a "no" vote on Proposition 1 and a "yes" vote on Proposition 2, which is the zoning plan adopted by the City Planning Commission and the City Council, protects Beverly Boulevard from commercial business buildings and permits housing facilities for the universities in this district.

BUS CHANGE SOUGHT

Proposition No. 5 is an ordinance to permit the passenger motor busses which daily serve thousands of Los Angeles people to operate on Hill street from Sixth street to Eighth street so as to better serve the public. Proposition 6 is a franchise procedure ordinance required by the new charter but in which no question of public policy is involved, as the ordinance simply carries out the franchise requirements of the new charter.

A majority vote is sufficient to adopt all six of the propositions on the ballot.

In the five Councilmanic districts in which there are contests at today's election, the largest registration is in the Sixth District, where there has been a spirited campaign between Councilman Moore and L. R. Rice-Wray. Councilman Moore has declared his independence of the City Hall political machine, while Rice-Wray has made no declaration of this kind. The registration in each of the five Councilmanic districts for today's election is as follows:

REGISTRATION BY DISTRICTS

Third District, 27,548; Fifth District, 29,196; Sixth District, 42,899; Tenth District, 21,762, and Twelfth District, 27,937.

Despite the exercise of the strictest economy by City Clerk Dominguez, today's election is expected to cost at least $100,000. The May 3 primaries cost $114,573. These totals represented a saving of $15,000 on each election as the result of City Clerk Dominguez's charter amendment approved by the voters one year ago by which the number of election officers at each polling place was reduced from six at each voting place to four, and numerous other savings were accomplished by elimination of unnecessary duplicate records.

The growing cost of elections is due to the increase in population of the city and the consequent number of precincts added by the County Supervisors for handling the increased vote. As polling places are added, these must be supplied with election officers. At the May 3 primaries the city paid $58,310 for the services of election officers and $10,416 for rent for polling places.

Council Makes Final Frenzied Election Move

In a repairing effort to save the political hi[gh]s of "administration" Councilmen who fear defeat at today's election, charges were made on the floor of the City Council yesterday that out-of-town election workers have been imported to help defeat Propositions No. 3 and No. 4, the Power Bureau's "grab" measures. Politicians saw in the move only an attempt to drum up at the eleventh hour a few more votes for Councilmen Sparks and Hughes and to help bring into the administration fold Clarence W. Horn, candidate in the Twelfth District.

The charges were vague and indefinite.

Briefly, the resolution stated that out-of-town election workers "will make a concerted precinct-to-precinct campaign" at today's election; that they "will make g[illegible] misrepresentations in an effort to defeat Propositions Nos. 3 and 4," and that the State Railroad Commission should investigate.

Sparks, rushing to the defense of the "grab" measures, charged that Councilman Allan's objection to the words "slush fund" used in the resolution was "only an alibi"—to which Allan retorted sharply:

"As long as I've been in this Council I've never used an alibi. And, furthermore, Mr. Sparks, I have never been a coward and have never walked out of this Council to avoid having my vote go on record." The resolution was adopted.

HEIRS SEEK TO OUST MERRITT

pany in which he was said to be the principal stockholder.

The plaintiffs charged that the asserted representations of Merritt were false and that the money was not needed to handle the affairs of the Catalfa Land Company. On the other hand, the complaint continued, the defendant Merritt did not deliver any evidence of indebtedness to the land company for the proceeds from the stock sale until more than a month after the meeting at which it was decided to sell the stock was conducted. It was charged on information and belief that Merritt used the proceeds to purchase common stocks in the United States Steel Corporation and it was said that he had realized profits and gains of approximately $135,000 from stock so purchased.

The complaint asserts that in "good conscience" this sum "belongs to and should be paid over to the trustees under the will of Annette W. Merritt."

The complaint also charges other "frauds" to Merritt in the handling of the estate, and stated further that Dickinson had been a "willing tool" in the asserted manipulations.

The plaintiffs, who said they had no remedy except through the courts, asked that Merritt and Dickinson be ousted as trustees, that they be compelled to give an accounting of the affairs of the estate, and finally, that they be enjoined from disposing or incumbering any of the properties of the estate.

Attorneys Harry M. Ticknor and Nicholas W. Hacker prepared and filed the complaint.

STATISTICIANS WILL HEAR WAR-DEBT TALK

Thomas F. Ford, literary editor of The Times, will be the speaker at the monthly dinner meeting of the Western Statistical Association at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the Windsor Tea Rooms, Brack-Shops Building. His subject will be: "Can Europe Pay Her War Debt?" Mr. Ford is author of a textbook on foreign trade and is considered well informed on the debt situation. A discussion will follow.

THREAT BRINGS RESTITUTIONS

BASIS OF OPPOSITION

Attorney Victor Shaw, for Scott and Carnahan, opposed the move on the grounds that his clients had not been given an opportunity to examine the records, documents and books of the Wagy firm to determine if their position as the oil-company receivers conflicted with the taking over of the Wagy affairs.

Attorney Lackenbach declared the counsel for Scott and Carnahan was a representative of stockholders seeking bankruptcy for the Wagy firm, a move which has been withdrawn by the stockholder-petitioners on the assertion that they did not understand it was not for their best interests. Mr. Shaw admitted he represented some stockholders in a bankrupcty petition for A. C. Wagy & Co., Inc.

Judge McCormick continued the matter until the 20th inst., pending a hearing in San Francisco before United States Judge St. Sure on the 19th inst. at 10 a.m. on a temporary injunction against Corporation Commissioner Friedlander restraining him from turning the brokerage-house affairs over to Scott and Carnahan.

The four contesting receivers were in Judge McCormick's court, in addition to Deputy Corporation Commissioner Welch, S. C. Lewis, resigned president of the Julian corporation; Frank Creasey, former manager of the Wagy firm, and several other officers and attaches of the Julian Petroleum Corporation.

INDICTMENTS EXPECTED

Meanwhile the county grand jury was active in the investigation. In addition to uncovering a mass of evidence indicating usury, which has been turned over to Dr. Lickley, that body was reported to have sufficient evidence to indict nearly a score on felony charges, including embezzlement, forgery and obtaining money under false pretenses. The true bills are expected to be returned before Superior Judge Barnell the latter part of this week.

Attorney Scott, one of the receivers, issued the following statement concerning the day's developments:

"In the matter of the so-called pooling contracts involved in the Julian receivership, Mr. Carnahan has requested me to handle that particular matter. Numberless complications involved from a business standpoint prevent us both occupying our attention with the same details, and therefore I am in a position to speak authoritatively in any matter of the so-called pool.

TENSE SITUATION

"In fairness to Harry M. Haldeman, whose name appears as a party to one of the pools, I wish to state that I never called his attention to the matter until this morning. Immediately upon my notifying him Mr. Haldeman came into my office and without any argument or hesitation, made out a check in favor of the receivers for the amount of profit which he stated to me he had made from a pool that was organized to purchase and hold Julian Petroleum stock for a rise in the market.

"This unfortunate experience of Mr. Haldeman, however, might arrest the attention of other people who have honorable intentions in the matter, but who have neglected to realize the tense situation which confronts us as receivers. We wish, however, to advise the public generally that it is not our business to pass judgment on the merits of any complaint issued by the City Prosecutor or to involve ourselves in any opinions as to the merits or demerits of the various cases which are presented to the City Prosecutor, or any other public official who is called upon to pass judgment in such matters. Suffice it to say, that our sole duties as receivers is to try and collect as much money as we can legitimately, while at the same time recognizing that all our information and data are at the disposition of the public officials."

then make a plane trip over the State."

MOTHER IN COLLAPSE

Miss Burke is 21 years of age. She was formerly a student at the University of Oregon and is a member of the Chi Omega Sorority. She and her brother-in-law went to the home of her uncle, Dr. Joseph A. Ball, 2121 South Union avenue, and then left for San Diego.

Dispatches from San Diego last night declared that Lajotte's scheme to get the girl into his plane was an elaborate one, according to Mrs. Ed Fletcher, Jr., sister of Miss Burke, and involved taking up numerous members of a house party until Miss Burke's turn came, when he was able to get rid of Dr. Steen by a ruse.

Charles M. Burke, father of the girl, the southern dispatches declared, was waiting until he has discussed the case with his daughter before deciding whether or not he will ask for a complaint against the airman. Mrs. Veronica T. Sprague, mother of Miss Burke, and with whom he lived at 1436 Thirty-first street, San Diego, was reported as recovering from a collapse that took place when she was informed of her daughter's plight Sunday night.

Lajotte indicated last night that he probably would not return to San Diego, where he was formerly instructor at a flying field.

DAUGHTER CONTESTS NELS ANDERSON WILL

Seeking a portio[n] ... the $80,000 estate of her father, Nels P. Anderson, Lillian Anderson Betts of 932 West Seventh street, San Pedro, has filed a contest in Superior Court charging that he was mentally incompetent at the time he made his will and was unduly influenced. The will was dated May 13, 1925. Under the terms of the document relatives of Anderson's deceased wife were given an interest in real estate in the harbor district and $8000 was left to Mrs. Betts. The ..... of the property was left in trust for Mrs. Betts and her children.

LOCAL PAIR MARRIED IN HONOLULU

Helen Iten O'Rourke and Albert Tierney Principals in Island Romance

Helen Iten O'Rourke, daughter of the late John J. Iten, millionaire Omaha biscuit manufacturer, has become the bride of Albert Tierney, a Hollywood interior decorator, it was learned yesterday.

The marriage took place at Honolulu last Thursday. Mrs. O'Rourke was divorced about two years ago from Harold J. O'Rourke. She obtained the divorce at Reno after O'Rourke had filed suit for $100,000 against her mother, Mrs. Katherine C. Iten, whom he charged with alienating his wife's affections. Subsequently, he reported to police that his wife and her mother had abducted their daughter and he hired private detectives to search for them.

The Reno divorce settled the marital difficulties and the alienation suit was thrown out of court here.

Mrs. O'Rourke, it was learned from her attorney, Lyndol L. Young, left for Hawaii about three weeks ago, there to meet her mother, who was on a cruise around the world. Shortly thereafter, Mr. Tierney also left for the islands on a contract to do the interior decorating on a new hotel being erected at Hilo. They had known each other for some years here and the courtship came to a rapid climax at Honolulu, according to reports reaching here.

Jail Terms for Drivers Mixing Liquor and Gas

As penalty for admitted mixing of gasoline and bootleg liquor five men yesterday were sentenced to serve terms of ninety days in the County Jail by Municipal Judge Russell.

The penalties were imposed by Judge Russell after they had pleaded guilty to charges of reckless driving and jail physicians reported investigation had shown they had been drinking.

The five arrests over the week-end marked the start of a drive against motorists who endanger life and limb of other drivers and pedestrians.

The men gave their names as John Deegir, 7525 Westminster avenue; Herbert Hudson, no address given; Fred R. Lomax, 822 East Fifty-eighth street; George W. Kelly, 1416 East Fifty-ninth street, Florence, and Ellis F. Barber, 2103 Upland avenue, San Pedro.

Hudson was arrested by Paul Brunette, bailiff in Judge Russell's court, who testified he had observed the man drive recklessly through two safety zones and stop his car against a curb.

Wife Balks at Playing Hostess to Predecessor

The ordinary cruelties of married life were met and borne by Mrs. Eunice E. Kynette with fortitude, according to her suit for divorce filed yesterday, but when her husband forced her against her will to entertain his former wife in her home and provide her with meals at her table, she declared her patience at an end and demanded a divorce.

Mrs. Kynette further charged that her husband left the city recently to work, and told her that during his absence she could live by using the money which he had in the bank in a joint account. The account was there, the complaint states, but the money was not.

When Mrs. Kynette said that she did not wish to be hostess to his former wife, she avers he called her vile names and told her, "If you don't like it you know what you can do."

Jack P. Leonard is attorney for Mrs. Kynette.

WOMAN DRIVER FREED

Judge Rules Evidence Insufficient to Support Intoxication Charge

A charge of driving while intoxicated yesterday was dismissed against Mrs. Julian Theal, 32 years of age, prominent Venice matron, by Municipal Judge Ambrose on grounds of insufficient evidence to warrant holding her to the higher court.

The action was dismissed after Police Surgeon Dunsmuir testified that when the woman was brought to the Receiving Hospital, tests did not disclose that she had been drinking. She was capable of driving her car, the doctor said.

Mrs. Theal was arrested following a crash between her automobile and that of William Levinson, 2213 West Fifteenth street, in which the 15-year-old son of the latter was injured. In dismissing the action, Judge Ambrose exonerated bond.

TRIPOLAY CLUB HAS ARTISTS AS GUESTS

Dean Cornwell, an illustrator and painter, and Edmund Gale, Times cartoonist, were guests of the Tripolay Club yesterday at luncheon at the Jonathan Club. Mr. Cornwell told incidents of painting trips he has made in Palestine and anecdotes of other well-known artists. The Tripolay Club, recently organized, is composed of commercial artists and illustrators. Robert Freeman is president, Guy P. Goodwin, vice-president; John Rocha, secretary; Sam H. Harris, treasurer, and Claude Putnam, sergeant at arms. The members include Joe Starbuck, Arthur Beaumont, Jud Wright, C. W. Haines, Augusto Bisetri, Charles H. Owens, J. D. Johnson, Floyd Storm, Cecil Storm, Clarence Heiser and John S. Johnson.

BODY OF MARY LYGO, ACTRESS, GOES EAST

Accompanied by Dr. Grace Line Hoffman, a friend, the body of Irene Goodall, film actress, professionally known as Mary Lygo, was sent last night by the Ruppe Mortuary over the Union Pacific to relatives in Akron, O., her former home, for burial. Miss Goodall, who died after drinking poison, gained notoriety four years ago when she sued Gordon Thorne for $100,000 heart balm. Poverty and failure to reach stardom was believed to have prompted the actress to end her life.

IMPOSSIBLE TO END HIS LIFE

Man Cuts Wrists and Throat, Stabs Self and Leaps Out of Window

A new record for indestructibility is believed to have been set by Felice Mannina, 57 years of age, who was recovering at the Receiving Hospital last night from the most complex list of injuries ever listed upon the books of that institution.

Sunday night, according to the police, Mannini got a room on the third floor of a hotel at 120 North Broadway; got into bed, slashed both wrists and cut his throat with a knife, then stabbed himself in the breast and lay down to die.

When a chambermaid poked her head into his room yesterday morning and saw him she sent in a call for police. As officers entered the room Mannina departed through the window. In his fall he struck the top of a parked automobile and was dashed through the plate-glass front of a printing establishment.

At the Receiving Hospital, after Dr. Saverien had dressed his numerous hurts, he told officers he had had financial troubles.

RICH STORE OWNER SUED FOR DIVORCE

Chester P. Playsted's Wife Names Drunkenness as Grounds for Court Action

Accusing her husband, Chester B. Playsted, wealthy Los Angeles drug store proprietor, of frequent intoxication spells during their four years of married life, Mrs. Bessie M. Playsted yesterday filed suit for divorce. During 1925 and 1926, the complaint charges, Playsted was arrested four times on charges of drunkenness, thereby causing his wife great mental suffering.

The trouble began, Mrs. Playsted asserts, on July 4, 1926, when she and her husband and two friends motored to Lake Arrowhead over the holidays. During the trip Playsted became intoxicated and called his wife "a piker" because she refused to drink with him, the complaint states.

On another occasion Playsted called his wife a fool because she telegraphed to her brother-in-law for money to obtain his release from the San Diego jail where he had been placed for drunkenness and reckless driving, according to the charges.

Mrs. Playsted also charged that her husband once beat her severely in their home at 3460 Knoll Crest avenue, and that the timely arrival of a neighbor prevented serious injuries. She asks for a division of community property valued at approximately $100,000 and custody of their 3-year-old child, Doris Aileen. She is represented by Louis L. Swarthe.

OCCIDENTAL ASSURED FUNDS FOR EXPENSES

CURRENT NEEDS OF COLLEGE UP TO 1929 PROVIDED BY SUBSCRIPTIONS

President Remsen D. Bird of Occidental College has announced that funds sufficient to pay all deficit accumulations of 1926, to carry the college through the year 1927 without debt and to assure a measure of conservative expansion for the years 1928 and 1929, have been subscribed. The total sums raised for these and associated purposes, he announced, amount to more than $350,000. Five times the previous contributions to current expenses in any year has been subscribed in 1926-1927 with absolutely no cost for solicitation, Dr. Bird said.

The contributions have come from three major funds; the Century Club, which has agreed to give to the current expenses of the college $100 per year; the Parents' and Guardians' Fund, received from parents of present students of the college who have agreed to pay the per capita cost; the tuitional charge at Occidental for the year 1926-27 is $220 while the cost per student is $280; and contributions made by the late Henry E. Huntington, Alphonso E. Bell, Fred H. Schauer of Santa Barbara, J. Hartley Taylor of Eagle Rock, Almer M. Newhall of San Francisco, Herbert G. Wylie, William S. Young, Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens, J. O. Warren, Henry E. Robinson, Dr. Hill Hastings and Jed W. Burns of Los Angeles; C. W. Gates, John Willis Baer, Mrs. Matthew Norton, Mrs. David B. Gamble, Mrs. W. L. Stewart, and George E. Emmons of Pasadena.

Occidental alumni team captains directing the campaign to sell reservations for the $50-a-plate dinner to be given at the Biltmore the 16th inst. will meet today at a luncheon at the University Club to discuss raising $60,000 for the new college gymnasium. Among the speakers will be President Bird.

More than 300 Occidental girl students entered a contest to provide a dessert recipe for the dinner menu and the winner's name is expected to be announced tomorrow. Between 500 to 600 guests are expected to attend the banquet. Will Rogers will be guest of honor and principal speaker of the evening.

VICTORIA MAYOR ASKS MARY PICKFORD VISIT

Mary Pickford yesterday received an invitation from Mayor Pendray of Victoria, B. C., to be the guest of the city during the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of the Confederation of Canada, July 1 and 2, next. The invitation came in the form of an official document in which the city was placed at her disposal during the celebration. Owing to the fact that Miss Pickford is working against a release date in connection with the delivery of a new picture, it was impossible for her to accept.

EYES TO THE SEA

The Mississippi has four I's, but isn't able to see where it is going.

FALLING SHORT

The strawberry crop is said to be 40 per cent off this year. The shortcake is going to be a lot shorter than usual.

MUCH HELP NEEDED

Looks as if the mussling of the Mississippi was a job for a man of the stature of Uncle Sam. It is no apprentice task.

GOING DRY

All the college papers seem to be opposed to drinking by students so it looks as if the next generation would be a sober one, anyhow.

USING POWDER

Although the Chinese are supposed to have invented gunpowder they have used less of it than any other great nation. That is why they need a civil war to catch up.

NOT FOR PROFIT

The author of "Silver Threads Among the Gold" received $3 for the song in its original form. Three paper dollars would seem a mighty puny reward for this sweet blending of silver and gold.

STRONG FOR ATHLETICS

In an Indiana school some 200 students went on a strike because the coach in athletics was discharged. They didn't care what happened to the professor, but they were mightily concerned with their gridiron training.

WITHIN THE LAW

Columbia University has a class in criminology, law observance and crime prevention. If Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler ever tries to rush the growler some Saturday night the boys are liable to hold him up as a horrible example.

COOLING THE NOODLE

On a hot day the temperature under a Panama hat is said to be more than 15 degrees cooler than that under a tweed cap. It looks as if our midsummer golfers would do well to shake their cloth beanguards for something in flaky straw.

THE MISSING FINGER

In one of the South African tribes the husband has a finger taken off at the first joint when he loses a wife through death or divorce. If that custom prevailed in this country some of our swellest citizens would be unable to button their shirts.

MANY INVENTIONS

A Frenchman has invented a bicycle that can quickly be converted into a monoplane capable of flying at a height of about 100 feet. After while we will be wanting a wheelbarrow that can be turned upside down and used for a jump to Paris.

PAYING TO HEAR

One must virtually have a license to be permitted to listen to a radio in England. Some day the politicians will be getting around to this idea in America. If the tax-gatherer could garner about $3 a year from every person listening to the nation's broadcasting a lot of loose voters might have jobs. Why not put an assessment on the human ear?

CALL FOR A CHAPLIN

The British National Film Company is trying to coax both Charlie and Syd Chaplin back to England with the idea of making most of their future pictures in that country. The British program calls for the presentation of a fixed percentage of home-made films and the popularity of these would be assured if they were the work of artists like the Chaplins.

DICTATOR IS WANTED

There is hint that the oil industry is looking for a dictator—somebody with the power to regulate production and prescribe the ethics of the industry. All this used to be looked after by John D. Rockefeller, but the old gentleman is too busy with his golf to pester with the oil movement. The producers need a sort of Judge Landis in authority—somebody who could have some ideas of conservation in his mind. It calls for a mighty big executive.

ROMANCE AT SEA

The floating university is an excellent idea and will carry on—but not as a co-educational affair. Give a flock of young folks a few nights on the water under a tropical moon and there will be no studying of mathematics or chemistry. The professors would need more than the ship's bell to round up the lovers. There will be other college trips—the world will continue to be on view for student eyes, but the sexes will be separated. The boys may go on one boat and the girls on another. If they chance to meet east of Suez heaven help the professors who try to assemble their charges.

A PHILIPPINE CONFERENCE

Gov.-Gen. Leonard Wood has been called to a conference with President Coolidge on Philippine affairs and is now on his way across the Pacific. After his arrival at Seattle on June 20 Gen. Wood will go at once to the Black Hills, the President's summer residence. He then will go to Washington and confer with Secretary of War Davis. While en route across the country he will do a little public speaking intended to make our people more conversant with how matters stand in the islands with respect to the natives' demand for independence and to the recent development of the country.

This much he gave out to the press just before leaving Manila, but little more. He did say, however, that his conference with Secretary Davis would be in regard to the proposed sale of all government-controlled properties in the Philippines. A New York company, he said, had offered to buy the government's interest in the Philippine Sugar Centrals, and he seemed in favor of the deal, but that it must have the approval of the War Secretary before it could be consummated.

The willingness of the government to dispose of the properties it controls in the islands has encouraged the natives in the belief that their independence is near at hand. They have been clamoring for it for years, and in the exchange of Federal for private control of the sugar and other industries in which the United States is directly interested they think they see the first step in a letting-go of the reins of government down there.

This hope probably will prove a vain one. When Gen. Wood goes into conference with President Coolidge in his South Dakota retreat he doubtless will hear a repetition of the President's oft-stated view that the Philippines should remain under our flag until such time as their people are in a fit condition, educationally and politically, to assume complete control of their own affairs, and he has intimated that this will not be for many years.

It has been rumored that Gen. Wood has been invited home that he may give an explanation to the President of the reports of his "hostility" to the Filipinos; but there can be little truth in this story, as the President knows full well from what source it has sprung. Rabid political agitators have done everything in their power to discredit the Governor-General's administration of island affairs. They have conspired to make Gen. Wood uncomfortable in every way possible. But all the wild yarns they have spun and sent across the seas to Washington in the hope of effecting his removal have been discounted as coming from an element that has been antagonistic to him from the first in order to accomplish its own selfish ends.

As to the sale of government interests in island properties Gen. Wood probably understands the advantage to be gained by such a course better than those who are so fond of government control of large industries. President Coolidge has made himself clear on the point that the government should keep aloof from the idea of the control of business that might better be in the hands of private citizens.

It would be no surprise to discerning minds should the sale of the sugar and other interests be strongly advocated by Gen. Wood, if we were to turn them over, and thus be well rid of an incubus which only makes trouble in the administration of the affairs of the Philippines.

LONG LIVES AND USEFUL

Dr. Victor H. Levine, Omaha professor of biological chemistry and nutrition, told a Los Angeles audience that by the year 2000 the average length of life will be 100 years and that some of the babies born in that year will live to be 200 years old. A generation ago such a statement would have been deemed fantastic, but now it comes convincingly as a reasonable expectation based upon known facts as to constantly increasing length of life and the conquest of scientific research over human ailments. The average length of life in the sixteenth century was 21 years. A generation ago it was 35 years and recent statistical announcements by life-insurance companies show the present average to be 55 years. So, in all reasonableness and soberness, Dr. Levine's prophecy can be accepted as a possibility.

In the consideration of this remarkable change the question naturally arises: what shall be the influence of greater longevity on world affairs and living conditions? The weight of logic leads to the conclusion that, with longer life, the world will advance more rapidly and that conditions will improve generally and that the centenarians and bicentenarians of the future will be better able to meet the great problem of massed population and others better than the people of today are able to meet their problems.

Not all will live long in the generations to come, but then, as now, the fittest will, on the average, survive longest. Barring the exceptions due to vicissitudes, the natural expection is that advanced age will come to those with sound bodies controlled and kept sound by sound minds. An evil mind is not a sound mind, whereas lofty purposes and clean lives, coupled with a knowledge of bodily needs, are conducive to physical well being. So, future generations will have the beneficent influence of men whose long spans of activity enable them to achieve much. Many a brilliant mind, searching and delving for scientific truths, has been cut off before complete victory. Many a career that promised tremendous things has had but an abbreviated triumph.

The principal cause for the greater longevity already achieved is the information gleaned from scientific research on a large scale. When men live longer scientists will have longer and more fruitful lifetimes in which to study life and to discover vital truths now withheld. Other men will have enlarged opportunities to amass fortunes with which to finance beneficent research work. It is reasonable to expect that the generations to come will have many men of the type of Huntington, Stanford, Carnegie and Rockefeller. Greater opportunities will very likely lead to the building up of greater fortunes, but economic conditions as well as high aspirations can be expected to prevent these fortunes from becoming a menace, but instead that they will be available to the advancement of art, culture, research and education in ways that are only possible through vast endowment funds.

The names of such men as have just been mentioned will go down through the ages because they have notably contributed to the welfare of the world, while the names of others who may have wrought just as successfully in a material way will soon be forgotten.

A comparatively few men have used their wisdom and their fortunes to endow enterprises for the advancement of humankind and the span of life has been doubled. They have trod the paths of fame and distinction and countless others will follow, rising to even greater heights of altruistic success, to the continued advancement and well-being of men.

GOV. FULLER YIELDS

Gov. Fuller of Massachusetts has yielded to the clamor of radical sympathizers and appointed an advisory commission to show him his duty in the seven-year-old Sacco-Vanzetti murder case. The action is not unexpected, radical sympathizers all the way from here to Russia having waged a powerful campaign toward that end. But the need for a commission to advise him whether to intervene with mercy is not apparent. The case has been discussed exhaustively in the courts and press for seven years and only the unobserving are unfamiliar with the points over which they are splitting hairs. The Governor should and very probably does know all the facts and it remains only for him to yield or stand pat. Appointment of a commission to show him his duty raises the suspicion that he is preparing to pass the buck.

The appeal to the Governor is untimely. Failure of the defense first to appeal to the highest tribunal, as is their right and as they undeniably are financed to do, may fairly be interpreted as a confession of weakness, condemning their appeal to the Governor as insincere.

Their insincerity is apparent in still another respect. Their appeal for intervention is based upon the proposition that the Massachusetts Supreme Court may not review questions of evidence, but only questions of law. But that the higher court, which has twice affirmed the conviction, did in fact review the evidence is apparent when they hold that the trial court in not granting a new trial on the showing of newly discovered evidence did not abuse judicial discretion. This purported new evidence is the Maderios statement that he was implicated in the murder, vindicating the convicted men. Maderios was himself a convicted murderer, a fellow-prisoner of the defendants. The trial court refused to credit the confession and that position was sustained on appeal.

It is a matter worthy of note that President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University is a member of the commission. In this connection it may be recalled that a Harvard professor, Felix Frankfurter, wrote a book in which he reviewed the case convincingly for the defense and it may be assumed that before publishing his conclusions the professor submitted his brief to his superior for approval.

STILL PLAYING

At the ripe age of 93 Chauncey M. Depew says the only complaint he can make is that he gets lonesome sometimes. He has nobody to play with. Most nonogenarians are not very sporty. They are content to sit in the shadow and look at the picture papers. When they crave the companionship of their kind it does become a bit tragic. There are few with whom the amiable New Yorker can exchange youthful reminiscences. His schoolmates have all passed on. His comrades in the melon patch have all left his ken. When in the mood for gossip he must round up some old-timers and they are hard to find. But it is rather cheering to those whose memories go back half a century to realize that at the age of 93 Chauncey Depew still likes to play.

BY DEGREES

An American university has conferred the degree of doctor of laws upon the German Ambassador. This is a pleasant recognition, worthily bestowed. It is well that our colleges and universities may once more properly appreciate the genius and abilities of the German peoples. Certainly no aftermath of the war should withhold this recognition. It is by degrees that we may reach a perfect understanding.

MODERN MASS METHODS

Mass production is the present desideratum in American business. Mechanical commerce in things produced in mass is the next step. Vending machines are becoming more common and a New England manufacturer who makes automatic venders by thousands says the surface of this field of commerce has only been scratched.

Eventually we may have stores without a single clerk. When the ultimate is reached articles of a kind will be manufactured by the millions and sold to the millions without regard to individual choice in the making or the buying. There is much virtue in the economics of mass production in general, and the man-in-the-street hardly hopes for the price of the most desirable objects to come within his reach until they have been manufactured by mass methods.

Nevertheless, though we can now have our pictures taken by the simple coin-in-the-slot method or can buy hats, shoes and automobiles so much alike that a twin brother could be troubled to pick his kin from a thousand passers-by, the human equation cannot always be made to equal the conditions of mass methods. We cannot obtain our laws from a reliable factory, but must still depend upon opinionated legislators to alter and amend popular edicts to fit their constituencies. Vital statistics will never adapt themselves to artificial distribution schemes.

But, after all, there is in mass method the true semblance of democracy and cooperation. In order that all may afford certain things each individual sacrifices a certain amount of preference and the resultant product offered to the mass from mass production gives a maximum of satisfaction to all. With necessities, this factor of volume has always been the first consideration, and it is rapidly superseding individual choice in conveniences and luxuries. It is distinctly American and accounts in a large measure for the country's unprecedented prosperity based upon tremendous industry.

LONG A KING

Just seventy years ago a United States Senator declaimed to his associates that cotton was king in America. The assertion has gone with little contradiction until recent years. Now it is urged that there are no kings in America. Cotton is still our greatest crop for export but the country no longer depends upon it for our national progress and prosperity. Our interests are so varied that we have ceased to be dependent upon any one product. Even the South has diversified industries that exempt it from indicating servility to King Cotton. Nowadays some of our women are so swathed in silk that they have almost forgotten what cotton is for.

TO A MOCKING BIRD

By James J. Montague

At four o'clock or thereabout
You sound your daily warning:
You've slept enough, so tumble out
And see the sun this morning.
But how can I, who go to bed
At half-past twelve or one, rise,
See anything, excepting red
When looking at the sunrise?

The while I ply my rake and hoe,
You always hover near me
And all your happy nature throw
In songs designed to cheer me.
The more I labor and perspire
The more you deem your duty
Is to adjure me to admire
A world of light and beauty.

I'm not an optimist, perhaps,
I spend much time reviling
The care-free also thought-free chaps
Who bid me keep on smiling.
And when you get me up at dawn
When I'd prefer to slumber
Or laugh while raking up the lawn—
I count you with their number.

I envy you your happy lot,
But it is not your mission
To tell me daily that I've got
A surly disposition.
When I am worried and upset
Some sympathy is due me,
So please keep still and let me get
A kick from feeling gloomy!

SLOPPING OVER

BY FOOTHILL PHILOSOPHER

It's an unpleasing expression, "slopping over," but it is the only one which adequately conveys our thought concerning the indiscriminately extravagant use of language. Most of us are more or less guilty of slopping over—the majority of us more than less. We are not artists of hyperbolism, we are desecraters of the superlative.

Beginning at home, here is an example of the fact I am trying to emphasize: In the first year of the Pilgrimage Play the writer was assigned the role of an old scribe who, preceding the birth of the Savior, was haled into Herod's palace and made to read, from a great scroll, the following words:

"And thou, Bethlehem, though small, shalt become exalted, for out of thee shall come a prophet who shall rule my people Israel."

In the "try-out" rehearsal I read the line with all the dramatic fervor I could summon—and shall never forget the gentle sarcasm of Henry Herbert, the "lead" and director, as he smiled very broadly and asked: "Do you think, friend, that a white-whiskered scribe would be quite so enthusiastic as all that?"

I had "slopped over," but Mr. Herbert's question made me feel sufficiently empty.

During the days of the ill-fated Woman's Film Company a group of actors and actresses went on location near Chatsworth Park, taking some scenes on a lovely ranch belonging to an old German. The German's daughter became intensely interested in the work and in less than an hour she had become acquainted with a little Spaniard who considered himself a reincarnation of Don Juan. In presence of several members of the company "Don" informed the "madchen" that her eyes were like young moons, her lips the world's prize rubies, her cheeks like the roses of Castile and her hair a match for star-decked midnight. He told her many other things and, as we sat wondering how she was going to take it all, she turned to him with a twinkle in her eye and said:

"Yes, iss dot so? Vell, I sink you iss full off prunes."

It was her way of telling him he had slopped over—and it sunk in.

Slopping over may be all right with a circus press agent. Maybe if he didn't slop over he wouldn't get by. His show is always "the greatest, most stupendous, spectacular, thrilling" proposition in the history of the world. However, we who have seen as many as three motion-picture plays should be forgiven our skepticism when we read the same terms applied to every latest film drama. Of course, if a silent drama costs $1,000,000 to produce, that's an extenuating circumstance—only the P.A. should always be careful to inform the public of said cost, which, of course, he never does.

HE WAS THROUGH

Reggie had been very rude to his father and had been sent to his bedroom as a punishment.

A little later his mother went to see what the boy was doing and found him writing.

"Is that a letter to daddy asking his forgiveness?" she said.

"If you must know," replied Reggie, "I'm writing to the Archbishop of Canterbury to get a divorce from both of you."—[London Tit-Bits.

HIS IDEA OF ARGUMENT

Pacifism is not a philosophy that small boys instinctively adhere to. In the youth of the individual as of the race force is the readiest argument. So the youngster who had listened to a talk on kindness to animals asked:

"What should I do if I saw a boy beating a dog?"

"Couldn't you persuade him not to?" he was asked.

"If he was my size or smaller, I could," he answered, "but what if he was bigger than I am?"—[Youth's Companion.

Amazing and Simple

LONG BEACH, June 2.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I notice an article in The Times of today by a staff correspondent of your paper writing of conditions in Owens River Valley.

In this communication the writer finds divided opinion among the valley inhabitants concerning justification for dynamiting the aqueduct. He has also discovered, and some of the settlers admit it, that the valley folks do not need the wonderful water supply with which nature, wisely or otherwise, provided that locality, and suggests and urges that the valley people cultivate an interest in the marvelous natural scenery up there instead of applying themselves to agriculture and horticulture and stock raising and dismiss from their minds the question of water or riparian rights and never again think of who owns it or where it goes to. In other words, just start a little Switzerland, let the barren soil alone, build big tourist hotels, open parks, advertise, talk climate and matchless sunsets and wonderful scenery and then begin to rake in the shekels faster than they can take care of the surplus; meanwhile turn over the water supply to Los Angeles.

That's a wonderful scheme. It's original. It's unique. It's amazing in its simplicity. Thus far it seems the only rational solution of the water-ownership controversy. It is perhaps safe to assume that had the valley folk needed the water—had any use for it—Los Angeles would never have snatched it. Tourists are what Owens Valley and the adjacent sections need, hot water, only just sufficient to drink.

There Are Others

LOS ANGELES, May 26.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Every speculator in stocks warmly approves the official investigation of Julian's Petroleum Company. We must be protected against ourselves. The desire to improve our material condition allows us to risk our hard-earned money. But we ought to have a fair chance. Why stop at Julian?

I invested $600 in another petroleum concern and $100 in a mine boosted by a local investment house. In both cases the salesmen solemnly swore that their companies would start an intensive advertising campaign and thus double or triple the original investment. They never did anything of the kind. They obtained money under false pretenses. Why not go after them? They are still getting victims.

Thanking you in advance for publishing this letter.

A VICTIM.

An Explanation

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Referring to your editorial in today's Times under the headline, "Facts of the Case:"

Except for the instruction which amounts practically to an assertion that I have issued a financial statement at the behest of one designated as a "Boss" the said reference to me would go unnoted.

But, since I have issued nothing at the behest of anyone and furthermore that I have only met Mr. Parrot once, which was two or three years ago, I deem it proper that I should present some additional "facts:"

My office for years at intervals has compiled and issued "bond statements," using an established form which occasionally is brought up to date by changing figures to agree with the records. These statements are from time to time supplied upon request to eastern and local bond houses, banks, citizens and others calling for them. A supply is kept on hand to obviate the necessity of preparing one for each request. The last issue was compiled April 30, 1927.

On May 29 The Times ran a double-column article under generous headlines referring to the "Meager unused bonding capacity as set forth in the official statement issued by Controller Myers."

Due to absence from the city of my chief accountant, who evidently delivered to a Times representative a "bond" statement, I am unable to know just what it was, yet I'm practically positive that it was one of the stock copies dated April 30.

Furthermore, no different "bond" statements have been given out by me to anyone. A copy is herewith handed you, same as given to all others.

The "fact" that the May 29 article contains a statement that the minimum bonding capacity "under New York laws was $36,000,000" and "under laws of California $3,200,000" leads me to believe that these figures must have come as stated from an "official statement" from my office. I have refused to be led into any controversy in regard to imaginary future bond issues, as none are proposed in election Propositions Nos. 3 and 4 on June 7 ballot.

However, I do not hesitate to state that those responsible for propaganda against those measures which has been used in circular letters sent out by campaign organizations and in public addresses which contained assertions that "the city is now within $4,000,000 of its bonding capacity" could have avoided the issuance and possible embarrassment of such a reckless statement if they had called at my office for "facts" and figures when they would have been supplied with the only "bond" report that my office has given out—just like the one I am handing you. JOHN S. MYERS.
City Controller.

ANTENNA WORK

With number radio reception in our midst the antenna comes in for its full share of attention. On the radio page of last Sunday Don Wallace narrated various antenna systems with which he has had experience. One of them, a mile long, had an average height of 800 feet. Down in Long Beach at this home he has five antennae at lengths varying from a few feet to several hundred.

Over at Hollenbeck Heights there is an intensely interesting radio fan who also has made a special practical study of the antenna. Will Ramsey, for some forty years well known in financial circles of Los Angeles, devised an arrangement by which he has five different aerials and combinations ranging from forty to 170 feet in length.

Although totally blind, Mr. Ramsey experiences absolutely no difficulty in separating stations on his receiver. Sensitive fingers to twirl the dial, particularly acute hearing to detect reception on the loud speaker, and the antenna combinations make a group difficult to beat. And, best of all, the gentleman is a real dyed-in-the-wool radio fan who is always willing to pass his knowledge along to the radio novice.

Madden of 5702 Hauser Boulevard, and ran after the suspect. The chase lasted for two blocks until Miller became winded, but he regained his wind almost immediately upon capture and shouted his innocence to the four winds. The purse contained just $1.

HANSON'S DEATH HELD ACCIDENT

Coroner's Jury in Verdict on Beach Crash

Film Player Much Worried, Friend Testifies

Garage Man Details Story of Finding Body

A verdict of death in an unavoidable accident was returned by a Coroner's jury in an inquest conducted by Deputy Coroner Manfort of Santa Monica yesterday in the case of Einar Hanson, 28 years of age, Paramount actor, who was found dying, pinned beneath his automobile on the Coast highway early last Friday.

Hanson had been worrying over renewal of his contract and about the outcome of a screen test he had just taken for a part he very much desired, it was brought out at the inquest by Axel Hultgren, a close friend of Hanson's. The dead man was considered a good, but a very fast, driver, Hultgran testified. He said that Hanson left the house where the two lived together shortly before 1 o'clock in the morning for a drive to "get some fresh air."

Ted Coker, employe at the Ocean Park garage, told of seeing a speeding car, which he believed to be Hanson's, going past him at the rate of sixty or seventy miles an hour, while he was out on another call about 1:30 o'clock. He related how he had found Hanson, pinned under the car, and how he had difficulty in getting him out because of Hanson's Dobermann-Pinscher police dog, Bella, which was standing guard. In response to a question by the Coroner, Coker said he thought he detected the odor of liquor on Hanson's breath.

The car in which Hanson drove to his death was formerly owned by Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. The inquest was held at the Mandenhall Funeral Home, Santa Monica. Arrangements for services have not yet been made.

CAR RIDER SEEKS DAMAGES

Charging he suffered a broken arm and other injuries when the asserted blow of a street-car conductor knocked him to the floor of a car, Prof. William Dennis Ward, said to be attached to the faculty of Occidental College, was the plaintiff yesterday in Judge Bishop's court in a suit for $35,365 damages against the Los Angeles Railway Corporation.

The asserted altercation occurred April 23, 1926, on a York Boulevard car, according to Prof. Ward, whose story of the incident differed from that told by employes of the railway company.

According to the railway company's answer, Prof. Ward interfered with the conductor who was in the act of evicting a woman passenger who had failed to pay her fare. The company asserted Prof. Ward had no business meddling with the company's affairs, and also denied the conductor struck Prof. Ward.

It was the company's contention Prof. Ward lost his balance and fell, thereby suffering the injuries of which he complained.

SLAYER OF WIDOW AT BAR TODAY

Veteran Hordeman Will be Arraigned on Charge of Self-Confessed Murder

Joseph Hordeman, 63-year-old war veteran and self-admitted slayer of Mrs. Victoria Woods, Venice widow, because he resented her going to dances with other men, will appear today before Municipal Judge Blake for preliminary hearing as the State opens its fight to send the man to the gallows. That the death penalty will be asked was intimated yesterday by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Fisher. Defense plans are unknown, as Hordeman has not definitely obtained counsel.

The charge of murder was filed against him last week when he walked into the Central Station and gave himself up as the slayer of the comely widow.

"I killed her because she made me jealous by running around with other men," Hordeman told detectives. "Now I am sorry and ready to pay the price."

The murdered woman was beaten about the head and body with a piece of lead pipe on May 23, last, at her beach home, 109 Brooks street, Venice. Her ankles had been slashed with a razor, according to Hordeman, with the intent to prevent her dancing. Mrs. Emma O'Bell, also of Venice and friend of the slain woman, also was beaten at the time and now is in the General Hospital in a serious condition.

Hordeman, who lived at the Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle, in his statement to police, said he bought the pipe to intimidate two male friends of the woman, but flew into a rage when he reached the house. He is held without bail.

"Mr. Considine and I are good friends, but we have no intention of being married," Miss Pantages said.

Mr. Considine would neither deny or affirm the report, declaring that a denial should come from Miss Pantages alone.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

SOAP AND WATER FOR THE FACE

I have a letter from a girl who is afflicted with acne. She states that for some years she has never used soap and water for her face, having been told that the face should never be cleansed with anything but cold cream!

Her acne no doubt was made worse by this practice, and might have been brought on by it, to a more or less degree. Milk is another thing that is often advised for washing the face. This also is to be condemned, for it does not cleanse the face sufficiently, and if there is a tendency to infection, the milk on the skin adds to the food for the germs which will produce pimples and boils.

In acne, the skin is always greasier than normal, and the use of milk and creams for cleansing would only make it greasier. In this disorder, strong soaps were used, but for the ordinary cleansing, mild soaps should be used. All soaps should be thoroughly rinsed off.

There is nothing like soap and water to cleanse the skin, and this process is one of the requisites for a healthy and, therefore, a clear skin. As Dr. Oscar Levin in his excellent book, "The Care of the Face," says: "A bowl of water and a cake of good mild soap are whole beauty parlors in themselves."

The skin is an organ; just the same as the heart is an organ. It is not just an external casing entirely apart from the functions of the body. It has its functions, too, aside from that of its encasing work, and it is one of the hardest working of all the organs. It manufactures oil, perspiration, hair and nails; it throws off waste materials; it absorbs; it helps to regulate body temperature and helps protect the body from the elements. The skin, as other organs of the body, sooner or later, in any disease, will show the effect of the disease. It also has diseases of its own.

There is one thing the skin does not do, that beauty advertisements would lead us to believe: It is not fed with any sort of skin foods, depositing fat underneath itself. It is fed just as are the other organs, only through the blood, and while it may and does absorb to a slight degree some substances, they have to go through the regular body chemistry for their absorption.

If you are suffering with acne, you should see a skin specialist, not a beauty specialist. One of the most effective treatments is the use of the X-ray, but this is very dangerous in the hands of any but a specialist.

We have an article on the subject which you may have. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

MILK IS GOOD FOR OLD AS WELL AS YOUNG

"Is it true that when people are old, those elements in milk which go to the upbuilding of children, form poisons because they are not needed? We know that milk does agree with some people, but I never thought it did with me.—Mrs. W."

Milk is the nearest perfect food there is for both young and old, Mrs. W. If the reason you have heard for its being bad for old people is true, then they would have to starve to death, for nearly all of our foods contain elements which are necessary for the growth of children.

Those who feel that ordinary milk disagrees with them, can often take it in the form of buttermilk or acidophilus milk, or boiled, or acidulated with orange or lemon juice, or in the form of custards or cream soups.

We believe that all adults should have at least a pint of milk a day, and if you read the column, you will know that we advise it even while reducing.

Milk is not constipating in itself, and if one is constipated while drinking it, it is simply because there is not enough bulk in the diet or perhaps some other habits are wrong. We have an article on constipation, a list of firms who make the acidophilus milk, and a list of books on the milk cure, all of which you may have by sending a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

ROASTED by LOS ANGELES by JOANNES CORPORATION

...remains of cold chicken (or turkey) into pieces about an inch long and marinate them in a bowl containing one tablespoonful of olive oil, one teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar or lemon juice, a few drops of onion juice, salt and pepper. At the end of half an hour sprinkle with finely chopped parsley, dip them in fritter batter and fry in boiling fat. Drain on a brown paper, and serve with tomato or brown sauce.

ORANGE MARMALADE

A. S. Los Angeles. Select six thin-skinned oranges, three thin-skinned grapefruit, and three thin-skinned lemons. Slice all the fruit very thin, rejecting all seeds and stem ends. Cover with cold water and let stand twenty-four hours. Place in a preserving kettle, bring to a boil and simmer for fifteen minutes. Remove from the fire, pour into an earthern dish and let stand twenty-four hours. Measure and place in a preserving kettle. Add an equal amount of dry granulated sugar. Bring to a boil and boil until a small amount will jell when dropped on a cold plate. Pour into glasses, seal and store in a cool, dark place. Watch carefully while cooking after adding the sugar, as overcooking will make the marmalade dark.

STRAWBERRY CREAM PIE

V. L. W., Los Angeles. Roll out some good pie paste to one-quarter of an inch in thickness and cut in three circular pieces nine inches in diameter (these can be marked with a nine-inch cake pan) and remove the center, leaving a ring one and one-half inches wide. Lay the rings on a buttered baking sheet, prick with a fork and bake a nice brown in a quick oven.

Place four tablespoonfuls of sugar in a saucepan and stir over the fire until the color of maple syrup and pour into it one and a half cupfuls of hot milk and stir until thoroughly dissolved. Add to the milk half a cupful of sugar mixed with one-third of a cupful of flour and stir in a double boiler for twenty minutes over a hot fire. Remove from the fire and stir in the beaten yolk of one egg, half a teaspoonful of vanilla, and a few drops of the lemon extract. Place one of the pastry rings on a round dish, spread this with the cream, cover with a pastry ring, spread this with the cream, and cover with the third pastry ring. Fill the center space with fresh berries mixed with sugar or any good preserved fruit and let stand half an hour before serving. Decorate the top with pieces of the fruit.

CREAM PUFFS

G. D., Los Angeles. Place in a saucepan one cupful of boiling water and half a cupful of butter; bring to a boil, remove from the fire and add all at once one cupful of sifted flour, sifted with one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, and beat hard for three minutes; beat in four eggs, one egg at a time, and beat well after adding each egg. Drop from the end of a spoon onto a buttered baking sheet three inches apart, and bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes. Do not open the oven for twenty minutes. Cool, make a slit in the side and fill with cream filling.

CREAM PUFF FILLING

Place in a double boiler two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, one-third of a cupful of flour, and a few grains of salt. Mix well and add slowly two cupfuls of milk and stir and cook fifteen minutes, or until thick and creamy. Beat in two well beaten eggs, and stir and cook two minutes. Do not boil. Remove from the fire and beat in one teaspoonful of grated lemon rind, and one teaspoonful vanilla extract, and beat two minutes. Cool and use.

PRUNE PIE

M. B., Los Angeles—Soak half a pound of prunes in water to cover overnight. In the morning set over a slow fire in the same water and cook slowly until tender. Cool and remove the seeds. Mix three-quarters of a cupful of sugar with two tablespoonfuls of flour and a few grains of salt, and mix into the cooked prunes and juice. Cook slowly for five minutes or until it starts to thicken. Remove from the fire, stir in two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, two tablespoonfuls of butter, half a teaspoonful of ground cinnamon. Cool slightly, pour into a baked pie shell, cover with a meringue and brown in a slow oven.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE ICING

C.M.N., Hollywood, Cal.—Place in a saucepan two tablespoonfuls of butter, and when it is melted add one cupful of sugar, and four tablespoonfuls of milk. Bring to a boil, and boil ten minutes. Add four tablespoonfuls of ground chocolate and boil five minutes. Do not let the chocolate stick to the sides or bottom of the pan, remove from the fire, and add one teaspoonful of vanilla extract and beat until thick enough to spread.

FRENCH APPLE PIE

Line a deep pie tin with a good short pastry, and bake a nice brown. Peel, core and cut in quarters twelve tart apples, and place them in a saucepan with three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter, the rind of half a lemon and a small piece of cinnamon, let simmer slowly until the apples have been reduced to a thick, smooth paste, remove the lemon peel and cinnamon, add three tablespoonfuls of stewed apricots and the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs; pour into the baked pie shell and when cold cover with whipped cream flavored with vanilla.

BRAN FRUIT MUFFINS

Sift one and one-half cupfuls of sifted flour with seven level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one teaspoonful of salt. Place in a bowl and beat in two cupfuls of bran, three tablespoonfuls of molasses, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one cupful of milk, and one cupful of seeded raisins, mix well, beat in two well-beaten eggs, and bake in buttered muffin tins in a hot oven.

JELLIED PIG'S FEET

I.F.R., Glendale, Cal.—Cover six clean pig's feet with boiling water and cook until nearly tender, then add one sliced onion, one bay leaf, six whole cloves, one red pepper pod, one sprig of parsley, and one teaspoonful of salt and cook until tender.

Remove the pig's feet, skim off the fat and strain the liquor; reduce the liquor one-third; remove the bones from the feet, and place them in an oblong mold; measure the liquor and mix with an equal amount of cider vinegar, and pour all over the boned pig's feet. Set the mold in the ice box for six hours before serving.

PEANUT BUTTER APPLE PIE

Five tart apples, pealed and thinly sliced, three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of salt, one-half a teaspoonful of cinnamon, one tablespoonful of peanut butter.

Line a pie tin with a short pastry, cover the bottom with the sliced apples using half, sprinkle with about half of the sugar, cream the butter and peanut butter, and dot the top of the apples with part of it. Sprinkle with cinnamon, repeat, adding salt to the top layer. Cover with the second crust, pressing the edges tightly together. The oven should be hot when the pie is ready to put into it; but as soon as the crust begins to brown, the temperature should be lowered or the crust will burn before the apples are sufficiently cooked.

GOVERNOR INDORSES JEWISH RELIEF DRIVE

LETTER TO CHAIRMAN HELLMAN EXPRESSES HOPE CALIFORNIA WILL RAISE QUOTA

Gov. Young, in a personal letter to Irving H. Hellman, State chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, indorses the campaign and expresses the hope that California will come forward with a 100 per cent support of the forthcoming drive. He expresses regret that he will be unable to attend the banquet here next Monday at which the local appeal will be launched.

"The appeals now coming from Russia, Poland and other foreign countries indicate that the condition of the Jewish population of Europe is more distressing than at any previous time," writes the Governor, "and that millions are now suffering the ravages of hunger and disease.

"The people of this State have generously participated in previous campaigns for the alleviation of the sufferings of the Jewish people in foreign countries resulting from economic ruin incident to the World War, and I am satisfied that the quota apportioned to California will be speedily raised."

A meeting of campaign workers will be held tomorrow noon at Paulais's Broadway Cafe, Harry W. Louis, chairman of the Los Angeles committee, announced yesterday.

HAIR DRESSERS WILL HOLD DANCE TONIGHT

The eighth annual dance of the Los Angeles Hair Dressers' and Cosmeticians' Association of Los Angeles will be held tonight at Jinnistan's Grotto, 1800 South Figueroa. The honor guests are Al Cristion, President; M. R. Brumme, secretary; Marion Dale, director, and Miss Zoe Hammond, delegates to represent the Los Angeles order at the national convention to be held this year in Cleveland.

Of Interest to Women.

SOCIETY

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

Of more than usual interest to local society is the announcement this morning of the wedding last Friday afternoon of Miss Mary Grant, charming young daughter of William Grant, and George Theodore Wigmore, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Herbert Wigmore of West Adams street, the ceremony taking place in the lovely old home of the bride's father in Vasseville at 4 o'clock.

This news comes as a great surprise to the many friends in the Southland, as there had been preparation for a large wedding late in the summer.

The dainty bride was given in marriage by her father, and Rev. Edwards performed the ceremony.

The bridal gown, was of organdie fashioned in bouffant model, and she carried an arm shower of lilies of the valley, orchids and gardenias, while her sister, Miss Caroline Grant, maid of honor, wore a becoming gown of pale gray chiffon and carried pink rosebuds and maidenhair fern. Roy Rushee served Mr. Wigmore as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Wigmore motored up with their charming daughter, Miss Katherine Wigmore, for their son's wedding, and returned home Sunday evening.

A reception and wedding supper for the relatives and a few most intimate friends followed the ceremony, after which Mr. Wigmore and his bride left for their honeymoon, and after their return to Los Angeles will be for a short time at the George Herbert Wigmore home until they decide upon their own home.

The bride has a host of friends in the Southland, having visited here many times, and was graduated from Miss Ransom's school in Piedmont, while young Wigmore was graduated in 1926 from the University of California in Berkeley, and is affiliated with the Psi Upsilon fraternity.

Mrs. George Herbert Wigmore wore gray chiffon at the wedding, while Miss Katherine Wigmore was in pale blue chiffon.

The decorations were effectively carried out in summer flowers and ferns, pink predominating in the spacious drawing-room, while the altar was in white with myriads of lighted tapers.

The William Grant home is one of the loveliest old estates of California, and in the spacious mansion the charming young bride was born and has passed all of her childhood and girlhood.

The announcement of the engagement was made several weeks ago.

Interesting Lecture

The hostess of Mrs. Sumner P. Hunt, 2040 Severance street, will be the setting for an interesting lecture this afternoon when Lal Chand Mehra, Hindu, will speak at 2:30 o'clock on "The Women of India, Their Past Ideals and Their Present Ideas."

Mr. Mehra is a member of the University of California extension board of lecturership, and the afternoon promises to be one of much information and interest.

For Charleston

Miss Carolyn Cranstill, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Cranstill of 3626 Beachwood Drive, student at Marlborough School, and Miss Becky Dowling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Younger of 143 South Beachwood Drive, are entertaining many of their young friends at a luncheon to be given at the Uplifters' Club in the Santa Monica Canyon Friday afternoon, the 17th inst.

Morton-Linnard

The marriages of Miss Clara Morton, daughter of Mrs. Charles Clarke Morton of Clinton, Iowa, to Leroy Linnard, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Linnard of Pasadena and San Francisco, was one of the lovely events of last evening, the ceremony taking place in the main dining-room of the Lafayette Inn, with Rev. James Marquis Dunn, D.D., officiating.

Before the great fireplace on the east wall an altar was built of banks of peonies, lilies and palms, the peonies shading from the palest pink to rose, and the whole lighted by hundreds of candles. The simply carved Jacobean was a seventeenth century Italian relic, the prayer bench with satin cushion and the tall candles in brass candelabra, and above the altar was an immense wedding bell of fragrant flowers and ferns.

The bride, given in marriage by Eugene Eppley of Omaha, wore an exquisite gown of the period model, white lace and chiffon, the folds caught by sprays of orange blossoms. The veil of tulle was held in place by a slender wreath of orange blossoms and a coronet from the Medici collar of pearls worn by her mother on her wedding day, and she carried an arm shower of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Stephen Wheeler Royce (Dorothy Linnard) of Pasadena, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor, while Miss Ruth Dougherty of Chicago was maid of honor, the other attendants including Miss Elizabeth Curtis, Miss Henrietta Gates and Mrs. Agnes De Clerque of Chicago. Their gowns were all of chiffon from the nymph pink to the deep rose tones fashioned in straight lines embroidered with silver love-birds and they carried arm bouquets of roses to match their frocks, ophelia, butterfly, columbia and the two shades of premier buds.

Little Dorothy Royce, niece of the bridegroom, in a diaphanous frock of Alencon pink bordered with rose petal tulle was flower girl carrying a basket of ophelia buds.

Stephen Wheeler Royce of Pasadena served Mr. Linnard as best man and the ushers included Neil Patterson and Courtland Hancock of Pasadena, William R. Smith, Paul Kelly, and Pierre Barnes of Chicago.

A wedding supper followed the ceremony, the decorations being effectively carried out in peonies, palms and rosebuds, the bride's table being centered by an electric fountain surrounded by larkspur pink sweet peas and lilies of the valley. The ceiling was hidden beneath a canopy of Alabama smilax.

Mr. and Mrs. Linnard left after the supper for their honeymoon and after their return to San Francisco will occupy the home of Mrs. Helen Livermore in Vallejo street until the bungalow which is being built for them atop of the Fairmont is completed.

The bride received her schooling at Kemper Hall at Kenosha, Wis., and was for three years at the University School for Girls on the Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, later finishing at The Bennett School at Millbrook, N. Y., and since then has continued her musical studies under different masters and traveled extensively both in Europe and this country.

Home Again

Mrs. James Harvey Adams, who for more than a year has been abroad, returned to her home, 21 Chester Place, several days ago. Mrs. Adams visited in Paris, and Florence, Italy, and passed quite some time on the Riviera.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. F. J. King of 1400 West One Hundred and Seventh street entertained with an informal afternoon in honor of her sister, Miss Mary Love of West One Hundred and Sixth street, announcing her engagement to W. A. Gee of Auckland, N. Z. Miss Lee has been a teacher in the public schools of California for several years and was graduated from the Cheney State College in Washington. She passed the last year in the university of Oregon majoring in music and is affiliated with the G.O.C. Sorority. She is the daughter of Rev. W. M. Love of 1246 West One Hundred and Sixth street.

Mr. Gee is the only son of Alex Gee of Auckland, New Zealand, and was a student of the University of Spokane, Wash., until coming to Los Angeles two months ago.

Coming Home

Miss Virginia Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Brown, who has been attending school in Washington, D. C., is returning home Saturday, the 11th inst. She is being accompanied by Miss Janet Hutchinson of Oakland, who will be her houseguest for a short visit.

Campus Notes

Sunday afternoon ushered in the first event of the graduation program for the University of California at Los Angeles, when at 4 o'clock baccalaureate service was held in Millspaugh Hall. Six hundred students, the largest number the university has ever graduated, gathered in Sophomore Grove on the picturesque campus for prayer, and then marched to the auditorium. With the sweet strains of Saint-Saens's music played by a choir under the direction of Squire Coerr, the march became a thing of stately beauty and dignified grace.

This afternoon has been chosen as the date for the reception with which Dr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Moore will entertain in honor of the June graduates. Senior banquets will follow tomorrow evening at the Jonathan Club and the 9th will bring forth the class day exercises featuring the senior procession, gift presentation to the university, alumni luncheon, pilgrimage to the Westwood site, and the alumni banquet.

Friday will bring the graduation ceremonies to a close.

Dr. Moore, director of the university, will present the degrees following speeches made by the presiding officer, the director, and the valedictorians. That evening at 9 o'clock in the lovely Hotel Virginia in Long Beach, the senior ball will bring to a close the week's commencement affairs.

Mrs. Barsen formerly was Miss Bobbie Avera of Fort Worth, Tex., and the ceremony took place in the Little Church of the Flowers, Glendale. The bride was charming in a gray traveling costume with bouquet of sweet peas and lilies of the valley. Buchanan of the Arlington Christian Church officiated and Helen Kathleen Walker presided at the organ.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

It Takes Nerve

It takes a brave woman to take brand new stockings and wash them before she has worn them, but they will last a great deal longer if they are washed before wearing in warm water to which a little ammonia has been added.

Care of the Fireplace

Never throw waste paper on an open fire unless you watch it carefully.

All open fireplaces should be provided with fire screens, especially in the home where there are children.

No matter, if it is attractive, avoid that small rug directly in front of the fireplace. A flying spark might cause trouble should it land in its soft nap.

To Clean White Fur

Warm corn meal in the oven. Rub a considerable amount into the fur, shake and cover with fresh meal. Let it stand over night and then shake and brush well.

Tinting Curtains

Before dyeing or tinting curtains run a few threads of white cotton through the ends so they are dyed with the rest of the material. After dyeing they may be pulled out and rolled on a spool to be used for mending or hemming. They will exactly match.

Old Potatoes

If the potatoes you bought for winter use are not quite used up, add a slice of lemon to the water in which they are boiled. It will prevent them from discoloring and give them a better taste.

What Women are Doing

By Myra Nye

A joint conference of the public affairs section of the Friday Morning Club and the motion-picture department of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs will be conducted today in the clubhouse on Figueroa street near Tenth, with Mrs. John Abramson, chairman of the former, and Mrs. E. H. Jacobs, chairman of the latter, presiding.

The motion-picture interest of the club comes under the public affairs committee, and Mrs. John Vrywink, recently appointed film chairman for the club and junior matinee chairman for the district, has arranged the program, the subject of which is "Children and the Movies; Our Problem, or the Industry's, or Both?"

"Whatever anyone's personal reaction may be toward censorship, toward better-films committees or even indifference toward motion pictures generally, there can be little doubt of the necessity of some supervision of children's motion-picture entertainment. Few films are made for children, and yet it is difficult to deny them this experience. The great numbers of children weekly attending motion pictures show that it is a question to be met in some way. How? The woman's organizations in the Los Angeles district are attempting a solution, and certainly but slowly progressing toward definite accomplishment," stated Mrs. Vrywink.

Speakers at this meeting are representative of the school, the church, the home, child welfare, organized recreation and the industry—producers, exhibitors, actors. Each is to have an opportunity to give a side of the question. At the morning session, called at 10:30, Bruce Findlay, head of visual education in Los Angeles; Rabbi Magnin of B'nai B'rith Temple, and Dr. Miriam Van Waters, eminent child psychologist, will speak. Luncheon speakers are E. R. De Groot, Scout executive, Los Angeles district council of Boy Scouts of America; Col. Jason Joy, director of industrial regulations, Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc.; W. H. Lollier, representing West Coast Theaters, Inc., and Fred Thompson of F.B.O. studios.

The Los Angeles Film Board of Trade is to be guests of honor. Without the previous courtesies so splendidly given the women's organizations by the distributors of films, junior matinees would be impossible of accomplishment. The managers of theaters offering junior matinees are to be present also. There are twenty-five theaters in and around Los Angeles giving approved junior matinees. They are given by West Coast Theaters, Inc., including Hollywood Theaters, Inc., and the Venice Investment Company theaters in Santa Monica and Venice, the Pacific Coast Theaters, Inc., and independent exhibitors. The managers of these theaters are pioneers in this phase of child welfare work and deserve community appreciation.

A number of stars whose productions are especially popular with children have been invited, also.

Among others to be present are Miss Rylie Hennington, under whose able direction come the junior matinees of the West Coast circuit; Miss Anne McCabe of the Far West Theaters, J. Skin, clean and draw and thoroughly wash a fine, tender Belgian hare. Set aside the liver and heart. Cut the hare into pieces at the joints. Make a marinade by taking a half-glassful of cider, one large finely sliced onion, the thyme, and bay leaves (finely minced,) and place in a stone jar. Add a half-teaspoonful of grated nutmeg and a tablespoonful of salt and place in this mixture the cut-up hare, and let all steep for six hours. Then lift the pieces out carefully; have ready a saucepan in which has been melted a teaspoonful of butter, and add twelve small onions, glazed; one ounce of ham, minced fine; put the hare into the pan and let all brown nicely for about ten minutes. Then add the flour, finely rubbed, stir well and let brown. Add the tomatoes, peeled and sliced fine; let all brown ten minutes longer, and add the remaining cider and the consomme or water. Stir till it begins to boil; then season according to taste, with salt and pepper. Let all cook for three-quarters of an hour, and add the heart and liver, which you must have finely chopped and thoroughly mixed together. Let all cook for a quarter of an hour longer and serve with toasted croquettes.

Put in an oven and bake for an hour. Serve cold with cream.

YOUR BABY and MINE

A Series of Small, But Ever-Present Problems

Sands and Binders

The infant is dressed when born with a tight binder which encircles the abdomen and keeps the navel dressing in place. That is its only excuse for being, though there is a general misconception about this binder. Some mothers think it is part of the infant's wardrobe the first year and hesitate to remove it. They have an uneasy feeling that the baby will someway crumple up without the tight binder to keep it straight. Of course, that is absurd. As soon as the navel is perfectly healed and need no longer be dressed the binder should be discarded.

To take its place is the part wool and silk, or wool and cotton knitted band. This is exactly like a small shirt, has straps over the shoulders and tabs back and forth to which the diaper is pinned. This can be worn throughout the first year and even longer if the mother is so inclined. It is a protection against changes of temperature, has so little wool that it is not warm, and is really all the baby needs to wear during the hot weather. The band, a diaper, and a slip (or no slip during the daytime,) make a very good hot-weather outfit.

Thrush

Thrush is a yeast growth which comes in the child's mouth. It is due to lack of care with bottles and nipples used in feeding the baby, or in lack of perfect cleanliness in breast feeding. Bottles and nipples must be boiled; and the nipples of the mother should be washed before and after each nursing with boric acid water. This is prepared with one teaspoonful of boric acid crystals dissolved in one pint of boiling water. Cool, bottle and keep covered. The breasts should be protected from soiled clothing by the use of a piece of sterile gauze.

Babies suffer with thrush so that they will cry and refuse to nurse or take a bottle because of the soreness of their mouths. Thrush resembles drops of milk on the tongue or sides of mouth, but when one removes these drops there is a small bleeding spot beneath. To cure the thrush take more care of the feeding apparatus and wash the baby's mouth gently several times a day with the boric-acid solution. Use a fresh piece of cotton each time and do not try to remove the thrush, just wash carefully with the wet cotton. One may also use common baking soda to wash the mouth. Use one teaspoonful of soda in one cupful of water. There is no harm in using the boric and the soda solution alternately.

LARGE, PALE STONES POPULAR IN JEWELRY

PARIS, (AP)—The jewelry of the moment features large delicately colored stones which are preferably square cut. The colored stones fit strikingly into the season's idea that everything must match. It is not unusual for the semiprecious jewel to be as wide as the finger on which it is worn. Occasionally stones are set in onyx or enamel of contrasting color to bring out their delicate tints.

Amethysts are particularly in favor just now. A popular setting for them is silver or a delicate setting of platinum.

NEW WOOL BROCADES SPRING COAT FABRIC

PARIS, (AP)—Wool brocades are among the new materials Paris is making into coats. Self-colored or two-toned, the fabric makes pretty topcoats suitable for sports use or summer motoring. Some of the dressmakers are prophesying that the brocades will form an important part of winter collections but the time for the showing of the winter models is still several months distant.

The topcoats of early spring, often indicate, however, the style of fall coats. Among the prettiest of the spring models are the brocaded wools with shawl collars and facings of fur.

Muffin Pans as Molds

Use the muffin pans when you want to make a molded salad. They just make the size required for serving and take up less room in the refrigerator than several smaller molds. They come in particularly handy when serving many guests, as we seldom have a great number of individual molds on hand.

FOR Acid Stomach
PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

"For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid twenty times as quickly and gently and the action lasts many times longer so that relief and comfort are more pleasant to take.

Try a little bottle of "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" today. Insist upon genuine "Phillips" and avoid imitations. "Milk of Magnesia" is the registered trade mark of the U. S. Registered Chas. H. Phillips and its genuine since 1875.

REASON FOR SUICIDE OF GIRL SOUGHT

Coroner Will Tomorrow Conduct Inquest in Case of Patricia Marshall

An inquest will be held tomorrow morning at the County Morgue over the body of Patricia Marshall, 22-year-old motion-picture extra and stenographer, who committed suicide in her apartment at 1825 Wilcox avenue Sunday by taking poison, it was announced last night by Chief Deputy Coroner MacDonald.

While it is not the general practice to conduct an inquest in a case of suicide, MacDonald said he believes that several angles of the case require more explaining.

One of those who will be called to testify at the inquest, it was learned, will be the physician who attended the girl before her death.

It also was understood that several men mentioned in letters found in the girl's apartment will probably be called to testify. One of these missives contained the name of a local man, and another that of a Harry Rosenberg of Washington. The latter in a letter to Miss Marshall notified that he was stopping payments of $15 a week to her.

Others who are expected to attend the inquest are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marshall, parents of the deceased, who live here.

RADIO STARS GLITTER AT CLUB AFFAIR

Popular Stage Artists Also Take Part in Frolic of Advertising Men

Radio personages in person and selected attractions from a number of Los Angeles theaters were presented by the Advertising Club of Los Angeles in its second annual frolic at Philharmonic Auditorium last night to an audience that packed the hall and gave enthusiastic applause during a performance that lasted from 6:15 o'clock until long after midnight.

The leading amusement enterprises of this city gave excellent co-operation to the Advertising Club in its evening of fun, the choicest offerings from a number of radio broadcasting stations, including KHJ, The Times, were presented in person, while the Hillstreet, Pantages, West Coast and Carthay Circle theaters and a number of individual entertainers gave strength to a strong program.

Harry Carey of motion-picture fame, acted as master of ceremonies and in a costume resembling somewhat that adopted on the stage by Will Rogers presented each new attraction with a line of "wise-cracking" that added considerable to the entertainment. The Philharmonic Auditorium Orchestra, R. A. Shepherd wielding the baton, accompanied the artists. Incidentally, a new song by Mr. Shepherd, entitled "Sweetheart" was sung for the first time on the stage during this performance.

The galaxy of talent that entertained included Tyrolean Zither Club and Swiss Yodelers in Alpine melodies; Jack and Jill; Eve Olivotti and James Burroughs in a musical comedy skit; Lewis and Dody, men of mirth in a hilarious mood; Optimist Male Quartet, harmony—and lots of it; Mabel Leonard and Howard Stevenson, making merry with the ivories; Tony Travers and Joe Zito, melody plus; Sol Hoopii and Hawaiian orchestra; Doris Duncan, musical comedy favorite in popular songs; Royal Lemon and his band of saxophones; Red Wyatt, jazz and the ukulele; Chaplie Wellman, premier monologist; "Seventh Heaven" prologue excerpts; Stewart Thompson, bad-time stories; Calmon Luboviski and Claire Mellonine, violinist and pianist; Hortense Barnhart-Jones, mezzo soprano; Little Eddie Barnes and the Missus; Joseph Diskay, tenor; Frederick V. Bowers & Co., original musical comedy; Fanchon and Marco, headlights from a Loew's State feature.

The committee in charge consisted of Randolph Van Norstrand, J. Howard Johnson, Ralph L. Power, Naylor Rogers, Jerry King, Paul W. Clark and Dave Stannard, chairman.

HOLLYWOOD FILM BRIDE KILLS SELF

Wife of Scenario Writer Said to Have Taken Drug After Family Quarrel

Mrs. Helen St. Clair Evens, 22 years of age, a bride of three months, committed suicide last by swallowing poison, following a quarrel with her husband relative to the manner in which the evening should be spent, according to police. The Evenses, who reside at 2235 North Cahuenga Drive, Hollywood, are affiliated with the motion-picture colony, the husband, known as Arthur Frederick St. Clair, being a scenario writer and also, according to reports, the scion of a wealthy New York family. Mrs. Evens is said to have been a screen actress.

According to Capt. Charles Knowles of the Hollywood police district, the couple had a tiff last Saturday evening and Edwin Bower Hanny, Hollywood writer, artist and friend of the family, in the role of peacemaker, induced the couple to visit the Hollywood Police Station, where Capt. Knowles joined in the peace-making attempt and the couple returned to their home apparently with their difficulties straightened out.

Last night Capt. Knowles states he answered a rush call to the North Cahuenga Drive address on the report that a woman had attempted suicide, and upon arriving found Mrs. Evens dead on the bathroom floor.

It developed that Evens was busily engaged early in the evening writing a scenario, that his wife desired to visit a motion-picture theater and that her husband argued against this outing, stressing the fact that he desired to complete the scenario in hand during the evening.

Mrs. Evens, the police record states, visited the theater alone and returning to her home went directly to the bathroom and swallowed the death-dealing potion. No motive, aside from the family tiff, is ascribed for the suicide.

The couple were quietly married in the afternoon and then stopped at the Embassy Apartments, 708 South Mariposa avenue, preparatory to starting on a honeymoon by motor to Northern California today. The groom is the son of A. B. Wharton of 506 Linden Drive, Beverly Hills.

The Southern California Edison Company is constructing a new thirty-five-mile distribution line to serve the territory northeast of Palmdale. This will give service to the southern part of the Wilsona district where water and soil conditions are very good.

This district has not been developed heretofore solely on account of the lack of electric-pumping facilities. In addition to serving this fine agricultural section, the line will extend to the Big Pines Recreation Camp, usually known as the Los Angeles County Playground. The total cost of the work will be approximately $72,000. This job is one of the many projects that the Edison company has under way in Antelope Valley this year.

Hollywood Pair Hurt in Topanga Canyon Accident

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, June 6.—After being hurtled over a 100-foot bank on a steep Topanga Mountain grade last evening in an accident which demolished their car, Miss Suzanne Lemen of Hollywood and Jack Dunlap of the Mountain View Hotel, also of Hollywood, were removed to the Hollywood Hospital this morning. They first were taken to the Loanchier Hospital in Santa Monica by a passing motorist.

Miss Lemen, who suffered internal injuries which, according to hospital attaches, may prove fatal, was said to have been at the wheel when the car skidded at a sharp turn, crashing down through 100 feet of underbrush on the steep slope. The girl's father is said to have been killed in an automobile accident three years ago. Dunlap suffered deep lacerations and serious bruises, according to reports here.

Five minor auto accidents were on the Santa Monica police list over the week-end.

RECAPTURED FUGITIVE STARTED TO DETROIT

James E. Dyer, alias Jack Owen, Clifford Dwyer and John Murphy, was started yesterday on a return trip to Detroit, where he is said to be wanted to serve a sentence of fifteen to twenty years for bank robbery. Dwyer, according to the officers, escaped from the ninth floor of the Detroit City Jail in 1926, having been held there as a witness in a murder case, though under sentence to State prison.

The officers declare Dwyer escaped also from Lethbridge prison in Alberta, Sask., in July, 1926. He was been an inmate of Stillwater prison in Minnesota, and of San Quentin, according to the officers. He was arrested here May 28 as Jack Owen, an auto theft suspect, and identified as Dwyer by finger prints.

PARAMOUNT ASSIGNS DIRECTORS

Von Sternberg for Bancroft; D'Arrast Directs Menjou; Edouard Raquello Leaves Universal for M.-G.-M.; Schertzinger Will Direct MacLaglen

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

Two announcements of importance concerning directorial assignments came from the Paramount studio yesterday. The first is that Josef Von Sternberg will guide George Bancroft's first starring picture; the second was that H. D'Abbadie D'Arrast will direct his second successive Adolphe Menjou vehicle. Neither picture has been titled. For one it is a vote of confidence. For the other it is no less than a triumph. Double honors, as it were, for the two men who first came to motion-picture prominence in America through association with Charles Chaplin.

Von Sternberg was given the Bancroft picture because of his fine work with "Underworld," the Ben Hecht story in which the recent gunner of "Old Ironsides" and Happy Joe of "The Rough Riders" plays Bull Weed, king of gangland. Jesse L. Lasky rates Bancroft's work in this new Paramount picture among the finest screen characterizations of the day. "Underworld" is Von Sternberg's first for Paramount after a hectic directorial career in the studios that began when he made "The Salvation Hunters," the picture that brought praise and a chance from Chaplin, on a shoestring.

D'Arrast's assignment to the second Adolphe Menjou picture follows his guidance of "Service for Ladies," just completed, in which Kathryn Carver plays opposite the star. This new vehicle, as yet untitled, will be the third in which D'Arrast and Menjou have been associated.

Morris Gest's "Sumurun"

It is likely that when Morris Gest returns from abroad, he will have some tremendously important production plans, both for stage and screen.

One very big bee buzzing in his bonnet at present, according to report, is the idea of producing "Sumurun" at the Bowl, with Pola Negri in the role which she played in Max Reinhardt's production of the big spectacle made in Europe.

—o—

Carol Dempster's Plans

"I do not know whether I shall play in D. W. Griffith's first United Artists' picture or not. It all depends on the story he decides upon. But I shall be glad, in any case, of a vacation, as I have been working very steadily during the past year and more."

Carol Dempster, chatting about her plans yesterday, went on to say that she means to buy a house at the beach, probably at Palos Verdes.

"I'm going to Santa Barbara in the course of the next week or two," the star proceeded, "and after that I'm going to take in all the old places I knew as a child—Mt. Lowe, Wilson's Peak, Catalina, San Francisco and San Diego. It is very nice to be at home again. I'm buying a horse, and shall go riding every morning in Beverly Hills.

"I brought my parrot west with me, and he likes it out here, too. I sat in the baggage car with the bird about half the way out from New York. He had had pneumonia in Chicago."

Miss Dempster brought a couple of chic style features with her from New York. One was a gross of black silk stockings, which, she says, have completely displaced the flesh and other light tints in hose so long in vogue; another was the figure of a cute little wire-hair terrier, made from pipe-cleaner wire, which adorned the side of her sport hat.

The star will remain here, and has sent for her New York hares and penates. Her family, including her sisters, brother and father, are here.

Edouard Raquello Signs

The fascinating Edouard Raquello, noted Polish actor of screen and stage, whom Carl Laemmle brought to this country about a year ago, has completed his contract with Universal, and will shortly, according to report, affiliate himself with another of the larger companies.

EDOUARD RAQUELLO

In the meantime, Raquello has signed to play the leading male role in support of Tim McCoy in the latter's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle, "The Gallant Gringo," which Viatcheslaw Tourjanski will direct, with Dorothy Sebastian playing the leading feminine role.

The role which the distinguished European will play is that of a dashing Spanish caballero.

Raquello's stage experience includes, at its very beginning, a leading role with Max Reinhardt in "Sumurun," when that great production was first staged in Europe. Following that he played many roles both on stage and screen in Germany and other European countries.

Schertzinger Directs McLaglen's Next

Sol M. Wurtzel, general superintendent of the Fox West Coast Studios, announced yesterday that Victor McLaglen will be directed by Victor Schertzinger in his next production. The story, so far, is called "The Black Gang," and is an original by Daniel J. Tomlinson and Laura Hasse. In the picture McLaglen will play the role of a dashing captain of a tramp steamer, a gay Lothario sort of sea devil, blessed with a careless philosophy and a sweetheart in every port. In other words, a role exactly suited to the McLaglen personality on the screen.

VICTOR McLAGLEN

Director Schertzinger is busy assembling the cast for this production, which will be under way in two or three weeks. Who will play the leading feminine role, the girl who changes the hero's outlook on life, has not yet been decided, but a number of Hollywood's most successful leading ladies are being considered.

Glen McWilliams will handle the photography. He was responsible for the excellent effects achieved in "Peter Grimm" and other Victor Schertzinger productions.

Rex Lease Signs

That rising young actor, Rex Lease, who recently signed a long-term contract with F.B.O., has just been chosen to play the juvenile lead in Ralph Ince's "South Sea Love," on which the director will begin shooting as soon as preparations now under way are completed.

REX LEASE

Lease has previously appeared several times in Ralph Ince productions, including "Not For Publication" and "Molders of Men." His latest role for F.B.O. was that of Tom Clancy in "Clancy's Kosher Wedding," which has just been completed and is now in the cutting room.

—o—

Paramount Signs New One

The third "unknown" to be lifted from Hollywood obscurity to the road to fame within a week has been given a contract by Paramount. Warren Burke is the fortunate young man.

Lane Chandler and Shirley Dorman were the other two lucky unknowns. Chandler has been signed to play leads in westerns, while Shirley Dorman has been placed on a long-term contract that may raise her to stardom.

—o—

Beauty Signs With F.B.O.

Another beauty has been added to the F.B.O. forces. She is Lillian Gilmore, the 17-year-old daughter of Barney Gilmore, the well-known Irish romantic actor, who recently appeared in "Castles in the Air" at El Capitan Theater.

LILLIAN GILMORE

Miss Gilmore has appeared in a series of Universal pictures in which she had the leading role in support of both Al Wilson in "The Phantom Flyer" and "A Western Romance," directed by Bruce Mitchell and William Wyler, respectively.

Her first picture at F.B.O. will be as lead for Robert Bradbury in a feature yet unnamed. Mr. King intends to develop his new find along the line of juvenile leads in some special features.

—o—

Charlie Farrell Better

Reports from the Good Samaritan Hospital indicate that Charles Farrel is one of the best of patients, even though he is suffering with a broken foot.

Charles's room has been filled with friends and flowers ever since he decided to become a recluse for a few weeks, and the young man has been showered with attention by his many friends in Hollywood.

—o—

Malcolm Stuart Boylan Signs

That up-and-coming young writer, Malcolm Stuart Boylan, has signed on a new contract with Fox Films.

Lucila Mendez on Stage

LUCILA MENDEZ

The beauteous Lucila Mendez known in private life as Mrs. Ralph Ince, is to play the role of Hazel in the Potboiler production of "A Man's Man," scheduled for this week.

Miss Mendez is the daughter of former President Castro of Venezuela, and became a star overnight on Broadway by winning the major honors in the musical comedy production of "Little Jesse James." Prior to that she had scored in several Winter Garden successes as a dancing star, and later in successes on a par with that of "Little Jesse James."

The play boasts many interesting stars, including Charles Ray, Patsy Ruth Miller, Carmelita Geraghty and others.

James Tingling Promoted

James Tingling is a firm believer that sincere effort will ultimately achieve success. Mr. Tingling has just been promoted from the ranks of assistant director to a director, by Sol M. Wurtzel, general superintendent of Fox west coast studios, and will make his bow behind the official megaphone when "Ladies Must Dress" goes into production within a few weeks.

Tingling has been connected with the Fox organization for the past four years, and has been associated with some of the most successful productions made during that time.

Young Pianist Wins Splendid Music Prize

Colette Nance was the fortunate young pianist winning the Fitzgerald Music Company prize of a Knabe grand piano at the annual contest held last Saturday morning at the Beaux Arts Building.

Twenty-six students of piano each played the first movement of the Liszt E-flat concerto for a group of representative musicians, who acted as judges. The players were all non-professionals and played behind a screen. Several remarkably fine pianists were discovered under these difficult test conditions. Marquita Kless and Sally Gardman were also exceptionally good.

Besides the piano Miss Nance will be given an appearance with the Glendale Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Modest Altschuler.

James Taber Fitzgerald spoke graciously in behalf of the music company in presenting the piano.

This is the third year of the Fitzgerald contests and both the interest and quality of performances has grown each season. Hundreds of pupils are influenced for good through striving for this prize. The contest is conducted by the educational department of the company under the direction of Mr. Walter David. It is one of the finest educational enterprises conducted by a commercial firm in this city.

Orange Grove to Show Drama Made in Berlin

In line with the change of policy of the Orange Grove from a legitimate theater to a cinema house, Louis O. Macloon last night announced that he has booked the German film production, "Slums of Berlin," to follow the "Naked Truth" and to open Sunday morning for a limited engagement.

Produced by the National Film A. G. of Berlin, Germany, "Slums of Berlin" was directed by the Teuton film director, Gerhard Lamprecht, with a cast comprising some of the best known stars of the German motion picture industry.

Several other unusual film productions booked by Macloon will make their appearance at the Orange Grove following "Slums of Berlin," it is said.

Los Angeles film fans will find "Slums of Berlin" an abrupt change from the usual film fare, reports indicate.

Bernhard Goetzke heads a cast of German screen players. Arthur Bergen, Aud Egede Nissen, Mady Christians, George John, Frieda Braut and a big cast are also seen in "Slums of Berlin."

De Mille Studio Secures Story as Joy Vehicle

Lenore J. Coffee can now justly add another triumph to her long list of successful original stories. According to announcement from the Cecil B. De Mille studios, "The Angel of Broadway," from the prolific pen of this prominent scenarist, is to be produced on a lavish scale with Leatrice Joy in the starring role.

Recognized as one of the biggest box-office stars on the screen, Miss Joy is said to be thrilled over the possibilities which Miss Coffee's original story affords and has personally expressed her appreciation to the authoress.

A significant feature lies in the fact that exhibitors throughout the country have become cognizant of Miss Coffee's ability to write the type of original stories which prove popular with the public. Such creations as "The Night of Love," "Lonesome Ladies" and the screen version of "The Volga Boatman" established her as possessing a thorough understanding of the type of entertainment desired by picturegoers, they claim.

EDDIE PEABODY WILL RECORD FOR WARNERS

Recruiting talent from among the stage's headline attractions, Vitagraph work is rapidly progressing in the new laboratories erected on the Warner Brothers West Coast lot. Eddie Peabody, sometimes called "the banjo-maniac," has been engaged to make a Vitaphone appearance. For this subject, Eddie will play five different string instruments, according to Sam L. Warner, in charge of Vitaphone activities.

Five Vitaphone subjects will be completed this week, states Mr. Warner, who is in Hollywood to inaugurate the first work in the western Vitaphone studio.

South Sea Business

SOUTH SEA ROMANCE

FICTION and poetry galore have painted the enticements of the South Sea Isles. But there is another kind of literature concerning them which, to the Southern California manufacturer and exporter, gives these distant lands a far more substantial charm.

It comes in the form of a bulletin from the Trade Extension Department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, summarizing inquiries received from foreign countries about American made products. In one recent issue there were inquiries from New Zealand, Tahiti, Australia and Hawaii concerning more than forty different products that can be profitably supplied out of Los Angeles Harbor!

Those inquiries are not being ignored. Enterprising manufacturers in Southern California who have been following up these and other leads have built up a trade with the archipelago that brings into Los Angeles the price of several skyscrapers every year!

Leading importers and exporters of Southern California have found the foreign trade service of the Farmers and Merchants National Bank unusually well developed. This bank has specialized in foreign bills of exchange and currencies, financing foreign shipments, making foreign collections and other activities connected with overseas commerce.

No matter where you sell, from Finland to South Africa and from Manchuria to Chile, you will find our service valuable.

'TRELAWNY' AN INSPIRATION

Pinero's Whimsy Enchants Mason Audience

All-Star Cast Lends Magic to Production

Lackaye, Kellerd and Others Among Principals

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

It isn't so much the play, but the players, and yet . . . it is the play! That's for "Trelawny of the wells," an old rose blossom in the theatrical garden, grown heavy of late with weeds and cockles, that bloomed here last evening. It is redolent of perfume and beauty, and curiously an inspiration. And I have no other word regarding it than to say that those who see it with a mood of sentiment will love this creation by Arthur Wing Pinero, played by a cast that is like a Thespian's Blue Book, at the Mason Theater.

Only John Drew was missing, or the evening would have been idyllic in its perfection. But there were Wilton Lackaye and John E. Kellerd, and Henrietta Crossman and Effie Shannon, Rollo Peters, Peggy Wood, J. M. Kerrigan, Otto Kruger, and others that I shall mention, to lend luster to the occasion. Truly an all-star revival!

I do not recall when such a cast has been assembled in ages. The nearest that comes to mind is that in "The Rivals" when Mrs. Fiske, Chauncey Olcott, James T. Powers, Tom Wise and others were seen together. But the "Trelawny" cast is bigger and greater, and the play more charming, and more meaningful to a present-day audience.

"Trelawny of the Wells" is a play of player folk—Trelawny herself a player, and the "Wells" a theater in London in the sixties. An unfamiliar period, perhaps, and an unfamiliar setting, but with both you are brought into intimate contact during the unfoldment of the four acts that compose this singularly fascinating comedietta.

Comedietta! The word is a rare classification, and it matches ideally in this instance. Who but a Pinero might have applied it, and with such delicate accuracy. It lifts again to a new estate the man who wrote "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," "Mid-Channel" and other more somber dramas, now only half remembered.

This piece is in a different vein—and without problems, except those that are light as whimsy. Yet the technique is unfailing. There are few plays that touch "Trelawny" for skilled construction, and which are so slightly obtrusive in their manner.

For all that the first and second acts are of the airiest texture, both close poignantly, and though the third act touches the heart of pathos its finale is one of gayety.

There is slowness, of course; much of it at times in the play. The dialogue lags in interest at moments. But again and again is it lifted up and revitalized; by some arabesquing phrase or situation that turns the whole stage into enchantment.

The scene where Trelawny sings and speaks her farewell to her fellow players . . . how like a dewfall of refreshment in its poignancy. It moves quick upon the long, wordy and bombastic speech of Telfer, the proprietor of the boarding house, and follows immediately the clumsy halting one made by Trelawny's lover. These are the high lights—the arabesques of the first act.

The forepart of the second act is gay fun where Trelawny tries to accommodate her temperament to the home of the Gowers, with their stiff English formality. The scene becames boisterous when her player friends are secretly brought into the house, and end when she leaves it with them, forsaking her fiance.

The third act is one that I think I like best—particularly that part of it where touchingly Trelawny puts on her head the circlet of gold worn by her mother as Cordelia, and the crusty old Vice-Chancellor dons sword and buckler after the fashion of Edmund Keane, divulging his secret love for the theater.

"Trelawny" is sunshine and shadow mingled—spring-like, April-like. It is a play that means most perhaps to player folk, because it is so skillfully about them. Yet it is a play that in the right mood everyone can appreciate. And it is perfectly, nay effulgently, acted.

I would hardly attempt to decide the greater proficiency in the instance of so excellent a cast. There are too many that win an almost equal approval. O. P. Heggie undoubtedly deserves much for his work as the vice-chancellor, raised from the minor part of the grocer to this role, owing to the illness of John Drew, and playing it with an amazing forcefulness. The big victory is in many ways his, for he is indeed an excellent actor.

But then what gems the others—Lackaye with his speech, Kellerd with his refusal to accept a role in a pantomime to be given at the "Wells" and his final acceptance; Effie Shannon, with her tremendulous and bird-like fluttering as the maiden great aunt; Peggy Wood with her dash, her breeziness and gayety; Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, Laurence D'Orsay, whom I should have mentioned ere this, with his dangling side whiskers. These are the character parts chiefly, and nearly all are amusing.

But there is nothing prettier in the play than the sympathetic and brisk acting of Helen Gahagan as Rose Trelawny—the big feminine part, of course. Nor than that of Estelle Winwood as Avonia.

Much in commendation may be said of Eric Dressler as Arthur Gower, as well as Rollo Peters in the role of Tom Wrench. That's not to overlook Otto Kruger who contributed broadly to the comedy.

Miss Gahagan, by the way, reminds a little of Roberta Arnold. The transitions that she made in the role of Rose were unusually telling, and she showed a sparkling spirit throughout the portrayal, that held dominance. Her scene with Heggie in the third act was the sheerest beauty.

"Trelawny of the 'Wells'" may truly be noted by the theatergoers as a pearl of the rarest.

WIDESPREAD RELEASE MADE ON SEX DRAMA

S. S. Millard, manager of the California Theater where "Is Your Daughter Safe?" is in its twelfth week, announces that this picture is now being shown all over the country. Three theaters in greater New York are now giving the film before audiences as large as those at the California. Two theaters in Chicago have "Is Your Daughter Safe?" on their bills, and Detroit, Toledo, Dallas and Fort Worth are also showing it. In addition there are a number of smaller towns where it is playing.

The success of "Is Your Daughter Safe?" at the California induced Mr. Millard to send the picture over the United States.

Taylor Holmes

Well remembered for past successes on the comedy stage, makes his bow tonight in the title role of "The Great Necker," the new farce which will be presented at the Belasco.

Script Writer Proves Adept at Direction

Luther Reed may point with pride to the fact that since he left the newspaper business to enroll himself under the Paramount banner as a director, not one of his pictures has been a failure.

LUTHER REED

A product of Wisconsin, Reed first studied at Columbia University to be a mining engineer, gave up that ambition to enter newspaper work on the old New York Herald and then entered the picture field in 1917. He first worked as a script and adaptation writer at the Metro and Ince studios on the West Coast and at the Cosmopolitan studio in New York. With Cosmopolitan he served chiefly on Marion Davies productions, writing continuities for "When Knighthood Was in Flower," "Little Old New York," "Yolanda" and others.

Since joining Paramount he has been engaged on Richard Dix pictures, "The Shock Punch," "Womanhandled," "Let's Get Married" and "Say It Again." He also assisted in the script for W. C. Fields first starring picture, "It's the Old Army Game."

As a director Reed completed "The Ace of Cads," and "Evening Clothes" with Adolphe Menjou, and "New York," featuring Ricardo Cortez and Lois Wilson.

Extends Run to Send Star Here in Play

A. H. Woods, the producer, is sending the stage favorite, Florence Reed, to California, after revising his plan to call it a season after the Chicago engagement of "The Shanghai Gesture," and return the show to New York to prepare for the forthcoming appearance in London. Miss Reed will open a limited engagement at the Erlanger Biltmore Theater Monday evening in this play of the Orient, written by John Colton.

Altogether it is planned to have her stay twelve weeks in California. She will then return to New York on her way to London. Miss Reed will be accompanied to the West by the same players who have appeared in her support throughout the New York and Chicago engagements.

SURPRISES PROMISED

Donlin Testimonial Program Will Number Many Favorites

Even with the array of talent shown at the dress rehearsal last night at El Capitan Theater for the Mike Donlin testimonial to be held at the Philharmonic Auditorium Thursday night, some surprises are being withheld for the main event by Paul Nicholson, chairman of the program committee. Executive Secretary Harry Bailey and Lou Houseman, in charge of publicity.

A minstrel show will precede the program of vaudeville, and will bring together a company and audience of distinguished persons of stage, screen and sports.

John Barrymore, chairman of the entertainment committee; George Jessel, Lew Cody, Charles Murray and Fred Niblo, masters of ceremonies; Arthur Kay, musical director, and many others will be seen in skits and heard in musical numbers and other divertissements.

Seats for the performance are selling at the Philharmonic Auditorium, theaters, hotels and agencies. The proceeds will defray the expense of a major operation to save the life of Mike Donlin, former stage, screen and diamond star.

LORNA MOON'S INHERITANCE

Lorna Moon, scenarist of "Mr. Wu" and "After Midnight," has just fallen heir to a woolen mill in Scotland. For 800 years this mill has woven material for the kilts of the Cameron clan, to which this writer belongs. Miss Moon has appointed an overseer for her property, but receives weekly reports of the mill's output.

Jane Morgan to be Hostess at Saturday Show

Jane Morgan, who has been a favorite character player in Los Angeles for over three years, during which time she has been playing steadily at the Morosco, will be the guest of honor at a public reception to be held on the stage of the theater immediately following the matinee of "The Creaking Chair," Saturday. To everyone attending, the theater will present a souvenir photo of Miss Morgan.

This reception will be the third one held at the Morosco in the past few months. They have proved so popular that the management of the theater expects to repeat them frequently. On the stage with Miss Morgan, Saturday afternoon, will be Kay Hammond and John Litel, who are playing the leading roles in "The Creaking Chair," Hazel Reading, Mitchell Harris, James Bush, Ruth Handforth, Harry Garrity, Frederick Pymm, Charles Buck and Arthur Belasco.

Pearce Travels to Oakland for Comedy Opening

A. Leslie Pearce, director of the Hollywood Play House, having seen "The Little Spitfire" get off to a flying start at this theater, traveled to Oakland to see the opening of Berton Churchill and Frances Underwood in "Alias the Deacon" at the Fulton Theater on Sunday night, which is expected to be as big a success there as it was in Hollywood.

The "Deacon" said that he was glad to hear of the success of "The Little Spitfire."

A fight film that is said to have all the punch of the real thing, plus the well-known Dix brand of humor, is "Knockout Reilly," now playing at the Rialto.

Adapted from the story by Albert Payson Terhune, "Knockout Reilly" stars Dix as a young steel worker who, after many vicissitudes, attains to a pugilistic championship. Mary Brian and Jack Renault are featured.

FORUM WILL SHOW "VANITY" TONIGHT

LEATRICE JOY

Tonight the Forum Theater will present Leatrice Joy's latest starring vehicle, "Vanity," a C. Gardner Sullivan production directed by Donald Crisp. This marks Miss Joy's return to the more serious type of role, for which she was known at the height of the Lasky-De Mille era. The supporting cast is headed by Charles Ray and Alan Hale.

The Forum management expects a premiere of the sort which is generally characterized as "brilliant."

"SNATCHERS" IS SURE-FIRE COMEDY

Screen Version of Popular Stage Play Returns Much of Original Humor

BY MARQUIS BUSBY

Sauce for the goose does equally well for the gander.

There isn't the slightest doubt about it after seeing what a tempting dish this recipe does for "Cradle Snatchers," which is showing at Pantages this week.

"Cradle Snatchers" was one of the most hilarious stage comedies of the last several seasons, and Fox Films have been successful in transferring much of the humor of the original to the screen.

It is hardly necessary to tell the plot for it is more or less well known. Suffice to say that it concerns three middle-aged wives who discover that their respective husbands are taking one last fling at youth—looking upon girls who have—ah—curves, and upon night clubs when they are disreputable. The wives, instead of going into hysterics or buying one-way tickets to the Paris divorce mills, go and do likewise. They hire three fraternity boys to pay attentions to them. And then that proverbial worm not only turns, but does handstands and flip-flops as well.

The high point of the comedy comes at a more or less wild party when the husbands and their flapper friends walk in upon the wives and their fraternity gallants. All cradle snatching.

Some of the situations are decidedly risque. In fact, the ice wears quite thin, but at the same time it never becomes vulgar.

It is hard to say where first acting honors should fall. The three wives are uniformly excellent and the three college boys play with all the pseudo worldliness of the very young. For one of the very rare times on the screen the youngsters actually look collegiate.

Louise Fazenda has seldom been seen to better advantage than Susan, the flighty wife. Her scenes with Don Jose Vallejo, the Spanish osteopath, are sure to evoke laughter. Ethel Wales is very good as Ethel, the nervous wife with a conscience. Dorothy Phillips is charming as the third wife, although her role affords no particular opportunities.

Arthur Lake is likely to find himself very much in demand following his appearance as Oscar, the bashful Swedish boy. Just as Oscar on the stage very nearly walked off with the play, so does Oscar almost turn the trick on the screen. Joseph Striker is a handsome Don Jose Vallejo, and Nick Stuart is an engaging juvenile as Monty, the "Dixer."

Franklyn Pangborn, J. Farrell MacDonald and William Davidson are the three aging Romeos who "go hunting for ducks and bring back chickens." Dione Ellis is a pretty Ann Hall.

Howard Hawks has given "Cradle Snatchers" smooth direction. There are no particularly glaring faults with the exception of one example of bad cutting. Malcolm Stuart Boylan is responsible for the amusing titles.

Not to stint matters in the least Pantages is offering an unusually attractive vaudeville bill in addition to the picture. The Mangean Moscow Revue is extremely colorful, while Frederick Bowers, Kerr and Ensign, Jeanne Houston, Charles Willis and Harry Howard and company offer acts of merit.

Story Shows How History Repeats Self

A cowpuncher and horse-dealer once sold a beautiful bay horse to Theodore Roosevelt, and twenty-eight years later sold a double of the horse to Roosevelt's living "double."

Simon Rothstein is the dealer, and at the story runs that at the time "Teddy" and his Rough Riders were encamped at the fair grounds in San Antonio, Tex., he brought his own mount to the colonel and said, "Sir, I think you will like this horse.' T. R. did, and he bought it.

Victor Fleming, director of "The Rough Riders," the film now playing at the Million Dollar Theater, was anxious to find a horse similar to Roosevelt's. Four months ago, when the company was in San Antonio, Rothstein drove his best mount up to Frank Hopper, who portrays Roosevelt, and sold it to him.

Will Elaborate Prologue for 'Topsy and Eva'

With the 16th inst. definitely chosen as the date of the world premiere of the Duncan Sisters in their first picture, "Topsy and Eva," and on the stage in Sid Grauman's prologue, instead of the 10th inst., as originally announced, a schedule of day and night rehearsals has been instituted for the prologue to make the introduction to the film even more elaborate than at first planned.

By selecting a new day for the opening Grauman has the opportunity to perfect special novelty acts in the prologue which could not have been sufficiently rehearsed for presentation at the time originally fixed.

Al Jolson Buys New Residence in Washington

Al Jolson has just purchased a new home for his father, Rabbi Morris Yoelson, in Washington, D. C. It is a ten-room colonial design on Lanier Place.

Jolson was born in Washington, and went to school there. He began his stage career in Zangwill's "Children of the Ghetto" at the age of 12. Prior to that he was a newsboy, with Senators and Congressmen as his patrons. He also worked as a page boy in the Senate.

The blackface comedian is now in his last week at the Biltmore and will move his musical show, "Big Boy," to San Francisco after Saturday night's performance. "Big Boy" will not play elsewhere in Southern California.

OLANDS GO EAST

Warner Oland and Mrs. Oland left on the Chief last night for a four weeks' stay at their farm in Massachusetts. This trip is in the nature of a gift from Jack Warner of Warner Brothers, to whom Oland is under contract. Upon his return Oland will resume his work as the cantor in support of Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer."

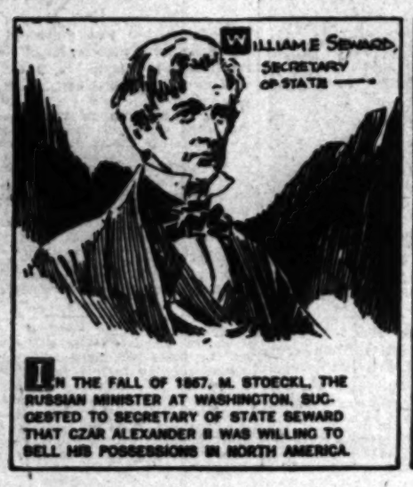
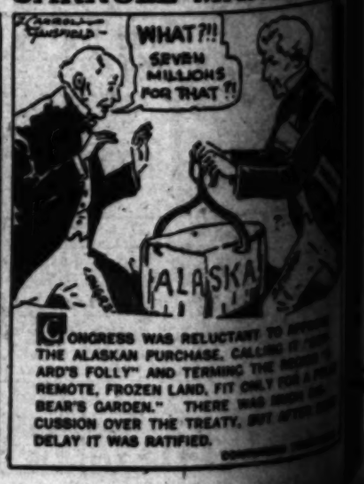
The Story of Alaska—Part Two. by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD



IN THE FALL OF 1867, M. STOECKL, THE RUSSIAN MINISTER AT WASHINGTON, SUGGESTED TO SECRETARY OF STATE SEWARD THAT CZAR ALEXANDER II WAS WILLING TO SELL HIS POSSESSIONS IN NORTH AMERICA.

SEWARD BELIEVED THAT RUSSIAN AMERICA (ALASKA) WOULD BE A VALUABLE ACQUISITION TO THE UNITED STATES, AND OFFERED TO BUY IT. THE TERMS WERE ARRANGED, AND THE PURCHASE TREATY SIGNED ALL IN ONE EVENING.

THE UNITED STATES WAS TO PAY RUSSIA $7,000,000 IN GOLD AND SETTLE THE CLAIMS OF THE RUSSIAN AMERICAN COMPANY FOR $200,000. WHEN BROUGHT BEFORE CONGRESS, THE TREATY CREATED GREAT SURPRISE.



CONGRESS WAS RELUCTANT TO APPROVE THE ALASKAN PURCHASE, CALLING IT "SEWARD'S FOLLY" AND TERMING THE REGION A REMOTE, FROZEN LAND, FIT ONLY FOR A POLAR BEAR'S GARDEN." THERE WAS SOME DISCUSSION OVER THE TREATY, BUT AFTER SOME DELAY IT WAS RATIFIED.

County Claim Follows Lands Annexed by City

Supreme Court Ruling Made on Washington Place

A county government has the right to complete a road project over which it has gained jurisdiction, even if the territory to be assessed for the improvements has been annexed to a municipality, according to an opinion handed down here yesterday by the State Supreme Court, sitting en banc.

The decision granted the appeal of the Allied Amusement Association Brown-Crummer Company and C. Shurra, a taxpayer, for a writ compelling County Treasurer Byram to sign bonds amounting to more than $250,000 for the opening of Washington Place, a proposed straightening of Washington Boulevard where it makes a wide curve near Culver City.

According to Assistant County Counsel O'Connor and S. W. Odell, counsel for the petitioners, the county of Los Angeles recently completed all preliminary steps except the signing of bonds for the opening of Washington Place.

Before the bonds were issued the unincorporated area to be assessed for the improvement was annexed to Los Angeles. The County Treasurer refused to sign the bonds until the court determined whether the county still had jurisdiction over the improvement proceedings.

The court will be in daily session until Thursday evening.

STORK AIDS FATHER GETTING OUT OF JAIL

On the plea that his wife recently presented him with a daughter he has never seen, and that he is needed at home, Chester Pritchard, 26 years of age, yesterday had his bail reduced from $1000 to $500 by Judge Burnell and was set at liberty.

Pritchard, Mrs. Bessie Nelson and Alfred Le Verne are charged with conspiracy to burn the home of Mrs. Nelson at 1437 Bicker street to collect the insurance. The fire took place in February, but the house was damaged only slightly, it is said. The trio are scheduled to be tried July 5.

FIRST BELL FOR PEDESTRIANS

Traffic Bureau Captain Says Only Cars Must Wait Second Signal

A police order which would have required pedestrians at crossings regulated by traffic signals to wait for the second bell was explained away yesterday by Capt. Spellman of the police traffic bureau.

The order, Capt. Spellman said, is intended to apply to motor vehicles only. Pedestrians will be permitted to cross at the first bell, as they have been accustomed to do, but motorists who attempt to anticipate the "go" signal will be tagged, he said.

Two Negroes Sought After Attacking Girls

Deputy Sheriffs yesterday were searching in the hills near Belvedere for two negro youths who attacked two white girls Sunday night after binding and gagging their escorts. The negroes are believed to be those who recently attacked Mrs. Rose Henry near Culver City after binding her husband.

The girls, Ethel Kyker, 16 years of age, 1268 Reicher street, Belvedere, and Rosebelle Neff, 16, 1001 Fetterly street, Belvedere, were taken to the General Hospital. The girls, accompanied by Delos Paul, 914 Clella street, and Levon Wilkins, 202 South Main street, both of Belvedere, were sitting in a parked car in Oak street, Montebello, when a negro appeared on each side of the car. One of the negroes, according to the report, opened the car door and fired a shot in the floor. The negroes held up the youths and took their money and watches and then bound and gagged them. They then forced the girls to drive away with them.

Working loose from their bonds the boys notified the Sheriff's office and a search was made. Deputy Mendoza found the girls in the car in a field, their clothes torn, and rushed them to the hospital.

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU HEAD HERE

Edward L. Green, managing director of the National Better Business Bureau, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday for a conference with Perrin R. Miller, manager of the Los Angeles Bureau, and Ross Welch, chairman of the board of directors, in an effort to work out a plan of expansion for the work of the bureaus. The Los Angeles bureau, Green said, is one of the most effective in the United States "in the nation-wide drive to make fraud unprofitable," and his visit is for the purpose of strengthening the co-operative relations between the national and the local organization.

TRACT PURCHASED FOR NEW FACTORY

T. G. Prouty, president of the Proutyline Products Company, yesterday announced the purchase of a four-acre tract in Manhattan Beach for a factory site. Plans for the plant, which will be located at Center street and the Santa Fe tracks, will be completed within the next week or two, he said. Mr. Prouty a few years ago established a tile factory in Hermosa Beach, which he sold recently to the American Encaustic Tiling Company, Ltd. He said that he is not at liberty to disclose the nature of the product he will manufacture in the Manhattan Beach plant.

TWO SUSPECTS AGAIN HELD FOR ROBBERY

William S. Scott, 84 years of age, and Mrs. Estelle Mattox, 48, were arrested yesterday by Detective-Lieutenants Smith and Clark on a warrant charging robbery. The arrest came as another aftermath of the beating received by Mrs. Charlotte Irene Scott of 427 South Berendo street, on the night of February 5, last, in front of her home.

Mrs. Scott lost two diamond rings in the attack, and subsequently accused Scott, her former husband. He was arrested with Mrs. Mattox, but later released because of lack of evidence. Discovery of a new witness caused their arrests again yesterday.

"TIMES" CLUB PROGRAM SET

Featured Performers From Theatrical Circuits Will Entertain at Masonic Event Tomorrow

Tomorrow evening will be a red letter one in the history of The Times Masonic Club. The Wednesday evening dinners of this organization, always open to members and their friends, invariably include programs of entertainment and different members officiate during the year as chairmen. Tomorrow evening the entertainment program will be in the hands of Leo Altman, manager of the Midwinter advertising department of the Los Angeles Times.

Dinner and program will be held at the Los Angeles Masonic Club, 619 South Grand avenue, and preparations have been made to entertain 300 guests. Dinner will be served promptly at 6:30 p.m., and the program of entertainment will follow.

FEATURED PERFORMANCES

Chairman Altman announces one of the most distinguished lists of entertainers thus far obtained by the club this year. One feature of the evening will be Blanca Flor, featured member of the Garcia Spanish Troubadours, who has danced from Buenos Aires to Canada and, who now is on tour of the United States. Over the Orpheum circuit this piquant little performer has danced as costar with Petito, the famed Spanish clown. Accompanying Blanca Flor will be the Spanish Troubadours.

Another number will be Max Montor, formerly director of the Hamburg City Theater and renowned German tragedian. His "Shylock" is internationally famous. Mr. Montor has just been signed for a most important part by Warner Brothers in the Al Jolson production, the "Jazz Singer."

Joseph Diskay, Hungarian tenor, who has won world renown, will also appear.

MIND-READING ACT

Harry and Frances Usher of Venice will present their mind-reading act under the title, "Fifty Years from Now."

Then too, there will be acts through the courtesy of the Orpheum Circuit, the West Coast Theaters, Warner Brothers and Pantages and Marco.

Through the courtesy of Warner Brothers, William Demarest and Estelle Collette will appear.

Perhaps capping the climax of the evening will be the appearance of Frederick Bowers and his 1927 De Luxe Revue, now appearing at the Pantages Theater. This act features Edna Esmeralda, Coles Brothers, Wiel Sisters and Ivan Lenoff. Frederick Bowers is equally as well known as a writer of songs.

ABRAHAM FOX SOUGHT

J. W. Meshekow of 1482 Broadway, New York City, is seeking news of his uncle, Abraham Fox, who is believed to be in California, according to a letter received by The Times yesterday. Fox was a furrier in New York City, and came west four years ago. It will be to his interest to communicate with Meshekow, the latter says.

Dentists Told Fees Too High; 'Quacks' Fought

The "white-collar" class as well as the poor are being forced to patronize charlatans and quacks because regular dentists' fees are too high, Dr. J. Walter Gray, president, told 750 delegates attending the thirtieth annual convention of the Southern California State Dental Association yesterday. He suggested that a committee be appointed to devise some plan to remedy the situation.

The sessions are being held in secret, none but members being permitted to attend. It was explained that the dentists fear some of the "quacks" might get into the meetings and interrupt with embarrassing questions or that some incident might be distorted in an unethical manner. They employed a publicity agent to prepare all news of the convention and hand it out to the press.

Others who took part in the program yesterday included Rev. E. A. Healy, Dr. C. M. Benbrook, Dr. Forrest H. Orton, Dr. Evangeline M. Jordon, Dr. Carl D. Lucas, Miss Harriet Henderson, Miss Harriet Rausch and pupils from the Downey grammar school under the direction of Dr. Hazel Merrick. Table clinics were conducted in the afternoon and dinners for the past presidents and the Association of Military Dental Surgeons took place last night. Today Charles F. Stern, president of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, is to talk on business investments for the professional man.

The organization of a dental assistants' association was started by 150 girls who work in dentists' offices. Katherine Gartmann, Hazel McCallum and Mary Ruggegger were instrumental in getting the new organization started. Miss Ruth A. Carr, president of the Chicago Association of Dental Assistants, gave lectures and clinics at the girls' meeting.

The sessions are conducted at the Biltmore.

More Tolerance for All Church Creeds Sought

"What can be done to promote proper interracial co-operation and further co-operative relations with Jews and Roman Catholics" is a question that will concern the delegates to the annual convention of the California State Church Federation, which meets in the Woodbridge Building Thursday and Friday of this week.

Those who are favoring a more liberal attitude toward all denominations will have an opportunity to air their ideas, as the convention is to drop all bars to the discussion. Each denomination is entitled to one ministerial and one lay delegate for each 2000 lay members.

It is expected that the laymen will lean toward a more liberal interpretation of all of the rules and regulations laid down for the federation work. There are also a number of ministers who agree that the Jews and the Catholics should be taken into a closer fellowship in matters pertaining to moral conduct and moral issues in general.

INJURED ACTRESS IN GRIM FIGHT FOR LIFE

Improved but still waging a grim battle for life Evelyn Egan, Christie studio actress, who was seriously injured Thursday night when her automobile crashed into a steam shovel, will not be able to leave the Hollywood Community Hospital within two months even with the speediest recovery, her physicians, Drs. S. R. Broadbent and W. E. Balsinger announced yesterday. With one eye removed and her face hopelessly disfigured, Miss Egan was reported as "holding her own" during the past twenty-four hours.

VETERAN UNDER KNIFE

Capt. Joseph Watson, who served with the Ninety-first Division in France, went to the hospital at Sierra yesterday for another operation and is expected to be there a week or more. His home is at 6120 Glen Holly.

CENTRAL AMERICANS HERE

Official of Isthmian Nation Holds Southland Supplanting Europe With Countrymen

California has supplanted Europe as an attraction for Central Americans, in the opinion of Barnard Rivera, assistant Treasurer of Salvador, arriving yesterday on the Panama Mail motor liner City of San Francisco.

"California is the ideal vacation land," said Rivera, "and your schools and those of Philadelphia now get our youngsters in preference to Europe. Our trade, too, is principally with the States—everything but fashions, which still come from Paris. Our highways would surprise you, another adaptation from California."

The official declares coffee crops bountiful, the country prosperous and hundreds planning vacations here in the next few months. Rivera is accompanied by his wife and A. Abrego. They will motor across the United States and sail for Europe.

Others among the seventy-two travelers aboard the City of San Francisco were Henry M. Abadie, former American Consul at Amapala, Honduras; Gottlieb Mai, cheese manufacturer of Switzerland, about to get married, but averse to advertising it; Samuel F. Casey, traveling auditor of the Panama Mail Line, and Mrs. Victoria Aviles, millionaire plantation owner of Salvador.

Frank Rynberg, who has built 400 bridges in Guatemala and Salvador in twelve years, also is bound for San Francisco to close a contract with W. R. Grace & Co. for a pier extension at Champerico. One of his bridges in Guatemala is 1100 feet long and 320 feet above the stream.

ARRAIGN TRIO FOR ATTACK

While one of their asserted victims in a brutal assault is in a precarious condition at General Hospital, three men yesterday were arraigned before Municipal Ballard on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. The charge is based on their asserted beating of Deputy Fire Wardens Donald and Harry Christie, brothers, more than a week ago in the Malibu Hills.

The three men, two of whom had previously been arraigned before Judge Ballard on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, were ordered held under bail of $10,000 each, which with $2500 bail set on the first felony count, made a total of $12,500 each.

Following the arraignment of the three men, Hoyle Sigler, Frank J. Henry and Mike Lavendetti, on the second charge, the latter was arraigned on the first count and bail set at $2500.

According to Dep. Dist.-Atty. Reinecke, the three men attacked the brothers and beat them with an automobile crank when the officers remonstrated with them for smoking in the forest reserve. Harry Christie suffered a fracture of the skull that may cause his death, officers say.

Judge Ballard set preliminary hearing for the 9th inst.

PASADENA CLUB DEFERS ACTION

Refuse to Withdraw from Federation

Plea of Past President of Organization Heard

Receives Promises of Equal Appointments

PASADENA, June 6.—Members of the Woman's Civic League of Pasadena by unanimous vote this afternoon accepted the recommendation made by resolution of the executive board to "defer action on withdrawing from or remaining in the California Federation of Women's Clubs."

This action followed immediately upon addresses made by Mrs. Sidney T. Exley of Los Angeles, past president of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, outlining the history of the federation, including its last sessions at Sacramento, and by Mrs. Lee G. MacLaughlin, member of the executive board of the State federation, who reported on the attitude of the Los Angeles District Federation as reflected in its last meeting.

Three promises made by a personal letter from Mrs. W. W. Green, newly elected president of the California federation, to Mrs. Datus C. Smith, president of the Pasadena league, were given careful consideration by members. Definite promise was made that the Los Angeles district shall have an adequate share of State chairmanships on the new board, that the new State board will refuse indorsement of any legislation which has met with united opposition from any portion of the State and that a board of women satisfactory to the district from which each comes shall be appointed and instructed to spend one entire year in studying the State organization and those of other States to determine wherein the California governing machinery can be improved. This board will report at the next State convention.

FAVOR WRIGHT ACT

Mrs. E. C. Barrett, chairman of the committee on legislation and international relations, reported that by resolution the league had expressed itself in opposition to repeal of the Wright Act, and to the measure legalizing race-track gambling. Both of these initiative measures were defeated at the November election. Special attention was paid to the conduct of Indian affairs, and a resolution passed asking thorough investigation of the Indian Bureau be made. Urgent request that differences between Mexico and the United States be arbitrated was forwarded to President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg. During the year, the league indorsed the following State bills: A bill to provide a commission for study of psychopathic, delinquent and predelinquent children in order to prevent juvenile delinquency; a bill providing for appointment of a special commission to plan a separate penal institution for women offenders; a bill to provide a separate institution for drug addicts; two bills, one to make desertion of the family by the father an extraditable offense, and the other to enable the father to be put to work and the money earned to be given to the family. The league also indorsed revision of the Criminal Code and procedure as advocated by the Crime Commission.

DISCUSS CRIME WAVE

Mrs. John F. Buwalda, chairman of the public affairs committee, declared England's murder rate is one in every 694,000 inhabitants to America's rate of one for every 16,000 inhabitants. While Pasadena has been singularly free from crime, she declared comparisons with British records would prove unfavorable. She announced that her committee favored indorsement by the league of a bill to appoint a commission to study the problem of a State institution for women offenders (Senate Bill No. 427, passed and signed by the Governor.)

Immediate construction of a new jail in Pasadena, and creation of detention quarters for young offenders back for investigation were advocated. Establishment of a police laboratory for the study of crime was also advocated.

Installation of the following new officers took place when other minor reports had been given: Mrs. Datus C. Smith, president; Mrs. W. D. Crocker, first vice-president; Mrs. Willard Stone, second vice-president; Mrs. Katherine Watson, third vice-president; Mrs. R. C. Olmsted, secretary; Mrs. Walter G. Palmer, treasurer; Mrs. E. C. Barrett, auditor, and Mrs. William J. Carr and Mrs. James G. Bennett, directors at large.

SANTA ANA, June 6.—Santa Ana police officers will be hosts to the Orange County Peace Officers' Association at the June meeting, scheduled for Wednesday night. Archibald served as a correspondent through nineteen campaigns. He served with the Russian army in the Japanese-Russian campaign, with the Boers in the South African War. He was in the Greek-Turkish War, Spanish-American War, and, up to 1918, was with the German army in the World War.

Capt. Archibald is deeply interested in aviation at the present time and it is through his activity in this line of endeavor that he was secured to speak before the peace officers, Jesse Elliott, president of the association, said today.

COLLEGE WORK IS OVER

Class of Eighty-five Receive Diplomas at Commencement Exercises at Redlands

REDLANDS, June 6.—Eighty-five young men and women walked slowly up to a tall man in a cap and gown, stood quietly while he changed a tassel on their cap from one side to the other, then marched off with that visible evidence of a degree which represented at least four years of hard work.

It was the annual commencement of the University of Redlands, the eighteenth, the number of graduates in that time growing from one to eighty-five. Taking "The New Frontiers of Education" as the subject for his address, Prof. William B. Munro of Harvard College, who has been exchange professor at California Institute of Technology, delivered a wonderful address. These frontiers are the outposts of a new education that will make for a better world to live in.

Prof. Munro believes that the opportunities before college men and women are greater today than they were ever before, that the opportunity for service is astounding and then he spoke of a world of unrest that needs men and women who know values and those things worth while.

The musical program was given by the a cappella choir of the university, under the direction of Prof. W. R. Olds. The class was presented by Mattison B. Jones, president of the board of trustees, and degrees were conferred by President Victor L. Duke. The exercises were in the new Greek theater of the university and the following received degrees:

Enters Ryan Airplane in Ford Contest

SAN DIEGO, June 6.—The "Pride of San Diego," Ryan-built golden monoplane, hitherto known as the "Gold Bug" which has been purchased by Frank M. Hawks, commercial aviator of Houston, Tex., from Richard T. Robinson, jr., left at 9:20 a.m. today on its scheduled tour of cities throughout the United States. With Hawks were D. W. Campbell of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce.

The "Pride of San Diego" will be piloted to Washington to greet Capt. Charles Lindbergh upon his arrival from Paris. Consummation of the sale was announced yesterday by Robinson Hawks, who recently has been married, will take his honeymoon trip in the golden plane, the sister plane of Lindbergh's Ryan-built monoplane. He also is to fly the "Pride of San Diego" in the Ford reliability tour, which starts from Detroit, the 27th inst. With him will be Mrs. Hawks, said to be the first woman ever to participate in the national competition for the $13,000 Edsel Ford trophy.

Hawks bought the monoplane only after he found that orders before his would prevent his receiving a new Ryan-built plane within sixty days. Robinson has ordered a new plane for himself at the factory here.

Hawks, a graduate of Brooks and Kelly fields, was an instructor in advanced aeronautics at Brooks Field during the war. He has been flying in Mexico for the past seven years. In addition to opening a passenger service in Texas, he also is to be the distributor of the Ryanplanes in that State.

OILDALE SUFFERS LOSS FROM CONFLAGRATIONS

OILDALE, June 6.—Losses estimated at from $10,000 to $15,000 were incurred in fires that struck Oildale and Beardsley, north of Bakersfield. Oildale's entire business section was threatened with destruction in an early-morning fire that was checked only after it had destroyed the Oildale Community Hall and two homes at the intersection of Wilson avenue and the oil field highway. The fire was started by an overheated water heater, it is said.

Twelve hours later an overheated water heater in a laundry owned by C. E. White on the State highway at Beardsley started a fire that destroyed the laundry, a tool shop, a service station, and a restroom.

The Oildale fire was discovered when flames burst through the roof of the smaller of two residences owned by Mrs. H. E. Hines.

Although volunteer fire fighters responded rapidly, the fire could not be prevented from spreading, first to the other residences and then to the club hall.

Previous to his banking experience in Santa Ana, Robinson, the new manager in the branch bank in Orange, was connected with the American National Bank of Pomona. Robinson's successor in the Santa Ana bank had not been named today, according to Charles L. Colant, manager.

McKenzie, Marshfield, Or., wanted here on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, will be returned to the County Jail tonight from Oregon, according to a telegram received at the Sheriff's office today from Roscoe Knight, deputy sheriff, who was sent to Marshfield to take charge of the prisoner.

The telegram was sent from Paso Robles and stated that the officer and his prisoner were returning to Santa Ana in an automobile. McKenzie is being held in connection with the purchase of land near Anaheim for which he is said to have given bogus stock.

RECONSTRUCT BUILDING

DELANO, June 6.—Thirty thousand dollars was the purchase price paid by W. J. Wallace of Crocker ranch, Delano, for the building of the First National Bank of Delano, which went into receivership last year.

The purchase includes, besides the bank building, four lots in Block No. 60, Delano. C. E. Wailes, receiver for the bank, completed the sale.

Woman Held for Bigamy is Dismissed

VENTURA, June 6.—Charges against Mrs. Dorothy Dutra, confessed bigamist who was arrested in San Francisco and brought here on a complaint filed by Robert Moore, former Ventura salesman, whom she admits she married without first obtaining a divorce from her first husband, have been dismissed.

Following a thorough investigation of the case, the District Attorney found that Mrs. Dutra, or Mrs. Moore, had not heard of her first husband Dutra, for five years, and believing him dead she had married Moore here in February. Moore, however, the District Attorney learned, had found out what his wife had done and attempted to use his knowledge of conditions in a mercenary way against her. When she left him he sought to punish her by filing the bigamy complaint against her.

MAKE SURVEY TO LEARN SENTIMENT

NEWPORT BEACH, June 6.—That the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce will conduct a survey to learn the sentiment of the majority of citizens regarding the local postoffice situation, with a view to assisting in obtaining mail delivery through a merger of the four offices in the city, was the statement issued from the office of the chamber this morning.

The matter will be considered at length at a meeting of the board of directors tomorrow evening, it was said. Should it be found that the residents of the city desire the service that one office could give because of a higher rating immediate steps will be taken to learn the necessary procedure and to carry it out, according to the chamber officials.

DEAL WITH RUSSIANS

Oil Well Supply Company Has Order for Goods

BREA, June 6.—Another foreign order for oil-well devices made by a Brea company is being prepared by the Duro Engineering Company. The shipment is to be sent to Russian oil fields. Details of the contract have been worked out between E. E. Anderson, general manager of the Duro plant, and A. V. Sounitsia, representative in this country of the united soviet of Russia.

The deal involves the delivery in New York of Duro patented line spoolers and engine controls and many units of the volts carburetor, made in the Duro plant here. Each piece must stand rigid inspection of Mr. Sounitsia as it is prepared for shipment and the stenciling and marking of the export packing cases will be done under his supervision.

It is understood that the appointment will be formally ratified by the City Trustees at their next meeting. Wallace comes from Orange, where he served some time as a motorcycle officer. He will move his family here following the close of school.

DISCUSS NEW HIGHWAY

Supervisors of Two Counties Hear Details at Banquet at Riverside Mission Inn

RIVERSIDE, June 6.—The proposition of a new road over the mountains between Elsinore and San Juan Capistrano was discussed between Supervisors of Riverside and Orange counties at Mission Inn this evening.

The conference is a result of a trip of inspection over the two proposed routes, Sievers Canyon and Verdugo Potrero, made recently by Orange county Supervisors, State Highway Commissioner J. P. Baumgartner and United States forest officials.

The excursion was arranged by the Capistrano Chamber of Commerce, and was led by Forest Supervisor J. R. Elliott. It was explained at the meeting this evening that the Sievers Canyon road would join the San Juan Hot Springs road near the springs, and on the Riverside county side would join a road that has been built over the ridge from Elsinore into the Cleneges.

The Verdugo route would take over the ridge of the canyon three miles below the hot springs and pass the Carillo homestead, skirt Sitton Peak, and come into the Elsinore Valley at the south end of the lake.

This Sievers route would be easier for Riverside county construction, while the Verdugo would be easier for Orange county. It was suggested by Baumgartner that each county contribute equal amounts to the entire expense, thus obviating bad feeling as to the greater expense of either. An amount to match might be contributed by the forest service. If the two counties agree on such a plan, he said, there is assurance that the road would be made a part of the forest highway system with the work to be done by the Bureau of Public Roads.

FULLERTON MAY BE LOCATION OF HOME

FULLERTON, June 6.—Fullerton may be selected as the site for the $150,000 Abraham Lincoln Boys' Home.

That was the message brought to the Fullerton Kiwanis Club today by Arthur Edwin Wake, vice-president and general manager of the boys' home project, which is sponsored by William G. McAdoo.

Wake was the principal speaker at a Kiwanis luncheon. He declared that the American home has failed in solving the boy problem.

Wake, aside from his duties in connection with the Abraham Lincoln Boys' Home, is a child psychologist. He cited many instances in which psychological analysis has put misfit boys on the right track and aided them in making their lives successful. He told the Kiwanians that Fullerton has an opportunity to become the location of the boy's home if a satisfactory site is available here.

CANNING OLD HENS FOR USE IN WINTER

OWENSMOUTH, June 6.—Some of the ranchers in the Weeks Poultry Colony near here are not going to cull out their old hens this summer and sell them at give-away prices. They're going to eat 'em. Within the last few days a chicken-canning expert has been in the section showing housewives how to can old hens, under high-pressure steam methods. This winter, when turkeys and hens are soaring around 65 and 50 cents a pound, Weeks Colony women intend to get out their can openers and feast on chicken at next to nothing.

MEXICAN'S DEATH MAY FOLLOW AUTO MISHAP

POCOIMA, June 6.—Aniseto Rodrigues, San Fernando Mexican, is being held on bail on a serious reckless-driving charge, following a hearing today in the Van Nuys branch of the Municipal Court. According to police, Rodrigues, Ben Carmona of San Fernando and Martudo Varde of Burbank, last night were driving on San Fernando Road near here, when the auto suddenly left the highway and tried to climb a telegraph pole. Varde is now in the Los Angeles Hospital in a critical condition. Carmona also was injured. Police state Rodrigues was under the influence of liquor when the accident happened. Varde is likely to die as a result of his injuries.

KREIDER HEADS ALUMNI

Sam L. Kreider, shipping man, has been elected president of the Los Angeles High School Alumni Association, it was announced yesterday. Kreider will succeed Marshall Stimson.

Indians Pay Penalty for Day of Play

BAKERSFIELD, June 6.—There might be a "law agin it," it was his day to howl. Thus argues Big Chief Sunday of Kernville, as he sits in the County Jail, surrounded by four of his Indian companions.

Things happened so rapidly at Kernville yesterday that Chief Sunday Bencoma and his friends don't know what it's all about.

The Indian chief figured the day of rest was set aside for Chief Sunday to celebrate. It had always been thus, so five Kernville Indians, Chief Sunday, Theo Miranda, R. Lenares, Tom Carro and Ed Butterhead, purchased some "firewater" and went on the warpath.

A merry time was had by all, all five of them, and the Kernville officialdom stepped into the circle and put a crimp in the war dance. Constable C. U. Pasco was the first to halt the merriment when he placed the quintet under arrest, confronting them with warrants charging drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

Justice of the Peace W. B. Smith of Kernville made the recess more permanent when he sentenced the Indians to thirty days each in the County Jail.

Arrests, trials and commitments followed in such rapid succession on the heels of the celebration that Chief Sunday and his doughty warriors have not yet recovered their breath.

TO WIDEN BRIDGE

Improvement Great Help to Traffic on Valley Boulevard

EL MONTE, June 6.—Actual work on the widening of the bridge over the Rio Hondo just west of El Monte will begin within the next few weeks, according to word received today by the local Chamber of Commerce from the county road department.

The county Board of Supervisors have advertised for bids which will be opened the 13th inst., at which time the contract will be awarded and construction will begin within two weeks, it is thought.

This bridge is at present only twenty-four feet wide and the increase to forty feet will alleviate one of the worst traffic conditions on the Valley Boulevard. The road department announces that the bridge will be kept open for traffic during the period of widening.

PLAN TO DISCARD KEROSENE LAMPS

GIRARD, June 6.—A plan to interest property owners in the mountain district between here and Calabasas in the use of electric light and power was discussed at a meeting conducted in the Calabasas schoolhouse. Many of the home owners still use kerosene lamps. If sufficient users can be obtained lines will be set up in these out-of-the-way sections. Leaders in the plan assert the mountain districts would build up more rapidly if electricity is carried into the area.

VALLEY TO SHIP MORE BEANS TO SUFFERERS

RESEDA, June 6.—Within the next two or three days another carload of baby lima beans probably will be shipped from San Fernando Valley to the flood sufferers of the lower Mississippi Valley. Last week the first carload was sent from the Van Nuys section. A. E. Hartman, owner of the Reseda Banner, one of the west end valley residents in charge of the collection of funds, reports about $1500 in hand. Almost every home owner in this section has contributed to the fund.

CLUB'S PLANS ENLARGED

L. E. Behymer, president of La Marada Del Arte, being organized in Hollywood, stated yesterday that the clubhouse to be built by the organization at Franklin and Whitney avenues, will cost $1,250,000, instead of $250,000 as heretofore announced. The club is a nonprofit organization. Plans have been drawn and the contract awarded to Meyer and Holler, it is stated.

SANTA ANA, June 7.—The State Highway road crew which has been industriously paving the new highway between Tustin and Santa Ana now has its machinery working on the last block of the 1.8 miles to be finished under this contract.

The original allotment to be paid from the gas-tax fund and with Federal aid was $61,200, and while no figures are available as to the actual cost, it is understood that the allotment was found to be ample.

Few highways are to be found in the State to equal that stretch in Orange county which connects in Santa Ana with the San Diego Coast Route and follows through Tustin to connect with the highway recently completed between there and Irvine.

It is of heavy concrete construction with ample width for four lines of moving cars. Curbs have been installed within the city limits and sidewalks placed in front of homes now occupied or under construction along the frontage.

With the completion this week of this last stretch of paving motorists will find a smooth, wide highway all the way from Los Angeles to Irvine, a counterpart of the coast road first constructed along the Capistrano beach to the boundary line of Orange county at San Clemente.

Laguna Exhibit Graced by New Artists' Works

LAGUNA BEACH, June 6.—With two new exhibiting members of national importance and with paintings from the brushes of California's best painters, the June and July show which opened Saturday at the Laguna Beach Art Gallery, is arousing enthusiasm among the artists resident here, who say it is the best show since the prize August exhibition.

The new painters to exhibit are Frank Tenney Johnson, painter of moonlight scenes, and Clyde Forsyth, master of shadows. Johnson is represented by three canvases, one of them hanging next to the reproduction of it in the Literary Digest when that magazine used Johnson's famous painting for its cover page June 21, 1924.

This picture is titled "The Winding Trail" and shows a cowboy astride a cow pony riding down a steep mountain trail with a wonderful scenic display just behind him.

Johnson's "Mexican Ponies" is an alluring bit of work and many an artist stood before it on the opening day of the exhibition in admiration. The third Johnson offering is called "Sioux Warrior." It is decorative and highly entertaining canvas and one that will be a general favorite with the public.

VENTURA BURGLARS MAKE LITTLE MONEY

VENTURA, June 6.—Thieves over the week-end broke into three Ventura business houses, but as far as an investigation by the Sheriff's office has revealed, very little loot was taken. The three places broken into were Chaffee's Men's Store, the J. C. Penney Company and the Fairbanks & Lillie Pool Hall. All that was missed, according to officers, was a number of slot machine chips from the pool hall. Though the thieves had broken open one of the slot machines there, they neglected to take a large amount of money which was available.

WINS IN LAND DRAWING

VISALIA, June 6. — According to Land Agent W. S. Hunsaker, at the United States Land Office here, Mrs. Elias Allen of 3116 Thomas street, Fresno, was the lucky one in the drawing held in the land office this morning.

Mrs. Allen, who was one of seventeen applicants, all of whom gave some town in California as an address, drew in all 233.94 acres, described as lots 2, 4 and 5, Sec. 5, and Lots 6 and 7 in the south half of the soutcast quarter of Sec. 4, and Lot 1, Sec. 23, in Township 30, Range 21 east, M. D. B. and M. Another drawing will be held tomorrow and a third the day following.

ARRESTED AT COALINGA

COALINGA, June 6.—A negro man and woman, both under middle age, who had been living here and working under the names of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wilson, were arrested on Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Hoskins and were taken to the Kings County Jail. The arrest was made under telegraphic orders from the Sheriff of San Bernardino county. One of his officers, Deputy Sheriff Duffy, and Mrs. Duffy, who is matron at the San Bernardino County Jail, arrived this morning and took the couple back to face trial. The woman's real name is said to be Mrs. Alice Sutton and she has a husband and mother in Colton.

MANY SEEK OFFICE AT CALEXICO

Recall Election Develops Field of Fifteen Candidates for City Trustees

CALEXICO, June 6.—Fifteen men, a majority of whom are prominent in local business affairs, will enter an election contest here tomorrow as candidates to succeed the five City Trustees whose recall is being attempted.

Criticism directed at the incumbent board as stated on the recall ballot includes the assertion that "the Trustees have failed to establish and maintain public confidence, have not intelligently planned or successfully maintained the city's progress and that the finances of the city are in a deplorable and alarming condition."

In a statement defending their position, T. J. West, Z. D. Agnew, Edward Dool, John C. Graham and E. O. Burdick assert that they "have performed every action with the best intentions and with the taxpayers' consideration and have maintained the lowest tax rate in Imperial county." They state that the recall movement was instigated by L. J. Powers, City Attorney, who was recently dismissed on the ground that he was not in harmony with the police department.

A bitter contest is expected due to the prominence of a number of the men involved.

A unique feature of the election in the light of recent California political history is the fact that not a single candidate has included Boulder dam and an all-American canal in his platform.

The absence of this issue is attributed to the fact that Calexico in past years has voted almost unanimously in favor of the dam and overwhelmingly against the canal at every election involving these issues.

To Celebrate Completion of Greek Theater

ANAHEIM, June 6.—Plans for uniting the entire community in impressive ceremonies at the formal opening of the Anaheim $85,000 Greek Theater, now rapidly nearing completion, in the Anaheim City Park were laid at a meeting of service club representatives and civic leaders held in the Council Chambers of the hall.

Acting Mayor L. E. Miller, who had called the meeting, presided and led the discussion. Ellis Rhodes, well-known Southern California tenor and chorus leader and a teacher with the Orange county school of fine arts this city, was named to have general charge of arrangements for the community celebration and it was tentatively decided that the Anaheim community chorus which Mr. Rhodes leads will have a prominent part in the exercises.

Date for the ceremonies was set as the evening of July 18 by which time it is expected that the construction work will be entirely completed and the theater ready for public use.

SAYS WE ARE CRAZY ABOUT OUR APPLE PIE

VAN NUYS, Jun 6.—Herbert Ariess, owner of one of the leading cafes here, says apple pie is the most popular of all American "dishes." Ariess is an Englishman and formerly was proprietor of the famous Cheshire Cheese in London. He has conducted cafes in various parts of the United States. "Ham and eggs is a most popular American dish," Ariess said. "Americans also like to eat a lot of fried potatoes, but when it comes to the most popular of all foods, nothing is in the running like apple pie. If a man or woman isn't hungry, they always compromise with a piece of apple pie. If they are real hungry they invariably finish the meal with a out of the pie. Since I have been in America about every other person I have served asks for pie."

PASADENA WOMAN LOSES JEWELRY

PASADENA, June 6.—Theft of jewelry valued at more than $5000 was reported to police today by Mrs. F. C. Platt, 140 North El Molino avenue, who declared she had returned from a short vacation to find that a window of her house had been broken open and many valuable articles taken.

One two-carat diamond ring, valued at $2000, one amethyst pin valued at $500 and one yellow gold ring valued by Mrs. Platt at $2500, were reported as missing from the leather bag in which the family jewels are kept. Mrs. Platt, wife of F. C. Platt, president of the Platt Investment Company of Pasadena, said she believed her house had been entered last Thursday.

ACCIDENT VICTIM BURIED

HUNTINGTON PARK, June 6. — The remains of the late Clarence M. Collier, 39 years of age, who was killed here Wednesday night, when a Pacific Electric car ran into his automobile at Randolph street and Miles avenue, were interred today in Inglewood Cemetery. Mrs. F. W. Qualte of Dallas, Tex., a sister, arrived here Saturday morning, after which arrangements for the funeral were made.

Collier was on his way to the high school to attend band rehearsal, when a Whittier line car struck his machine, throwing the machine and occupant several feet to the side of the roadway. The deceased leaves two sisters and a brother, all residents of Texas. He had been in this State about four years.

GRANTED DIVORCE

BREA, June 6. — Brea friends of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Olmstead are interested in the news that Mrs. Olmstead, formerly Miss Rimpau of Anaheim, has been granted a divorce on the grounds of desertion in Los Angeles and the custody of their two minor children.

The Olmsteads are former residents of Brea, where Mr. Olmstead was associated with the First National Bank part of the time as president. It is said that there was no opposition to the suit. A heart-balm suit for $500,000 filed by Olmstead against W. D. Howard is still pending in Los Angeles.

GRAPE GROWERS SELLING

Organization to Adapt Market System

Government to Aid Sale of Green Fruit

FRESNO, June 6.—The California Vineyardists' Association, a newly organized marketing agency of grape growers, with a membership of 6000, does not seek to control the fresh-grape market, but to aid in the distribution of the grape crop through or channels through an orderly system of marketing. Donald Duncan, newly appointed manager of the vineyardists' association, addressed a public meeting of several hundred growers, shippers and others of the grape industry today.

Coman arrived in Fresno last night from San Francisco, where he spent the previous week in conference with shipping interests, state officials and representatives of the Federal and State governments, laying preliminary plans for the formation of the shipping organization through which the vineyardists hope to stabilize the fresh-grape market and bring order out of chaos which has marked the shipping of the past two seasons.

The vineyardists' organization will serve as a service body to the growers, and through its clearinghouse of shipping information to direct the flow of grapes to the various markets, so that each market will receive only the number of cars of grapes daily as can be sold at prices that will bring a reasonable return to the grower, and to prevent the glutting of any market, a condition which was largely responsible for the past two seasons for extremely low prices. Grapes were sold in instances during the last season for prices which were less than enough to pay the freight charges.

Daily analysis will be made of the market, the number of cars being shipped to each of the various destinations, the prices received and en route by various markets, and this information with the clearinghouse recommendations regarding future shipments will be distributed to the growers and shippers.

Coman pointed out that the success of the organization through fullest co-operation of the growers and shippers can be made a success, and urged the support of the industry in the movement if it is to succeed.

Preliminary to the meeting here Coman conferred with shippers in the Fresno district on the details of the plan, and he will lay the plan in full before a State-wide meeting of shippers tomorrow, including the contract which will bind the growers to the clearinghouse plan for a three-year period. Coman will be the guest of honor at a banquet tonight.

In administration of the affairs of the association, Coman announced that he has had the assistance of Federal department of agriculture officials, who have donated some of their time to assist, and the Department of Commerce has also detailed a man to work with the vineyardists. He said that the grape problem is one of the biggest now existing in the United States.

Through the co-operation of the railroads and the Department of Agriculture the association will endeavor to eliminate unnecessary and uneconomic movement, prevent gluts and unfavorable conditions, Coman said. The association will work under the direction of C. H. Gaulin, market specialist in charge of the Department of Agriculture, who for several months has studied the market news service on grapes and lettuce deals in the East, and who is one of the best informed men in the United States on the subject.

Upon the basis of information received and considered by the clearinghouse through this service, the association will tell the shippers daily how many cars they may ship to the various destinations in the growers as to the rates to which their fruit may be shipped or diverted if necessary, Coman said.

MUCH FIREWATER FOR INDIAN

HANFORD, June 6.—[Special.]—Five Piute Indians from Round Mountain, three carloads of red men who were arrested on the Kern county line by Sheriff Wagner during the recent "Forty-niner" celebration at Sacramento, pleaded guilty in the Federal court here this morning in the court of Commissioner Deputy Marshall Fuller of bringing the red man so far from the reservation of the city, but Pat explained that his intention to bring only a few cases for the celebration of the Forty-niners' celebration in Sacramento changed their judgments. He said he had only two bottles at Dinuba, and, because of the duration here, he decided to buy more but he had not met with a very cordial reception and had only escaped the officer picked him up. He was given a thirty-day suspended sentence and fined $50.

In the swimming contest the Hanford De Molay chapter won with a score of 85 1/2 points, Tulare being second with 74 points.
